"Yes, I Really Wrote 'The Young Visiters' When I Was Only 9," Says Daisy Ashford

Four London Celebrities Have Been Suspected of Authorship of Most Amusing Literary Mystery in Years.

By JOSEPH GOLLOMB,
A Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Jan. 15.

THE Shakspeare-Bacon controversy is simple compared to the question agitating the English-reading world as to who wrote "The Young Visiters." After all, the other resolves itself into a dispute merely as to which one of two men was the author of some rather well-known plays. In the case of "The Young Visiters" the discussion has raged along many a cross-current.

At least four different persons are suspected of having written the book; and the most respectable assurances on the part of the publishers have failed to allay a delightful sense of mystery in the minds of most of its readers. Of course, on the title page there is the obvious clew of a name, Daisy Ashford, as the author; and a very much alive young woman in her twenties answers to that name and says with a mischievous smile that she wrote "The Young Visiters" when she was nine. But then, too, there was a very much alive young actor who laid claim to having written Shakspeare's plays; and his name, too, has always appeared on the title page. Nevertheless, many have refused to believe the obvious indications and have credited his work to Bacon. In "The Young Visiters" the spelling and vocabulary are those of a 9-year-old child. But there are at least several hundred thousand readers and enthusiasts who have refused to believe that the mentality could be other than that of—and here they split violently—Barrie? Max Beerbohm? Frank Swinnerton? Daisy Ashford grown up?

MISS DAISY ASHFORD

Barrie Among Suspects.

Each of these theories has a strong and enthusiastic following. Each of the accused has repeatedly denied the charge, though not without an ill-concealed wish that it were true. Barrie has been more frequently mentioned than others because he has written the preface and because of a combination of imp and innocence in the book itself. Max Beerbohm's name has been dragged in because there is no more effective way of poking fun than that which makes you look twice and sharply to see whether ridicule is meant or not; and "The Young Visiters" is full of that sort of thing. In fact, it is that very quality in the book which along with the question of authorship also raises another Mona Lisa controversy. Is the "ineffable smile" on Mona Lisa the expression of a marvelously translucent spirit? Or is it the smile of a sly puss?

And the portrait of "The Author" opposite the title-page of "The Young Visiters" bears in pose, character and particularly the smile a startling resemblance to the Mona Lisa. There is the same placidity so rare in this troubled world; the same calm hands at rest; the same soft, round contour of face; the same placid eyes; the brow ample and serene with the hair parted and drawn back. And the smile—Da Vinci himself would not know what to make of the smile on that face of which Barrie has written that is complacency "by the severe might perhaps be called smugness."

Case Against Swinnerton.

If Frank Swinnerton has been mentioned as the possible author it is largely because he has brought about its publication. In running down the mystery of the authorship of "The Young Visiters" I interviewed him as to how the pencilled original in a child's scrawly hand became the book now selling by the million in England and America. His story is that for many years the manuscript had been making the rounds of circles of friends, from hand to hand, leaving a trail of chuckling and wonder behind it. Fi[illegible] one woman submitted it to Mr[illegible]nerton, who is reader for [illegible] & Windus, the English publi[illegible]

Mr. Swinnerton's admiration for the qualities of the book is so obviously genuine and he himself is so modest a man that I at once discarded the theory that he is the author. He found no difficulty in getting Chatto & Windus to publish the book. He struck a snag, however, in getting Barrie to write the preface — until Barrie caught a glimpse of the manuscript and the portrait advertised as the author's. After that it was only a matter of turning out copies as fast as possible. But inspiring of confidence as Mr. Swinnerton is, I refused to settle in my mind the question of the authorship of "The Young Visiters" until I had come face to face with Daisy Ashford.

"I found her in a woman's club in the Chelsea section of London, where she is staying. I had to look sharply to recognize in the grown-up the now famous child with the Mona Lisa smile. Instead of a rather chunky youngster I saw a slim young lady alert as a bird. The years have turned the shock of blonde hair very dark. The round face has become oval and piquant. The brown eyes are no longer calm and self-satisfied, but dance with the enjoyment of a fame achieved without effort; and it is hard not to suspect some joke twinkling there. The smile has lost its mystery. There is a smile, to be sure, quick, responsive and understanding, with fine lines crinkling at the corners. But it never leaves you in doubt for a moment as to its meaning. You believe in it implicitly. You believe in her and what she tells you about the author of "The Young Visiters." One reason for the confidence you feel is the sense of entire dissociation she reveals from the wholly different young person who, quite a number of years ago, scribbled with a lead pencil several notebooks full of romances, comedies, blood-curdling tragedies and realistic novels; and at the age of 16 lost, apparently forever, all interest in authorship.

"Telling stories to my little sisters or scribbling endlessly was my one great occupation as a child," she said, smiling into the fire in the tiny English grate. "It was not only easy but a game like playing with dolls. My dolls were the characters that came to me in the persons of my governesses or guests or members of my family. They were all interesting to me, and I'm sure that the things I imagined about them must have appeared to me the truth. I came to believe them true, even when I spun the stories about myself. And such stories as I told my little sisters about myself! You see, I was the head of the nursery, with my two sisters under me. And jolly good care I took that they realized who was the head there! What I couldn't accomplish with the weight of my years I helped out by impressing them with stories of my accomplishment.

Her Ideas for Nursery.

"I remember telling them, for instance, that at one time I was governess to a family of boys. The Fletcher family of Newcastle, I called them. Names came to me of themselves. Well, the Fletcher boys were a daily topic in the nursery. There were nine of them, I think. And every day there was a new exploit of mine as a governess to tell about. At one time I quelled an incipient Fletcher rebellion by spanking the four oldest boys and making them spank in turn the others until all the mischief was out of them. Soon

"Mobs Must Go," Kentucky Governor Says in Discussing Riot at Lexington

Didn't Expect to See Militia Head Alive Without Negro

"There Is Too Much Damn Fool Concern About Reds," Gov. Morrow Asserts—Must Teach That Ballot Box Is Only Way to Change Laws—Majorities Make Them, Not Minorities.

GOVERNOR MORROW OF KENTUCKY

Executive Who Has Set Precedent for Other Southern Governors, Though a Republican, Carried by 40,000, a State Normally Democratic by 20,000—Is Renowned for His Stories.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
FRANKFORT, Ky., Feb. 14.

WHEN the Governor of Kentucky heard last Sunday that a mob was forming to take vengeance upon a negro murderer of a 10-year-old white girl, he called for his Adjutant-General of State militia.

He said to him: "Do as much as you have to do to keep that negro in the hands of the law. If he falls into the hands of a mob I do not expect to see you alive."

The Adjutant-General went to the scene that midnight with 65 militiamen and a few world war service men who knew how to handle machine guns and automatic rifles.

He returned within 24 hours, bringing his prisoner, but upon the blue grass of the courtyard at Lexington he left six white men dying and 24 others wounded, a toll never before exacted in the name of respect of the law from white citizens of the South.

A reporter for the Post-Dispatch sought Edwin P. Morrow, Governor of Kentucky, to learn his thoughts on law and order which produced at Lexington a precedent for Southern Governors and a new understanding in the minds of mob leaders, at least in Kentucky.

Governor Was Bewildered.

He appeared a little bewildered to know why so many telegrams of commendation and so many newspaper editorials giving him praise were coming to his office.

"What else was I to do?" he asked. "Don't people expect Governors to do their duty?"

"However, I long have perceived that there must be a new respect for the law in the South. The mob has been looked upon too long as justifiable in certain extremities. It has become a custom with us. Members of mobs seldom, if ever, have been punished. It has been generally understood that a mob could proceed in whatever fashion it chose and that none would be held responsible.

"That custom and belief must go. There must be respect of law. There is no law where there are mobs. Mobs are lawlessness. Mobs must no longer assemble.

"They will cease to assemble just as quickly as two new understandings are born. One is the understanding of public officials that the law is a thing to be upheld with their lives, if necessary. The other is the understanding of citizens that the law is something to be obeyed. And I believe the greater responsibility to rest upon public officials. If their administration is weak, the law suffers in the respect of the people. If the law is regarded as inviolate by public officials, a new respect will be given to the people.

Mob Leaders to Be Sought.

"Public officials must make men understand that when they assemble in mobs there is a certainty that they will be punished as the law will punish the guilty whom they seek. Why, it has been suggested to me that the unfortunate punishment inflicted upon the Lexington mob shall end the matter. I say now that the search for the leaders of that mob will continue. The citizens of my State, at the same election in which they elected me to administer their law, passed a constitutional amendment empowering the Legislature to enact a law which shall provide that any officer who surrenders a prisoner shall automatically be removed from office. I regard that law already on the statute books.

"Our mobs are not in the spirit of defiance of law always. Most are result of belief that it is the best way in a certain character of crime. It is not the best way. No way outside the law can be the best way. But the danger is even more immediate. One mob breeds another and the excuse for the second is less than the excuse for the first. Soon a mob goes wrong and an innocent man dies. Buckling of officials to the mob means that soon mobs will be hanging officials. If we can once establish the conviction, by extreme action, that the law is the law, we won't have every buck joining a mob the minute the cry is raised.

"It is all very simple. There is only one question. Shall we or shall we not abide by the Government established by our fathers, which has grown from nothing to the greatest on earth? The answer springs into every man's throat.

Ballot Box Only Remedy.

"Well, then, there's too much damn fool concern about reds and processes of Americanism. There is just one thing to tolerate and one thing to teach and that is that the law is supreme and that there is only one way to change it, the ballot box. Any other method is treason, and treason demands action.

"No group of men can be permitted to make law without enacting legislation or without amending the Constitution. The law is made by majorities and not by minorities.

"In this connection I have the acts and aims of certain minorities in mind. I am as much opposed to the effort of great wealth or corporate influence to circumvent the law as the effort of the labor which derives its assertiveness from other powers. Let men have righteous wrath, but let them take righteous ways to vent it. The time has come to call wolf wolf—the law must stand."

The Governor of Kentucky is not a big man in stature, though he has some girth. He is 43 years old, a space of life sufficient for him, it seems, to make himself known throughout the State as "Ed."

Is Third Republican Governor.

He is a Republican, glory enough of itself, for Kentucky has had only two Republican Governors before him since its admission to the Union in 1792.

In many states the accomplishment would not have the significance it does in Kentucky. Politics is an avocation in Kentucky, calling for no slackers and an open avowal of allegiance that permits no middle ground. Fealty is a virtue of first water, and a break of allegiance is not forgiven easily.

Morrow, of whose fame as a story-teller by right of inheritance something will appear later, has a story that exhibits how party welfare transcends at times the law which he has so stoutly maintained.

It was during his tenure as United States Attorney for the Eastern district of Kentucky that Silas Sullivan, a mountaineer and gauger for the Government storekeeper far back in the Cumberlands, was indicted on a charge of theft of a barrel of whisky from the bonded warehouse.

Some weeks after Silas came thumping his boots into the outer office of the District Attorney at Covington.

"Howdy, Ed."

"Hello, Silas."

A silence, then from Silas: "Ed, whar can I have a little graveyard talk with you?"

Within the private office, Morrow inquired, "What can I do for you, Silas?"

"Waal, I suppose you seed they indicted me for stealin' a barrel of whisky," Silas began.

"Yes," Morrow said.

Distilled by a Republican.

"Waal, this air a Republi-can Government, ain't it, run by a Republi-can President and that air storekeeper is a Republi-can storekeeper and that whisky was stilled by Jim Spradley a Republi-can stiller, warn't it?"

Morrow agreed.

"Waal, them is the circumstances," Silas continued. "The facts is these: Them Bertrams from over in Wayne County, them pizen copperhead Democrats, was comin' over our way bringing their whisky and money and aimin' to overthrow, a seekin' to destroy the Republi-can party. I seed the danger, so I writ down to Luke Phillips, the county chairman, to tell him to be sendin' me some whisky and some money to combat the common enemy. He didn't send neither.

"That bein', I went into the aforesaid warehouse and extracted therefrom 40 gallons of good Republi-can whisky and went forth for the preservation and glory of the grand old party.

"Now, Ed, you may indict me for stealin' of that whisky and you can make my flesh feel the chill of chains, but I'd rather rot in a dungeon than see the American eagle in Kentucky whipped by a Shanghai rooster."

Morrow transformed a normal Republican minority of 20,000 in Kentucky to a majority of 40,000 and carried the entire ticket with him. Much of the victory is attributed to his stories. In substituting stories for rantings in his speeches he followed the tactics of an illustrious father, who was the Republican candidate in 1884 against Proctor Knott, then famous by reason of his speech in Congress on the "zenith city of the unsalted seas."

People Flocked to Chuckle.

The elder Morrow and Knott began a series of joint debates. In one week the debates turned into a story-telling contest, and people flocked to chuckle. Politics was forgot. Morrow and Knott slept in the same bed and each night resumed the tournament of yarns. When it ended, Morrow had lopped off 20,000 of the Democratic majority.

The present Governor also is a nephew of former United States Senator Bradley of Kentucky, conceded to be the greatest story-teller the State had produced. The nephew resembles the uncle in appearance, and in Kentucky they are saying of the Lexington mob incident: "Wasn't that just what old Bradley would have done?"

During the campaign Morrow's slogan was, "He can't be bought, bossed or bluffed." A Democratic Senate tried out his slogan on the first day it assembled. Morrow made his campaign a series of phillipics against the creation of offices by the Democrats. He picked the Fire Marshal's office in particular and declared that he would "put the fire-putter-out out." He declared that in eight years a Democratic administration had created 319 offices, many of them useless.

Announced Discharge of 25.

When the Senate assembled the Democrats had a majority of one. It passed a resolution at 4 p. m. on its first day, calling upon the Governor to name the 319 offices referred to in his campaign. When they convened next day Morrow appeared before the astounded Senators, read a list of the 319 offices and announced the names of 25 "whom I have at this minute discharged, with more to come."

If Morrow's campaign speeches didn't end with a story they ended with this admonition: "The thing Kentucky needs first is not more schools, not churches, but law, law respected, law enforced and law obeyed.

He was "called" on that, too, for he had been Governor only a little more than a month when William Lockett, a negro, murdered little Geneva Hardman and was hustled to the safety of the prison walls at Frankfort. Led by kinfolk of the little girl, a mob assembled in Lexington and began to go towards Frankfort in automobiles. The Governor was warned. He assembled the penitentiary guards, the city police and the Sheriff and his deputies and stationed them on the prison walls with the orders to shoot any who attempted to enter by force.

He went to a hill on the road from Lexington to meet and warn the lynchers. He stopped the first automobile. It contained relatives of the girl.

Pledged Slayer's Execution.

"Boys," he began. His voice has a soft quality and his smile instantly warms those it reaches. "Boys," he said, "I want you to turn around and go back to that poor mother and tell her I pledge that her daughter's slayer shall be executed. He has confessed. The law will take care of him.

"And if you don't," he declared, his manner changing, "you pass me to your death."

"Look out, Governor, he's got a gun," a Sheriff's deputy warned at some move from the car.

"Arrest him and take it away," Morrow commanded instantly. The man submitted to search. The mob was broken and the automobiles turned back toward Lexington.

The Governor is a mountaineer. His courage for law enforcement was tried during his term as United States District Attorney. His district included the mountains, where moonshining flourished. His friends say that he obtained more convictions for moonshining during his tenure than any District Attorney before and since.

When it came to election he carried the mountains by a tremendous majority. In his own mountain congressional district the majority was so large that it was sufficient to wipe out the total of the Democratic majority in all the districts of the State his opponent carried.

"The boys knew I was doing my duty as an official," he said, "so they voted for me just the same. Many men I had sent to jail came up to me during the campaign. 'We're fur you, Ed,' they said. 'You sent us up, but you didn't take no underholds.' That's all that is necessary in the mountains—never take an underhold."

Troops Came as Surprise.

Adjutant-General J. M. de Weese, who commanded the troops at Lexington, told the reporter of the efforts made to force upon the crowd realization that the show of authority he presented with his troops was earnest. The coming of the troops was a surprise, for they were carried into town at midnight on trucks. When the town awoke it found an automatic rifle at each corner of the courthouse and a machine gun at the entrance, backed by militiamen carrying Springfield rifles. The morning papers of Lexington contained a warning from Gen. de Weese that the soldiers would resist a mob.

The trial began at 10 o'clock. At 7:30 the crowd began gathering outside ropes that were stretched at the street curb about 60 feet from the front entrance. For three hours De Weese said he walked up and down the ropes, repeating warnings and receiving vile epithets and gibes in reply.

Someone finally lifted a rope above his head. The crowd yelled and surged toward the entrance.

De Weese retreated slowly before them, still warning. Someone seized him. He tapped his assailant on the head with the butt of his revolver. Back they forced him to the steps leading to the entrance. Up one flight he backed. Up a second and the crowd still surged. When he reached the third and last flight, only a few feet from the entrance, he made one more appeal. The crowd did not stop. De Weese pointed his revolver in the air and fired. Instantly there came a round from his men, fired into the portion of the mob that was on the stairs and at the foot. The mob broke and ran.

'Percentage' Platforms and Change of Sentiment in South Show That Prohibition Is Not 'Dead' in Politics

"Wet" National Planks Are Unlikely, but Issue Will Continue in Local Fights, and Through Changes in Congresses.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.

PROHIBITION has not been taken out of politics by the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment of the Constitution. It is in politics, inextricably mixed up with politics, and it will remain there for an indefinite time. In the belief of some political sharps, it will be one of the major issues of the presidential campaign.

A survey of the national situation will reveal any number of facts to prove that prohibition is a live issue.

Down in Alabama the Anti-Saloon league forces have decreed the defeat of Senator Oscar Underwood. As his opponent they have selected L. B. Musgrove, one of the wealthiest men of the State and a liberal contributor to the league's war chest. A recent issue of the Christian Science Monitor, a strongly prohibitionist newspaper, states that the drys of all factions have united to oust Underwood.

In Pennsylvania, Congressman Vare, one of the Republican bosses of Philadelphia, has just announced that he will run for re-election on a platform to permit the sale of light wines and 5 per cent beer.

Gov. Edwards and Bryan.

Gov. Edwards, the wet Governor of the very wet State of New Jersey, will shortly ask William J. Bryan how much salary, if any, he is getting from the Anti-Saloon league. He will challenge Bryan to produce his accounts with the league and clear up reports that the Commoner is on the payroll for a salary variously estimated up to $50,000.

Drys suspect that the liberal opinions of Herbert Hoover extend to prohibition. To find out whether Hoover would be an acceptable candidate to the dry forces, Superintendent Anderson of the New York branch of the Anti-Saloon League has asked him to define his views.

According to the wets, there are increasing signs of a revolt against prohibition in the South, which has been dry longer than any other section. They point to Virginia, where the present Governor, Westmoreland Davis, was elected by the wets and where the candidate now apparently leading the field for the next Democratic nomination for Governor is running on a platform advocating repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. They cite, moreover, the recent action of a Georgia grand jury in denouncing the Anti-Saloon League for attempting to raise a $25,000,000 prohibition enforcement fund; the war that is being waged against the league by the leading newspaper of Columbia, North Carolina, and, the effective use being made in Mississippi of figures showing that the amount sought to be raised by the Anti-Saloon League in that State is greater than the entire yearly expense of running the State government.

"Liberal" Sentiment.

Prohibition is decidedly in politics. There is a strong undercurrent of sentiment in favor of making the Democratic party the "liberal" party, pledged to a program of bringing back light wines and beer. On such an issue, but on no other issue, can the Democrats hope to win; so argue those who contend for liberalization of the eighteenth amendment. A beer-and-wine plank, they reason, would win the preponderant share of the labor vote, now alienated from the Democratic party by the anti-strike injunction proceedings; it would win the foreign-born vote; it would rally to the Democratic party many diverse elements that on no other issue could conceivably be united. It would enable the Democratic party, the argument runs, to carry a sufficient number of the states of the industrial east, including New York, Connecticut, New Jersey, and Massachusetts, to win the election, regardless of what the Middle West may do. Missouri and Ohio might also fall into the liberal column, together with California, with its great wine-growing industry.

Why not try it? ask those who believe that already a reaction has set in against drastic prohibitory laws. The solid South will be Democratic, whatever the issue; give us also the votes of the big states that we can win on a liberal platform, say for 4 or 5 per cent beer and wine, and we can let the rest of the country go hang. That's the way the situation is being sized up by a powerful and active element of the party. If their plan should be adopted, the campaign might still be waged with some other issue predominating on the surface, but in all states believed to incline to a liberal view on prohibition, no effort would be spared to get before the voters the underlying question at stake.

Fight Not for Repeal.

The campaign would not be for repeal of the eighteenth amendment, but would be based on the right of the states to adopt their own enforcement measures without Federal interference, as well as on opposition to the present congressional definition of intoxicating liquor as anything that contains more than one-half of one per cent of alcohol.

Of course, Bryan, who wants the Democrats at San Francisco to write a dry plank into the national platform, would virtually be read out of the party if it went on record for the policy that has been suggested. That fact has been discounted in advance. Bryan is already at loggerheads with the present controllers of the party, and a clean break with him would not prejudice Democratic chances in any State that might be carried on the proposed anti-booze dry issue.

Suit in Supreme Court.

But whether the National Democratic platform makes an issue of prohibition or not, it is still very much in politics. Congressman Vare's announcement is significant of what will be happening in many congressional districts of the United States.

The prohibition amendment prohibits the sale, manufacture and transportation of "intoxicating" liquors. What does intoxicating mean? The present Congress, when it passed the drastic Volstead enforcement law, applicable both to wartime and to constitutional prohibition, said that any beverage containing more than one-half of 1 per cent of alcohol is intoxicating. The Supreme Court has held that Congress had the right to make such a definition under its wartime powers. But had it the right, under constitutional prohibition, to declare to be intoxicating that which in fact, as contended in the case of 2.75 beer, is not intoxicating?

That is one of the questions raised in the suit brought by the brewery interests of the United States, in the name of Christian Fiegenspan, a corporation, which had its first hearing Feb. 3 in the Federal District Court at Trenton, N. J. Wet interests have characterized this suit as the most formidable attack yet launched against the Eighteenth Amendment and the legislation enacted thereunder. Whatever decision may be reached in the lower courts, the issue will not finally be decided till the Supreme Court has rendered its opinion on the inevitable appeal.

Arguments for 2.75 Beer.

The brief filed for the plaintiff by Elihu Root and others attacks the Volstead definition of intoxicating liquors as "wholly without basis" and therefore arbitrary and unconstitutional. It asserts that the nonintoxicating quality of 2.75 per cent beer has been established beyond possibility of doubt by the experiments of experts. The theory that non-intoxicants may be prohibited because they resemble intoxicants in some particulars is derided. Grape juice, it is pointed out, looks like wine and syruped soda water like some varieties of mixed intoxicants. "And it may, perhaps, be properly mentioned as a reducto ad absurdum," continues the brief, "that water looks like gin."

There is some comfort for the wets in the fact that the Supreme Court divided five to four in deciding that Congress had the wartime power to define intoxicating liquors in any way it pleased. The change of only one vote would deprive Congress of this power in the exercise of its normal functions as a legislative body and would leave to the Federal Courts, and ultimately to the Supreme Court of the United States, the determination, upon expert evidence, of the alcoholic content required to make a beverage in fact an intoxicant.

Opposition to the passage of the Volstead law in Congress was based on the argument, presented in a minority report prepared by Representative Igoe of St. Louis, that Congress clearly went beyond its powers in fixing the one-half of 1 per cent definition. If the intent of Congress in enacting the prohibition amendment had been to forbid the manufacture and sale of all beverages outside the scope of that drastic definition, the minority contended, that intent should have been expressed in the amendment. As it stands, the amendment prohibits only "intoxicating" liquors. The minority drew the inference that the question was one for judicial and not for legislative determination.

Power of Definition.

Unless the Supreme Court should take away from Congress its self-assumed authority to define an intoxicant, the question is bound to be in politics with each succeeding congressional election. In other words,

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Democracy or Bureaucracy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I was exceedingly glad to read your sensible and truthful editorial of the 7th inst. entitled "Democracy or Bureaucracy." Except the professional politicians, nobody greatly cares whether or not the San Francisco convention nominates a winning ticket. There must be a Democratic party in the United States if our Constitution is to endure. That is the all-important question at this time. Let us reassert the ancient Democratic faith in its rigid and masculine purity by an unbending adherence to its own principles. The Democratic party is not dead. The country has need of it. The time is coming when the people will rejoice that it has lived and lived to some purpose. The Democratic party should renounce once and for all the "vagaries" and "paternalism" of the bureaucratic Bryan, and should repudiate all the reactionary tendencies, grouping sedition, espionage and every official encroachment on the individual prerogatives and freedom of choice along with prohibition. Bryan is a political "blunderer" and a chautauqua lecturer. He has made some serious political blunders, but the best thing he ever did for his country was when he resigned as Secretary of State under the Wilson administration—in the very "nick of time." Yes, we shall find out whether there is a Democratic party. Gov. Edwards of New Jersey will put that question at San Francisco. The independent vote holds the "balance of power" in this great and mighty nation today. Mark what I say. The tendency toward liberty is progressive and amongst educated men absolutely "irresistible."

GEORGE A. RITTER.

Real Test Yet to Come.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The sections of the Volstead law passed upon by the Supreme Court were those relating to the war-prohibition act. It would seem that the court held that in a war-time emergency property can be confiscated without compensation. This clearly has no relation to the eighteenth amendment, which is in no sense a war measure, and cannot be justified on the grounds on which the war-prohibition law was sustained.

The Supreme Court has never yet passed upon the greatest issue involved in prohibitory laws that can be raised under the Federal Constitution: "Can a citizen be deprived of his liberty or property without due process of law?" If that question is decided in the negative the eighteenth amendement is void and of no effect.

To decide that the eighteenth amendment is valid the Supreme Court must hold:

1. That 180 members of Congress, 86 less than a majority of both houses, can legally submit constitutional amendments to the State Legislatures.

2. That the Legislatures of states whose Constitutions declare that their citizens cannot be deprived of their liberty and property without due process of law, can lawfully ratify a measure that violates their State Constitution.

3. That the "unalienable rights" to life, liberty and property, guaranteed by the Federal Constitution, can be taken away by an amendment that is in direct violation of the letter and spirit of the fundamental rights that the Constitution was adopted to maintain.

E. J. SHRIVER.

As Others See Us.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Our young people should be trained to realize that there is a sort of entertainment which, to use the young people's own phrase, is "lots of fun," and at the same time quickens the perception and has a wholesome influence on character. The entertainment of which I speak is the study of Shakspeare, especially the comedies.

Could anything be more humorous than "Twelfth Night?" Yet it involves principles which show us how to deal with some of the questions of our own times. The liquor question is discussed everywhere, among all classes of society. And in "Twelfth Night" we have it all worked out, so that we can see just what effect drink has on a man of noble blood. Watch the development of the character of Sir Toby Belch. He is the cousin of that fine woman, the Lady Olivia. But he is a drunkard. In this man we have portrayed from a most generous standpoint what drink will make of an otherwise good man. Despite the fact that he is the cousin of the Countess Olivia, he loses his time in the company of servants and fools. He becomes an easy victim to the maid, Marie, and marries her. He flatters and deceives his old friend, Sir Andrew Aguecheek, simply that he may indulge his appetite for drink. He has not one strong point in his character. Drink has taken away every sense of honor, and he moves through the play a living example of the despicable effects of liquor. He is a veritable "Darling of the Booze," void of mentality, morality or principle. His life consists of pampering his animal appetite.

MR. LANSING'S DISMISSAL.

The logic of the President's forcing the resignation of Secretary Lansing because he called conferences of the Cabinet during the illness of Mr. Wilson forces the resignation of every member of the Cabinet who consented to the conferences and participated in them.

This conclusion is emphasized by Secretary Lane, who assumes equal responsibility with Secretary Lansing for the Cabinet meetings; who says he approved them as highly desirable and good under the circumstances and that other members of the Cabinet approved the proceeding.

On one important point there is a direct contradiction between the testimony of Secretary Lane and the story of the Associated Press. The latter states that at the first meeting of the Cabinet without the authority of the President, Dr. Grayson appeared and asked, for the President, by what authority it had been called, what business was before it and what business it could expect to transact without the President's participation. On the other hand, Secretary Lane says "they (the Cabinet meetings) were often attended by Dr. Grayson and messages were transmitted to the President on questions discussed."

The point is important, because, if the conferences were held contrary to the will of the President and under his protest, reason can be found for the President's anger concerning them and for his action in dismissing Secretary Lansing on account of them. There is no evidence in the correspondence between the President and the Secretary of State of anything of the kind. It is incredible that the Cabinet would meet against the expressed will of the President or even if the members suspected that he would oppose it. The President, if he could transmit questions and messages, could at any moment have stopped these conferences.

Nor is there any charge that Secretary Lansing or the Cabinet as a whole usurped the power of the President by performing any act which the President alone could perform under his constitutional powers. On the contrary, the President in his letter to Secretary Lansing reminds him that "no action could be taken without me by the Cabinet." There is no intimation that any such action was attempted by the Cabinet.

It is amazing, therefore, that the President practically accuses Mr. Lansing of usurpation of the President's authority under "constitutional law and practice."

The mere calling of Cabinet conferences has no constitutional significance. The Constitution does not mention the Cabinet and merely mentions the "heads of departments," who are created and whose duties are defined by statute. The headship of the Cabinet inheres in his office and the relation of members to him as Secretaries appointed by him. The method of meeting and consulting has grown up by practice, which is not necessarily inviolable. Cabinet conferences have been called during the disability of Presidents; in fact, in all cases of disability. It is so rational, under such circumstances, that to the ordinary mind the charge of usurpation or of improper motives, unless action supports such a charge, seems absurd.

The President does not charge improper motives on the part of Mr. Lansing. He stands on the extraordinary usurpation charges in the mere calling of informal Cabinet conferences.

In the light of present information, we must conclude that the usurpation charge is an excuse for Mr. Lansing's dismissal. We do not have to seek far for the real causes of his offending. They are found in the President's own statement of differences of opinion and of conduct in disagreement with the President since the Paris conference. Mr. Lansing has been guilty of the fatal offense in a Cabinet member of disagreeing with his chief, which is accentuated by conduct and by public information emphasizing his disagreement. The disagreement has been known and it has been a cause for special wonder that Mr. Lansing remained in the Cabinet so long after the Bullitt testimony before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee put the Secretary of State in the light of a critic of his chief on the latter's cherished points in the peace treaty and thus giving aid and comfort to his enemies.

It is manifest from the President's letter in which his resentment crops out that he and Mr. Lansing ought to part company and that the parting has been too long delayed. We can only assume that the usurpation charge is merely the occasion for a humiliating dismissal which Mr. Wilson has sought.

The retirement of Mr. Lansing will not cause much regret, but the manner of his taking off evokes public sympathy. In the light of the resignation correspondence, we believe public sentiment will incline to the conclusion that Mr. Lansing deserved kindlier consideration in the matter of the Cabinet conferences and that in his curt dismissal the manner was not justified by the excuse.

The incident is unfortunate. It comes at a time when the differences of the two men touching the peace treaty and the League of Nations will be seized upon to make capital for the opposition and to add to the difficulties of those who are trying to find a satisfactory solution of the treaty controversy. The relations of the President with his Cabinet members concern them alone, but when such an issue as that between Mr. Wilson and Mr. Lansing arises, it will be threshed out. In the critical situation of the treaty and of the Mexican problem, the threshing out of differences between the President and his Secretary of State tends to add fuel to the fire without useful purpose.

There is good reason to question the wisdom of Mr. Wilson's attack on Mr. Lansing, when a parting between friends who differ is an easy and dignified way out.

SIX MILES IN FOUR HOURS.

The most important thing about the election in the Third District was the publicity given to Gov. Gardner's experience in Worth County where it took him four hours to make six miles. We are told that when he got to his journey's end the Governor's attitude towards good roads had taken on a higher color. Now he is against "mud roads." He is now for good roads with a vengeance. It is a pity he didn't have this experience before he consented to the substitution of the McCullough road law for the Hawes road law.

There have been a good many important personages in the Third District the last fortnight, and most of them doubtless have had experiences similar to that of the Governor. Doubtless, too, they have been similarly affected. Six miles in four hours is a rough but persuasive ordeal. It is enough to make a believer of any doubter, enough to convert a devotee into a fanatic.

Six miles in four hours answers a sorry variety of questions in the tangled maze of which a world is groping. Primarily it answers the question as to why people are leaving the farms. Just imagine the gubernatorial state of mind at the end of that trip. One need not hesitate to say he was far from at himself. He was at outs with the whole scheme of things, though as a sophisticated person he urbanely concealed it. He was far from the form he would have been in had he made the trip on a decent road. His efficiency was impaired. He made a poor speech, compared with what he would have made under fair conditions of travel. So with all the other spellbinders. No man can spend four hours making six miles today and be in shape to deliver the goods.

And that is what the farmer is up against. Moreover, it is no isolated episode in the farmer's story. It is his steady diet, the bane of his existence, the haunting horror of his life. It is destroying him, surely, and not so slowly. And it is destroying the rest of us. Worth County, Mo., is not very far from Olive street. It is not very far from the greatest and the whitest of the Great White Ways. The distance can be very accurately determined. It is the distance between cause and effect.

Six miles in four hours is, or may be, an epitaph of our civilization.

FARM MIGRANTS TURN TO NEW YORK.

Instead of going West, many young farmers of this time are going East and to the very State of the man who gave the advice of directly opposite character, addressed particularly to farmers.

This curious phase of the movement to the land is recorded in a report of a large agency specializing in agricultural properties showing that of 908 farms whose sale it negotiated in New York State last year, 659 were purchased by persons from other states and from Canada. Of these purchasers, 43 were from Ohio, 38 from Wisconsin, 58 from Illinois, 54 from Michigan, 59 from Canada and 79 from Pennsylvania. Even Montana sent 10 men to invest in New York farms, four coming from Texas, three from each of Idaho and Wyoming and two from each of California and Oklahoma. It is easy to see why New York, with its nearby markets, admirable transportation system, improved communities and well-organized rural activities, should present attractions to the farm-home seeker and it may be conjectured that prices per acre are no higher than those now prevailing in the Middle West if, indeed, they are as high. This is not a great current of migration, but as a rill reversing the direction of the tremendous tides of humanity that have poured West since the foundation of the Government, it has interest and may foreshadow on a limited scale in New York the boomer movements to some Western states in past years. New York has now 24,000 vacant farms.

In the race for rural population during the coming census period the West has a rival to be reckoned with in New York, which surely is not suffering from lack of population, a rival which will be materially assisted by the exorbitant prices demanded for farm lands in many Western states.

SOCRATES AND HIS PUPILS.

SOCRATES: M. Maeterlinck thinks we shall find wine essential to the soul in this country, and one cannot help wondering what impression is made upon him by that particular quality in us which induces prohibition.

Glaucon: Possibly one of his profound penetration can tell us what it is we want.

Socrates: Let us hope he will render us that great service before he leaves our country. Nothing else would do us so much good at this time as to understand ourselves.

Polemarchus: True. We are not going to be able to restrain this tendency in ourselves until we discover its cause.

Socrates: Of course, we can't make OURSELVES out.

Polemarchus: No. Not only because it is ourselves, but because we have nobody to do it.

Socrates: The absence of anyone who could do it would in itself be a good clew to someone like M. Maeterlinck.

Thrasymachus: Certainly.

Socrates: He may be able to write a book about us, just as he did about bees.

Glaucon: Truly.

Socrates: We all recall with what astonishment we learned through him what bees are doing.

Glaucon: Yes.

Socrates: The parallel itself might attract him. That is, we are as busy as bees—but what about?

Polemarchus: About nothing, likely.

Socrates: If that is so, we ought to know it.

Thrasymachus: We ought, indeed.

Socrates: If it is not honey, but only bitterness, that we are storing up for ourselves, we need to be roused.

Glaucon: I have my grave suspicions that we are not storing up honey.

Socrates: So have I; but we are storing up something.

Glaucon: Do you imagine M. Maeterlinck would do that for us?

Socrates: One cannot say. He seemed pretty well stirred in Chicago yesterday when he defined a function in this country as a speech and a pitcher of water. He MAY want to help us.

Polemarchus: Like as not we shall hear something more from him when he gets into Kansas.

Socrates: Good! Kansas may in this instance said to be the queen bee.

Thrasymachus: Cleverly said.

Socrates: Tut-tut, Thrasymachus. Now let us buy a paper and see if Wilsonus and Lansing have exchanged any more valentines.

Possibly Secretary Daniels steered the course laid in such matters by Walt Whitman, who sang:

"Vivas to those who have failed,
And to those whose war vessels sank in the sea,
And to those who themselves sank in the sea,
And to all Generals who lost engagements,
And all overcome heroes,
And the numberless unknown heroes
Equal to the greatest heroes known."

Or something to that effect, so we have it from one of our readers, who seems to know about that.

YOU AND THE ALL.

(An Experiment in Meditation).

Lie still some quiet night when you are alone, and meditate, as I have done, and you may realize your place in the All of being and what it means. If you can realize it, you will find that it brings that "peace which is past understanding."

In the darkness you feel nothing, but you know that surrounding you on all sides is the invisible ether, that atmosphere within the atmosphere which science says is an infinite ocean of energy.

You are not, then, in a vacuum. Neither are you a separate thing that can be said to be inclosed by the ether. For you are part of the same ether. In its final analysis, says science, everything is etheric. And the ether is energy. Therefore you are energy—a part of the All—energy, and as indestructible as any other part of this energy which is eternal and infinite. You cannot escape from the All, nor can you be evicted from it.

But suppose, for the sake of argument, that you can be so evicted, try and imagine yourself missing from this All—energy; not merely gone from the place you occupy, but gone, taken out of the All—but where to? There is no place outside the All-of-things. You cannot think it. If you, a certain mass of energy, could be annihilated, it would leave a vacuum, an empty place in the All, which is unthinkable.

But, you may say, if I were annihilated, the surrounding ether, the containing All, which was immediately next to me, would rush in and fill the vacuum caused by my annihilation.

That might be possible if the annihilation were conceivable. But can you, can anyone—I cannot—conceive of a certain mass of energy, call it you or me, becoming nothing. Can something become nothing? It is unscientific, for science teaches us that no energy can be destroyed. It can only be changed in its mode of manifestation. Energy is indestructible. Hence you, as energy, an integral part of the energy of the universe, are indestructible.

Bearing these facts in mind, try the experiment of meditating yourself, so to speak, into the All, so that you can feel yourself an actual vital part of it. If you are successful—and this result may come about without this process of reasoning—you will, perhaps suddenly, but surely, feel a sense of safety and peace that can be found in no other way. It is worth trying.

THE LABOR PROBLEM.

SAMUEL CROWDER in The World's Work.

I FIRMLY believe that in the capitalistic system the greatest good for the greatest number will eventually be attained, that the communist system of holding is not well conceived because it necessarily involves a certain inherent perfection which is incompatible with anything that we know about human attributes, and that even if we take for granted that this perfection can be attained through education through say half a dozen generations we should in the meantime have so impoverished the people that it would take many years more to attain even our present average standard and that in the natural progression of our present system we shall long before then have attained legitimate ideals. Therefore, I conceive that it is right and proper and more in the interest of the poor than of the rich to oppose the extension of revolutionary socialism—disregarding the cranks of both sides and endeavoring to get at the truth. It is in reality a conflict of two economic theories.

The radical says that for every dollar paid the worker in wages the employer gets a dollar in profit. The employed outnumber the employing, therefore, in the interests of the masses the workers should take over the employer's interest—that is, all should be workers. If their premises are true, then their conclusion is correct. Their premises are not true. Any employer could destroy the argument by posting up what his expenses are—and in a few cases they do and have no trouble. But the majority do not; not from fear of the workers, but from fear of their competitors, they are afraid to reveal their accounts. Hence the lie lives and grows. A favorite Madison Square argument from the soap box is to hold up a hat and yell:

"I paid $3 for this hat; the man who made it got 24 cents. The employer got $2.76 cents. What are you going to do about it?

Now, the manufacturer of that hat knows that he rarely gets half as much as the worker got; he also knows that the speaker neglects the cost of the raw material, the cost of preparing the material, the cost of transportation and the cost of selling—all of which involve labor; that also he and everyone who handles either the material or the finished hat have to pay rent and taxes. But instead of posting his figures, that employer is more than likely to suggest that more Americanization is needed and would like to have someone play the Star-Spangled Banner!

SEEKING A NEW RELIGION.

AMADO NERVO in the Inter-American for February.

THERE was an admirable genius in the seventeenth century who influenced in a very powerful manner the philosophico-religious and social ideas of France—Locke—the true inventor of the rights of man, to whom Voltaire never failed to apply the epithet of wise: the "wise Locke."

Lockes are not produced by the drove. I know only too well; but the country that has produced a Francis Bacon, a Thomas Hobbes, a Locke, a Berkeley, a David Hume, a Newton, a Darwin, a Crookes, Ramsay (and I do not go on quoting in order not to fill the copy-book) may well give us a religious philosopher a great religious philosophy, or, if you prefer, a philosophical religion in accord with science, in accord with reason, in accord with the modern soul.

That this philosophical religion will be Christian in its essence none can doubt.

England, by her free investigation and her very broad spirit, with an evangelical tendency, is nearer than other nations to this essence of Christianity.

Let us, therefore, await the new religion with curiosity and interest, not without observing that its palpitations are already felt upon the verge of the soul in all Great Britain, and that there is to be noted in ideas that something of tremendous phosphorescence which precedes combustion and the radiant flame of new deals.

SOCIAL affairs are taking on a more normal aspect, now that the danger crest of the influenza epidemic has passed, and while many have been dubious about risking contact with crowds, they are beginning to lose the fear and are making new plans for belated parties. A number of debutantes and belles were disappointed when the fancy dress ball that the Bellerive Country Club was to have had last evening was postponed, but there were quite a few other parties given and Valentine's day proved a gay one in spite of unfavorable conditions.

The thirteenth annual automobile show will begin at the Southern Hotel tomorrow evening and society no doubt will be well represented at the opening. The decorations this year are to be unusually attractive, especially the entrance, which will be made into a lattice work of flowers and greens, in front of which will stand an aquarium of gold fish, with an electric fountain in the center.

Though few affairs of size are scheduled for the week, a treat is promised next Saturday night in the annual ball at the Artists' Guild.

The moon has been chosen as a setting for the ball with guests from the other celestial bodies. The Guild balls have a plot, and are a picturesque blending of the play and the dance. There are 50 people in the cast this time, with Mrs. Ford Thompson as the moon and Robb B. Leonard as the sun, in leading roles. There is a dance of the pleiades, and one by the signs of the zodiac, all costumed by the Guild artists in the characterizations.

The color scheme of the ball is in eight tones, one from each of the planets—Mars, red; Mercury, silver with red note; Venus, rose to pink; Uranus, the shades of blue; Jupiter, purple; Saturn, black, gray and brass; Neptune, sea green; Earth, brown and tawny yellow. All those attending are required to be attired in one of these tones. An elaborate collection of designs for costumes from the planets, done by the artists at the Guild, is on exhibition there for the benefit of those who will attend. The ball will begin at 9 o'clock with a whimsy among moonshiners, who are in good standing upon the moon.

From this comedy the play proceeds to the dance of the moonbeams, harbingers of the moon, who are Miss Bertha Bates, Mrs. Laurence Ewald and Mrs. Ralph Thompson. It is then that Mrs. Thompson appears as the moon and invites to the ball "all those in the sky," who respond in groups, each led by its planet and all led by the sun. The dance of the zodiac is considered by the Guild people to be one of the most original things they have done.

The zodiacal insignia is by Dawson Watson. Sebastio Sampaio, the Brazilian Consul, has one of the chief comedy parts, that of Aries, the Ram. Mrs. Arthur Proetz is Scorpio, and Miss Sophie Isaacs is Libra. Miss Alice Martin is stage manager of the ball. The scenario is by Clark McAdams.

An unusual number of engagements were announced last week. One of particular interest is that of Miss Corinne Fuller and Joseph Glaser Jr., announced at a luncheon given yesterday by Miss Helen Waldheim of 4522 Lindell boulevard. Decorations for the luncheon were in Valentine's colors and the announcement was made on the place cards. The 60 guests were seated at a large table, in the center of which was a sunken garden.

Miss Fuller is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Fuller, 32 Washington terrace. She was graduated from Mary Institute in 1917 and attended Washington University. She did not make a formal debut, but both she and Mr. Glaser are popular members of the Columbian Club circle. Mr. Glaser is the son of Mrs. Carrie Glaser, 5106 Washington boulevard, and is a graduate of Harvard. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Fuller will give a reception in honor of the young couple Saturday evening, Feb. 21, from 8 to 11 o'clock. No invitations will be issued.

Among the other engagements announced were those of Miss Constance Scudder, daughter of Mrs. William A. Scudder, 4063 Washington boulevard, who will marry Maurice F. Block of Paragould, Ark.; Miss Josephine Sylva, 3818 Maffitt avenue, who will marry J. Huut Benoist; Miss Marie Grone, daughter of Mrs. Adelaide Grone, 3723 West Pine boulevard, whose engagement to Malcolm McMenamy, 5447 Cabanne avenue, was announced at a dinner party Wednesday evening, and Miss Anne Forrestal, who will be married to Albert R. Scanlon of New York City this spring.

Conspicuous among the weddings of the week was the marriage yesterday of Miss Marion Bridge, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hudson E. Bridge, 13 Westmoreland place, and Theodore Weld Sterling of New York, which took place at high noon at St. Peter's Church, the Rev. Dr. Z. B. T. Phillips officiating. Miss Marian Gregg attended the bride as maid of honor and her frock was of cream lace over pale blue chiffon, trimmed with French flowers and a sash of pink satin, with long streamers, which formed a sort of train. The bridesmaids, Misses Isabel Mauran, Elizabeth Kennard, Dorothy Pillet, Hester Brown of Detroit, Mich., Ruth Lionberger and Lorinia Cross of Providence, R. I., wore frocks of flesh-colored chiffon and cream lace with sashes of blue. They all wore hats of chiffon and lace, trimmed with French flowers, and carried bouquets of pink roses and forget-me-nots.

The bride's gown was of creamy satin with bodice of rose point lace. The skirt was draped and beaded in seed pearls and a train of the lace fell over the foundation train of satin. Her veil was held in place by a coronet of lace, trimmed with tiny bunches of orange blossoms. She carried a shower of white roses and lilies of the valley.

A reception and wedding breakfast followed at the home of the bride's parents, after which the young couple departed on a honeymoon. They will be at home after March 1 at 205 West Fifty-seventh street, New York City.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Thompson and son, accompanied by Mrs. Thompson's mother, Mrs. Aubuchon, and sister, Miss Dimple Aubuchon, have gone to New York to reside.

Mrs. John Rutledge, 4016 Mc Pherson avenue, departed yesterday for Tulsa, Ok., to visit her daughter.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Todd Clark, 4936 West Pine boulevard, accompanied by their son, Charles Todd Clark Jr., are sojourning in the South and will be in New Orleans with friends for Mardi Gras. Mr. and Mrs. Clark will return in two weeks, but Charles Todd Clark Jr. will remain in the South on business.

Mrs. Thomas Stephen Martin of New York, who was Miss Queenie Deacon, departed for her home Friday, after a several weeks' visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur R. Deacon, of Kettering Lodge, Webster Groves. Mrs. Deacon will depart March 1 for the East, to remain until fall, when she will return to St. Louis. Mr. and Mrs. Deacon have sold their home in Webster.

Of interest to the younger set is the marriage of Miss Jessamyn Ferguson and George Dorrill, who were married yesterday morning at 10:30 o'clock at the home of the Rev. Alfred T. Smith, 5535 Waterman avenue. Only the immediate families were present at the ceremony and the bride was attended by Miss Leslie Price as maid of honor. Mel Taylor served Mr. Dorrill as best man. Mrs. Dorrill is the daughter of Mrs. Jesse J. Ferguson of 720 Westgate avenue and is a graduate of Mary Institute. Mr. Dorrill is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Dorrill. The young couple have departed on a wedding trip and on their return they will be at home temporarily with bride's mother.

The marriage of Miss Bertha Black, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Black, 939 Beach avenue, and James C. Bassford, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Bassford of 6 Shaw place, was solemnized at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the Second Baptist Church. The Rev. Dr. Bitting performed the ceremony in the presence of the relatives of the couple. There were no attendants. The couple are spending their honeymoon in the South and on their return will be at home at 6 Shaw place. Mr. and Mrs. Homer Bassford entertained with a reception in honor of the young couple on Friday evening.

Many children are looking forward to the revival of "Jack and the Beanstalk" which the Junior Players will give at the Artists' Guild Theater Saturday afternoons, Feb. 28 and March 6 under the direction of Miss Alice Martin and Joseph Solari. Unique costumes and artistic stage settings have been designed for it by Miss Marguerite Breen and Laurence Ewald of the Guild. In the cast will be Florence Rein, Pauline Parker, Helene Higgins, William Rudolph, Victor Woerheide, Catherine Bright, Melba Goertner, Margaret Clare McGinnins, Marion Marquard, Doris Remspecher, Adrianne Nottebrok, Maxine Williams and Jeanne Woerheide.

Announcement of the engagement of Miss Carma V. Willecken to Frank Schramm Jr. was made at a Valentine card luncheon given by Mrs. A. D. Willecken at their home in St. Louis County last week. Miss Willecken is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Willecken, 7349 Elm avenue. Mr. Schramm is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Schram, 814 Clara avenue.

The engagement of Miss Inez Rae Connings of 5254 Page boulevard to Dr. L. E. Gates of Kokomo, Ind., was announced at a St. Valentine luncheon given at Miss Conning's home Friday evening. The date of the wedding has not been set. Those present were: Misses Beatrice Sanborn, Esther Kulser, Cleone Moore, Keys Williams, Corinne Wolf, Katherine Hendricks, Ivy Freker, Louise Temple and Edna Schiwitz.

Mr. and Mrs. George E. Dieckman and son, 4537 West Pine boulevard, are sojourning at the Royal Poinciana, Palm Beach, Fla.

The Wednesday Club will resume its meetings this week, but Mrs. W. W. Boyd, chairman of the study classes in "Citizenship," announces that the classes have been postponed to the first four Tuesdays in March. The science section, Mrs. W. C. Rumsey, chairman, will have charge of the regular literary meeting Wednesday at 3 o'clock. Dr. J. Paul Goode, of the department of geography, University of Chicago, will deliver an illustrated lecture on "America as a World Power." Miss Ettie A. Jordan, 4950 Lindell boulevard, will furnish guest cards. The annual business meeting of the current topic section, Mrs. G. O. Carpenter Jr., chairman, will be held Thursday at 2:30 o'clock. Dr. and Mrs. Walter E. Hennerich of 3603 Utah place are receiving congratulations on the arrival of a son, whom they are going to name Walter E. Jr. Mrs. Hennerich will be remembered as Miss Ethel M. Rae.

The ladies of the G. A. R. were entertained at a banquet given to the fathers and sons at Grace Holy Cross Mission, 2600 North Twelfth street, on Lincoln's birthday, at which Mrs. Mary A. Wanless, department instructor, presented Grace Church a silk flag, a gift from Mrs. Louisa Stiller of San Antonio, Tex., and the ladies of the G. A. R. of St. Louis.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene R. Ganz of the Earl apartments gave a reception and dinner Saturday evening for Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ruppenthal, who have just returned from California where they have been on their honeymoon. Mrs. Ruppenthal was Miss Emily Beckman of 1424 Farragut street.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Antoinette A. Tierney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Tierney at 1213 North Newstead avenue, to Charles V. Guittar, son of Mr. and Mrs. Guittar of 4062A Easton avenue, which took place Wednesday at 6 o'clock mass at St. Ann's Church. Father Walsh officiating. Miss Genevieve Tuimel attended the bride as maid of honor and F. Haggerty served as best man. A wedding breakfast followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents.

About 75 society women gathered Friday morning at the residence of Mrs. W. K. Bixby on Lindell boulevard to listen to Mrs. Dave Hannon Morris of New York discuss women's housing conditions in St. Louis and to take part in the initial scene of the big society movie drama that will be depended upon to play a part in the campaign that will be staged next month to raise the half million dollar endowment fund for the two hotels for working women that are being planned to help the city solve the problem of the present shortage of sleeping and living accommodations for women in industry in St. Louis. The film, which will be shown extensively in St. Louis moving picture houses during the campaign, will be entitled "No Address," and will depict the vicissitudes, it is said, of the woman who searches nowadays for comfortable lodgings in the city. The first scene was taken in the big art gallery of the Bixby home. It depicted an indignation mass meeting of St. Louis women which gathered as a result of the trials of the heroine in looking for a rooming place. Among the prominent women who came under the eye of the camera and will be seen in the film when it is released are Mmes. W. K. Bixby, Charles P. O'Fallon, Thomas G. Ratcliff, Lon O. Hocker, Willard Bartlett, D. C. Ives, J. M. Herbert, Vincent Price, Warwick Hough, W. A. Stickney, J. O. King, R. M. Wilson, F. H. Dodge Robert Hedges, D. H. Bixby, Hector Pasmezoglu, D. Jannopoulo, William Barnett, Robert Bagnell, Guy Blackmer and Misses Nancy and Dorothy Walker, Edwin Hayward and Anna Block.

A new beverage has been invented and will be presented to the public for the first time at the Atlantic City Board Walk. The new drink is winning glowing encomiums from the friends of Mrs. Thomas L. Anderson and Mrs. Blaisdel Shapleigh, its discoverers, who have been privileged to taste the concoction of oranges, lemons and other materials that the founders have christened "Keskusay." It is being extensively praised by these same friends as delicious and refreshing, and will be the staple offering at the Atlantic City Board Walk Orange and Lemonade Shop, which has been placed in the charge of Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Shapleigh. Assisting in the carrying on of the affairs of the Orange and Lemonade Shop will be an organization of prominent St. Louis women. It will include the following women: Mmes. Robert E. Adreon, Francis Bryan Jr., Maffitt Bates, William J. Carton, J. Ar-

Announcing The February Silk Sale

The Silk Classic of St. Louis

FROM many corners of the world have the Silks for the sale been gathered. It is in truth an exposition as well as a sale—as glorious as artists can design them, as perfect as skill can make them and they are the answers to the new season's call for fabrics. As the season for them approaches, we find the manufacturers' prices climbing higher and higher. Thus you will appreciate more than ever the values offered at this time. Foresight and months of planning for this event have made it possible for us to put a selling price on many of the Silks which is less than the purchasing price we would have to pay if we were buying today. This Classic is put forward for the advantage of the general public and we will not sell in quantities to dealers who may desire to add to their stocks. This sale begins Monday morning at 9 o'clock. No mail or phone orders filled.

Many other offerings, besides those listed below, to be found in this sale, appear in today's Globe-Democrat. It is to your interest to know of all the Silks that will be offered at special prices.

The reconstruction period has been taken advantage of by the women of the Goodsonian Literary Society, which reorganized last week, after having abandoned all activities of a literary character during the period of the war. The reorganization was the result of a petition asking for that action which received 150 signatures upon being circulated among former members of the society. These and other former members met last Tuesday and chose the following executive board: Mmes. Taylor Barnard, L. E. Mitchell, Alfred Buschman, B. P. Fullerton, Charles Runk, F. V. de Broullett, John McDowall, Ernest Birge, Charles Allen and George Williams. The Goodsonian, which now has an active membership of 300, will meet the last Tuesday of each month at the King's highway Christian Church.

Of interest to St. Louis friends was the marriage of Miss Lillian Grenzebach and Harry C. Ploetze, which took place at the Ebenezer Evangelica Church, 2915 McNair avenue, last Saturday. Mrs. Ploetze is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Grenzebach of 3327 Missouri avenue.

Mr. Ploetze is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Ploetze of 3827 Indiana avenue.

The meeting the Barr Study Circle, which was to have been held Feb. 17, at the home of Mrs. Kate Davis, 1032 Morrison avenue, has been postponed on account of the influenza. The circle will meet at the Barr Branch Library Feb. 23.

Mr. and Mrs. John Lohrum, 3008 Kossuth avenue, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Hulda Lohrum, to Wilton A. Kamman, at a party last Tuesday evening.

The guests were Misses Frieda Sommer, Nina Sabeck, Florence Lohrum, Stella Pietsch, Dorothea Plasterer., Viola Horn, Hilda Ruebling, Irene Mueller, Clara Otto and Emma Lohrum.

The regular meeting of the College Club of St. Louis will be held Tuesday, Feb. 17, at 3:30 o'clock, at the Church of the Unity. Miss Leah Yoffie will review "Dead Souls," by Nikola Gogol.

The Minerva Literary was entertained at the last regular meeting by Joseph C. McKean, 5602 Kingsbury Court. Mrs. C. S. Jones was leader and "Current Events" was the roll call.

Mrs. Lottie Grimes Mitchel, welfare specialist, morale division U. S. Naval base, Hampton Roads, Va., was a guest of the club, Mrs. Mitchell was founder and first president of the Minerva Club. Mrs. George Coleman, 4215 Russell avenue, will be the next hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. William Lonergan of Gambleton place entertained at dinner Friday evening, Feb. 6, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Carr, who appeared at the Orpheum Theater recently in the dramatic sketch, "An April Shower." Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Apel, Mrs. J. Ireland and Miss Olympia Monte.

PROHIBITION NOT DEAD IN POLITICS IN THE SOUTH

candidates in many districts of the United States will be found running on percentage platforms, as Vare has said that he intends to do in Pennsylvania. The issue may be one-half of 1 per cent against 3 or 4 per cent, according to the taste of the candidate and the temper of his district. Or, in some fanatically dry districts, candidates may see in one-half of 1 per cent a menace to public health or morals, and run for Congress on a pledge to favor the reduction of the permitted alcoholic content to an infinitesimal trace.

The question will remain in politics, eternally unsettled, as long as there is any active sentiment against the present definition; for no Congress is bound by the acts of its predecessors. It is hard to see, therefore, the basis for the statement attributed to Attorney General Palmer in Missouri that "prohibition is a dead issue."

Not Dead Issue.

As regards national platforms, it may indeed be dead, for neither party may dare to promulgate it as an issue. But the percentage question is certain to arise, a very live issue, in spots throughout the United States where active bodies of voters are unwilling to accept as final the Volstead dictum against the mild beverages that President Wilson championed in his vain appeal to Congress.

If these voters should organize as the Anti-Saloon League has organized, that highly efficient bipartisan body will have full need of its perfected new fund of $25,000,000. There are more than 100 districts in the United States where Congressmen were elected in 1918 by less than 2000 majority. An overturn of 1000 votes would have sent a different man to Congress.

This is not to say that there is not any organized national movement to undo the work of the Anti-Saloon League, or that there will be. But both sides, the league and the liberal forces, are fully alive to the possibilitites of the situation. It is within the province of the next Congress, unless the Supreme Court intervenes, to set a new definition of "intoxicating," and for the Congress after that to set another, and so on. That is why prohibition is in politics.

DAISY ASHFORD SAYS SHE WROTE "YOUNG VISITERS"

the Fletcher family became a reality even in my own mind. The others, of course, had believed from the very start. But, alas, as life and experience accumulated, it began to dawn on one of my younger sisters that perhaps there never were any Fletchers. My stories thereafter were less autobiographical."

"To what extent were your parents responsible for your devotion to stories?" I asked.

"That's hard to tell, of course. They were the dearest comrades in the world to me. Father was deep in classical studies. But he had a keen sense of humor and let me use him as a secretary before I could write for myself. So did my mother. My first story, 'Mr. Chapman's Bride,' was dictated by me to her when I was 7. I don't remember much of it except that it was wild, eccentric and romantic. It came to full novel length, as did most of the others. Next year I dictated another bookful to my father. 'A Short Story of Love and Marriage' it was called. It was all about a young couple who arranged their own love affair and wrote to a minister asking if he could find a little time to marry them. He wrote them that he had five minutes to spare; so they stepped into his house on their way to India and were married. They went to India for their honeymoon and had twins in something like seven hours. I thought it rather exciting to have children and supplied my characters freely with them.

"So I Wrote 'Visiters.'"

"When I was 9 I had learned enough, as I believed, to write a book with my own hand. So I wrote 'The Young Visiters.' I don't remember if I put any of my family into it. I rather think I made my governess the heroine. I was always dramatizing my governess. Where I got the hero, other than out of my head, I can't remember. A number of young men visited at our house; and I imagine that I must have cooked together several of them to make my leading male characters. My conception of the life of London was made of scraps of conversation I had overheard and bits of pictures I had glimpsed. As for the adventures on which I launched my characters, they came from the same source as the Fletcher boys."

DAISY ASHFORD SAYS SHE WROTE "YOUNG VISITERS"

"And who looks like bits of sophistication in 'The Young Visiters'?" I asked.

She laughed with keen enjoyment at the absurd young person we were discussing.

"Absolutely unconscious," she said. "I was the most innocent youngster in the world."

Favored Blood Curdling.

"But there are too many such bits in the book for accident," I argued.

"It must have been the young monkey and parrot, such as you find in every child," she suggested. "I may have heard some of the grownups; and without in the least understanding the spirit I must have echoed the words. So far as my personal tastes went at about that time, I inclined to the blood curdling. The manuscript of my next book has been lost. All I remember of it is the title, 'Jealous Mr. Marling,' and that one of the footmen in the story became violently ill and one of the women guests attended him, treating him with a poultice. There was murder at the end; but how it came there, except that my taste for it was growing, I don't know.

"Then came 'The True History of Leslie Woodcock,' which was all about a romantic elopement. The young couple tied all their belongings in a couple of big tablecloths and walked all the way to London. He had £40 and spent 4 pence on a night's lodging. It wasn't much of a room, the bed was in rags and there was no water to wash in. They were both very angry at it. The heroine didn't mind sleeping on the rag bed but objected to the lack of washing facilities. The hero didn't mind the lack of water but refused to sleep in the bed. So he spent the night on the floor. The next day they went out sightseeing and, passing a church with the door open, stepped in and got married.

"After that book came 'Where Love Lies Deepest,' dedicated to my favorite governess. It was very romantic and not at all funny. My next and last book was 'The Hangman's Daughter.' It took me a year to write it and it made a very thick book, about 600 pages, typewriter size, and fairly closely written. I don't think it was at all interesting as I was getting to be 14 and was taking my material seriously.

Writes Only Letters Now.

"Soon after I was sent to convent school. I had already been taught Latin by my father and read Caesar in the original at 9. I became tremendously interested in my school life, sports, studies and social activities. I was younger than most of the other girls and had to work hard to catch up with them, so that I found no more time or inclination to keep on writing. In fact, composition became a dull matter to me. The subjects were not interesting; life was. I was drawn to living and away from scribbling. And that was the end of my career as author.

"Since then I have never felt in the least inspired to write anything but letters to my friends. I haven't the slightest ambition to become an authoress or even to do newspaper work. I have often thought it must be interesting to be in journalism. But it is the changing scene that attracts me and the writing not at all. Up to a few weeks ago I was private secretary to the head of a big engineering firm; and I enjoyed the work. But since 'The Young Visiters' came out there have been so many letters to write and people to meet that I gave up my work. Really, I feel exactly as though I had inherited something from some very distant relative with no merit or effort on my part. It is just a funny, delightful bit of luck and I'm enjoying it to the limit.

It was pleasant to watch her enjoyment.

Her Sense of Humor.

"Was it from your father you got your sense of humor?" I asked.

"Such as it is, I think rather from my mother. She was a wonder in her way. Her fund of fun and laughter was so great that even if I'd been born solemn as an owl I should have been simply inoculated with it. She, father and my aunt extemporized all the time the most excruciatingly funny nonsense verse. In my mother's last days she suffered terribly. Her room was above mine. One night I heard the night nurse screaming. We ran up to the room in alarm and found mother sitting up in bed, smiling at the nurse.

Ciccolini
Sings at the Orpheum Theater This Week In Test With The NEW EDISON

Ciccolini singing in tone test with the New Edison, proving the perfect Re-Creation of his voice.

Hear him at the Orpheum Theater this week.

The instrument used in all tone tests is the regular model, selling at $295, which is called the official laboratory model.

HEAR CICCOLINI THIS WEEK

Hear him. Signor Ciccolini of the Chicago Opera Co. is recognized as one of the greatest of operatic tenors.

AN OPPORTUNITY

No expense has been spared by the Orpheum Theater management to secure him. This week is indeed a wonderful opportunity for music lovers.

SPECIAL FEATURE

A special feature of Ciccolini's work will be his singing side by side with the New Edison in direct comparison. Witness the wonderful demonstration.

The audience finds it impossible to distinguish any difference between the voice of the living Ciccolini and that of the Re-Created Ciccolini.

IN YOUR OWN HOME

You may have Ciccolini and a score of other world famous artists in your home, ready to sing or play at your command if you have a New Edison, the only phonograph which actually Re-Creates music.

Call at our shop any day. It is our pleasure to demonstrate the New Edison. We will arrange terms for the convenience of our patrons.

DAISY ASHFORD SAYS SHE WROTE "YOUNG VISITERS"

who was convulsed with laughter and holding her sides. Mother had started her off laughing with her nonsense verses and jokes until the nurse was literally doubled up in 'stitches.' To her last minute my mother's sense of fun was indomitable and she kept up her jokes and nonsense rhymes even in her keenest suffering."

Daisy Ashford was not the only writer in the Ashford nursery. Several days ago at a reading by Miss Ashford there was also read a tale, "The Jellous Governess," written by her sister, Angela Ashford, at the age of 8. In several respects the book is quite as notable as "The Young Visiters." The plot is simple. At the beginning of the story Mr. and Mrs. Hole are sitting before the fire, he reading his newspaper, she the Strand. Suddenly she tells him she wants a baby. He concurs and suggests an adopted one. She prefers one of her own and almost immediately "the doctor's bold step was heard at the door." He has a cardboard box tied up. "I hear you want a baby," he says. "Is it a boy or a birl?" asked Mrs. Hole. "I don't know," the doctor replies, and, putting the box on the eiderdown, goes away; "slamming the door with his feet because he was holding his top hat with both hands."

Sad Case of Mr. Hole.

Six months later Mr. Hole, who "smoked to a low degree, being rather a cockney man," decides they must have a governess for the infant. Mrs. Hole protests that it is too young for one, but finally agrees with her husband. So he dresses in his best to go to town to find one, "looking more like a Duke and not a mere mister." He tells his wife that he has put on a clean shirt and a pair o scarlet socks with a hole, but it doesn't show." As there was a button off his trousers one leg was shorter than the other. In the search for the governess one is dismissed because she has "boisterous feet;" another because she is "cowlike." Finally the "jellous governess," Miss Junick, is chosen. When asked what pay she wants she answers, "Either five pounds or fourteen. But I don't do much for five."

Her tragedy begins the first moment of her service. She wants a baby of her own instead of having to tend another's. So she goes to the doctor. "Could you get me a baby?" she asks. "Well," he replies, "the question is, are you married?" Miss Junick says no; and the doctor is sorry; he can do nothing in that case. "I would marry you myself," he says sympathetically, "but I have a wife." Miss Junick decides on a bold course. "I wasn't thinking of what I was saying," she declares. "I am married." So the next day, in a chapter headed, "The Private Arrival of Miss Junick's Baby," there comes a page boy with a box.

Unfortunately the baby proves to be ugly and a bill for £1 that comes in the box with the baby proves too much for Miss Junick and she throws the baby away. In its place she steals Mrs. Hole's baby and the mother dies of grief. Mr. Hole "loses his hair and seldom brushes what remains." His nose becomes "red and large" and he sits by his cold grate muttering, "Would that I had Miss Junick by the scruff of her neck." One day the door is thrown wide open and a young man rushes in. "Father, don't you know me!" he cries. "I am very glad to see you back, my son!" Mr. Hole says, and the story ends in a joyous scene.

As for me, after my interview with Miss Daisy Ashford, I have joined the ranks of the few who believe that she wrote "The Young Visiters" at the age of nine; though how that was possible for any youngster I still do not understand.

CHURCHILL AGAIN SAYS LABOR IS UNFIT TO GOVERN NATION

British War Secretary Declares Allies Will Regret Failure to Crush Bolshevik Peril at Start.

DUNDEE, Scotland, Feb. 14.—Winston Spencer Churchill, the Secretary for War, addressing his constituents here today, declared that labor was unfitted to govern the nation. This was a reiteration of the statement he made recently which aroused a furore in the press and a storm of indignation among the labor interests.

Referring to his policy toward Russia, which has been the object of strong criticism, Churchill said:

"I never believed in sending British troops to Russia, but short of that I have done everything in my power to help the local anti-Bolsheviki forces. It was a matter of honor that we supply them with arms and equipment, but each and all of the great allied Powers will rue the fact that they could not take more decided, united action to crush the Bolshevik peril at its heart before it had grown too strong."

Be Honest With Yourself

Have you ever thought of the real cause of the position you occupy in this life? What is it that interferes with your being a greater success? Could it not be some defect that stands out prominent before the public which if corrected would add to your efficiency? Imperfect features and those unsightly facial blemishes so common to us all as moles, scars, pimples, crooked noses, sagging cheeks, baggy eyelids, double chins, hollow cheeks, frown lines, all blemishes and imperfections of the skin and features can be corrected without pain, delay or bandages and at little expense. 15 years' experience. Consultation hours—10 to 1, 2 to 5.

INSTITUTE FOR TRUCK DRIVERS OPENS TUESDAY

The first of a series of thirteen conferences to be conducted for the benefit of drivers of commercial cars on topics dealing with public safety, as well as operation and maintenance of motor vehicles, will be given by the Packard Drivers' Institute on the fourth floor of their building, Tuesday night, at 7:30. The topic will be under the direction of P. Sylvester Jones, will be "The Motor." How gasoline is turned into power and a practical motor study with an assembled motor and parts will constitute a part of the program.

Carburetion, ignition, the water cooling system, lubrication, clutch and transmission, differential and the chassis will be discussed separately at conferences to be held ensuing Tuesday nights. The course will end May 4 when those who have completed thirteen sessions of the institute will be presented with graduation certificates. The purpose of the institute is to increase the ability of drivers in general in the interest of public safety as well as the truck owner.

Three hundred and twenty six drivers of commercial cars were enrolled for the course at the opening of the institute last Tuesday night.

THE UNITED HEBREW TEMPLE WILL give an entertainment and dance, for the benefit of the new temple building, at Moolah Temple, Feb. 22.

LUMBER CONSPIRACY CHARGED

Anti-Trust Action in Memphis Against "Open Competition" Plan.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 14.—Three hundred and thirty-three hardwood lumber companies and individuals in 16 states are named as defendants in a bill filed in Federal District Court here today charging a conspiracy to restrain trade in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law through the operation of an "open competition" plan in which the defendant concerns are alleged to have joined.

ALDERMEN'S PAY BILL HITS SNAG IN BOARD

Kiel and Nolte of Estimate Body Declare Against Proposed 100 Per Cent Increase.

The bill to increase the salaries of members of the Board of Aldermen from $1800 to $3600 a year, and the salary of the President of the board from $3000 to $5000 a year, which has been introduced by Alderman Tamme, is opposed by Mayor Kiel and Comptroller Nolte, who form a two-thirds majority of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. The third member of the board is President Aloe of the Board of Aldermen, who favors the measure.

All bills involving expenditure of city money must receive the approval of the Board of Estimate. The total increase of salaries, under the Tamme bill would be $52,400 a year.

Mayor Kiel said: "I am opposed to the bill. I think that when the Board of Freeholders fixed the salaries of Aldermen it meant that those should be the maximum salaries."

Comptroller Nolte said: "I will note vote to approve the bill. New York Aldermen receive only $2000 a year. In Chicago the Aldermen recently received an increase to $3600 a year, but Chicago is noted for high public salaries and its political atmosphere."

Aloe said, in support of the bill, that the salaries of Police and Circuit Judges have been increased on the ground of their added duties and because of the cost of living.

Aldeman Groschel said he had found that an Alderman is always busy, and is subject to the call of constituents day and night.

The bill provides that the Aldermen shall perform added duties, in connection with the revision and codification of the city ordinances. This provision for added duties, it is believed, would enable the Aldermen to receive an increase of salary during their present terms of office. The Supreme Court has deciedd that the salary of an official cannot be increased for the term for which he was elected, unless it can be shown that he is required to perform duties in addition to those originally specified by the city charter.

Aldermen have their private business and professional interests, and there is no charter provision which requires them to give their entire time to city work.

The Board of Aldermen holds one meeting a week, usually from 4 to 6 p. m. on Fridays. Committee meetings are held once a week, usually on Wednesday at 3 p. m., and last about an hour. There are occasional public hearings before committees, consuming two or three hours in the evening. One full day a week is the average time actually spent at the city hall by an Alderman.

Before the present charter went into effect in 1914 the salary of members of the Municipal Assembly was $[illegible] a year.

FORMER SERVICE MEN CALLED TO CONSIDER BONUS QUESTION

Mass Meeting at Coliseum Feb. 25 Not Being Sponsored by American Legion as Such.

A mass meeting of former service men has been called, to be held at the Coliseum at 8 p. m. Wednesday, Feb. 25, to take action in regard to proposed legislation pertaining to a bonus for soldiers. Col. Robert Burkham, chairman of the St. Louis executive committee of the American Legion, in a letter to Frank Lee, chairman of the special committee to arrange for the meeting, says that since the American Legion expressed the opinion that it cannot take action asking for legislation in behalf of its own members, he does not feel that he can act on his own responsibility.

"You will understand," says Col. Burkham, "that nothing I have said is to be construed as an opinion opposed to a bonus for soldiers. My personal belief is that an adequate bonus should be granted."

While the American Legion as such is not sponsoring the Coliseum meeting, individual members are giving it their support. The purpose is to have an open discussion of the question and it is expected to result in a petition being presented to Congress requesting action.

Telephone Strike in Five States.

By the Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 14.—A strike of electrical workers employed by the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co., in Nevada, California, Oregon, Washington and Idaho, went into effect today. The employes struck to enforce demands of an increase of $1 a day in wages.

February Sale of Furniture

EDITORIAL

MOST INTERESTING IS THE "BRIDE-TO-BE" AND HER PROSPECTIVE BRIDEGROOM.

Thousands of young women have visited this store shortly before they were married; for the sole purpose of inspecting and buying the furniture for their new home.

This is one of the most important, interesting and pleasant acts in any young couple's life.

They should choose carefully and intelligently, bearing always in mind the amount they can afford to spend. Never choose too extravagantly or beyond their means.

Most brides select with their fiances, and some are asssisted by their mothers or fathers.

Many of the parents of these young people bought PRUFROCK FURNITURE when they married some twenty to thirty years ago.

And, best of all, they still have this furniture and it is almost as good as new.

HOTEL RESIDENTS OBJECT TO CHICKENS

Complaint Filed by Guests at Buckingham Annex Against Fowls of Grain Broker.

On complaint of residents of the Buckingham Hotel Annex, a police court summons was prepared yesterday, ordering Thomas E. Price, a wealthy grain dealer, to appear in police court and answer a charge of maintaining a nuisance in keeping chickens, pigeons, ducks and dogs on the premises of his home, 25 North King's highway, adjoining the Annex on the south.

Some of the complainants told Assistant City Counselor Sadler that Price recently transferred the poultry and live stock from his farm in Kansas to his St. Louis home and this was extremely distasteful to them.

There is enough cackling, crowing and barking to constitute "loud and unusual noises" within the meaning of the ordinance, they said, and that isn't all. They told of odors diametrically opposed to those of "blest Araby." Also they are awakened too early.

The effect, they said, was that the south windows of the Annex could not safely be thrown open when the wind was from that direction.

Despite their aversion to restoring to Police Court to settle the matter, they finally decided that no other method would be effective, and they accordingly circulated a petition to the authorities to act on the situation.

Those whose names appear on the complaint are Mr. and Mrs. John McKenna, R. C. Dobson, Hugo Jacobson, Mrs. Rosa Mangson, A. W. Block, Mr. and Mrs. George Simmonds, Mrs. Emma Kahn, Mrs. Amelia Horwitz and Miss Bernice Goldsmith.

Price said he did not care to discuss the complaints.

SUES FOR DEED TO PROPERTY

J. Brooks Johnson Brings Action Against Mercantile Trust Co.

A suit was filed yesterday by J. Brooks Johnson to compel the Mercantile Trust Co. and Mrs. Eliza D. Allen to execute a deed to her real estate at 5801 Cabanne avenue to the plaintiff. He says that on Dec. 31 last he made a written contract with the trust company as agent for Mrs. Allen to buy the property and the deal was to be closed within a month. The consideration was to be $10,000, of which $250 was to be in cash as earnest money and the remainder in United States Government bonds.

The petition sets forth that when Johnson attempted to carry out his part of the contract the trust company declined to execute a deed to the property. Mrs. Allen, it is alleged, has not been in Missouri at any time within the 30-day period so that Johnson could tender the bonds to her. He offers to pay the bonds into court.

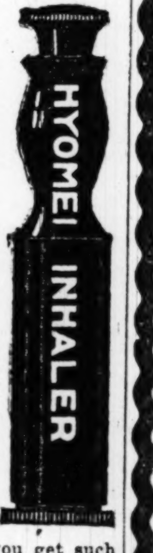
OUR BIG OFFER
Catarrh
ENDED OR GET YOUR MONEY BACK

What if a specialist in catarrhal afflictions, a real physician of character and integrity, should offer to relieve you of catarrh, or nothing to pay?

You would jump at the chance. Of course you would. You would be foolish if you didn't.

And now that the makers of Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me), say to you that Hyomei will end catarrh or that you can have your money back, what are you going to do? Are you going to be prejudiced and narrow minded just because the offer is not made by a physician?

Are you going to continue to suffer with snuffles, crusts in the nose, watery eyes, mucous in the throat, and all the annoying and distressing conditions that accompany catarrh, when Hyomei will satisfy you or money back?



Do you know what Hyomei is? Let us tell you; it is composed chiefly of eucalyptus obtained from the eucalyptus trees of inland Australia, where catarrh, asthma, croup and hay fever are practically unknown.

Pour a few drops of Hyomei into the hard rubber inhaler (same as illustration), and you can then breathe into the lungs the germ-killing antiseptics you would breathe in the Australian forests of pine and eucalyptus.

And Hyomei is so pleasant to use; you'll like to use it; when you breathe it in it has such a soothing, healing effect on the inflamed and germ ridden membrane. In five minutes you get such wonderful relief that you know that at last you have help.

A Hyomei outfit, which consists of one bottle of Hyomei, a hard rubber pocket inhaler and medicine dropper and simple instructions for use, costs only $1.15, and extra bottles of Hyomei, if afterward needed, cost 60 cents.

And besides catarrh, remember that Hyomei is guaranteed to relieve asthma, croup, bronchitis, coughs, colds, sore throat and hay fever, or money back. Hyomei is sold by leading druggists everywhere. Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. guarantees it.

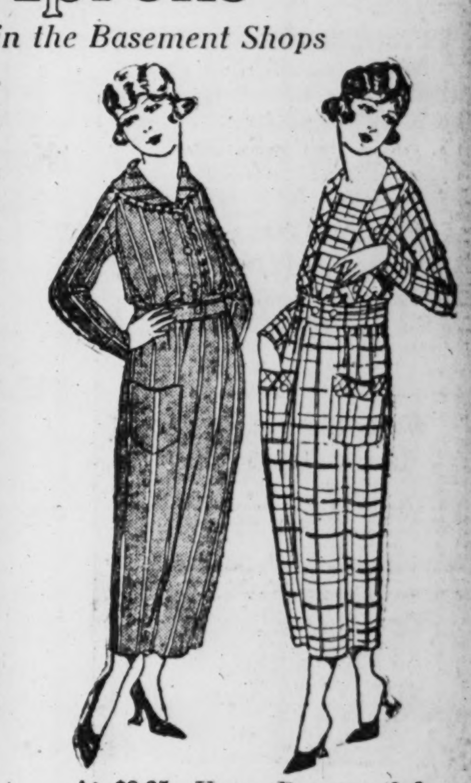
NEW BASEMENT SHOPS

Tomorrow a Thousand Thrifty Women Should Attend This

Sale of House Dresses and Aprons

SPECIAL PRICES in the Basement Shops



They are not ordinary basement Aprons and House Dresses bought just because they were "cheap." Vandervoort's never offers such merchandise. Every garment is high-grade in style, workmanship and pattern. They are not odds and ends, but complete in variety, purchased especially for this timely sale because they were unusual values. They are garments that should be in every woman's Spring wardrobe, because they will give good service and at the same time lend comeliness and style to the wearer.

Every one of the following price lots provides exceptional values.

At 95c—Allover Apron in blue and white checked gingham. Round neck style; pockets and sleeves trimmed with plain blue gingham.

At $1.19—Allover checked gingham Apron, with belt; cut very full; buttons down the front and looks like a house dress; short sleeves. Trimmed with plain blue gingham.

At $1.85—House Dresses made of striped percale and gingham; mostly dark grounds; neat trimmings of narrow lace or embroidery.

At $2.85—House Dresses of striped gingham or figured percale, in light or medium colors; trimmings are in contrasting colors; belted models.

At $3.85—House Dresses of fine quality plaid gingham; very neatly made and smartly cut. Several patterns; button trimmed; two pockets, and made with separate belt.

At $2.85—Apron Dress of plaid gingham; semi-belted and trimmed in plain colors. A varied assortment of plaid patterns. Another Apron Dress is made in slipover style, of plain pink or blue percale, trimmed with white rick-rack braid.

At $1.85—Percale Apron, made of striped and figured patterns on light grounds, trimmed in contrasting colors; semi-belted model with round neck. Another model is full belted and has a V neck. Black and white piping is used on yoke, pockets and belt.

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE

CLERGY OF ST. LOUIS

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 15, 1920

Reverend Gentlemen:

Today is the day you preach sermons to your congregations. Perhaps you have already chosen your text, but like most intelligent men you are always open to a new suggestion.

I don't intend to write your sermon for you. I don't intend to intimidate you into choosing my subject for your address. But I sincerely appeal to you to consider the contents of this letter.

As spiritual advisers, it is your duty to always have in mind the welfare of the members of your respective churches. Now we come to the point.

The story of the downfall of at least one girl, whose soul food was flattery, should be an interesting one for you all. I know you do not care to ever have the same fate meet members of your churches.

It all is contained in the Paramount-Artcraft picture of "Everywoman," which comes to Kings Theater for an entire week beginning Sunday, February 22. The picturization was directed by George Melford. Further than that, I can say little to you. My preference is that you witness this production for yourselves and learn the rest.

Sincerely yours,

C. L. WINSTON.

Remove Those Hairs —Roots and All!

(Absolutely New Method)

The new way to remove disfiguring growths of superfluous hair, roots and all, will astonish and delight you. You never saw or heard of anything like it before. It is not a depilatory and not electrical. You simply get a stick of phelactine from your druggist and follow the easy directions at home. In a few seconds you have removed the offending hairs, roots and all. With your own eyes you see the roots come right out. Phelactine is absolutely harmless, non-poisonous and perfectly odorless.

NEW BARRIE FANTASY COMES TO AMERICAN

Nora Bayes in Musical Play at Jefferson; Ciccolini at Orpheum.

Followers of Sir James M. Barrie will gather at the American Theater, beginning tomorrow night, when "Dear Brutus" will first be presented here. And the devotees of Nora Bayes will just as surely find their way to the Shubert-Jefferson, with one night's start on the Barrieites, as "Ladies First," owned, managed and starred in by the redoubtable Nora, will open tonight.

"Dear Brutus" is, chiefly, the story of the doings of Fate in an enchanted wood, on Midsummer Night. It is the Wood of Second Chances, where each person finds his or her true self.

A Shakspearean Moral.

The moral may be guessed from the Shakspearean line which gives the play its title, "The fault, dear Brutus, is not in our stars, but in ourselves." The persons of the play dream of what they could do with another chance, or in other environments, but, with one exception, their second chance proves that they deserved no second chance. The thieving butler turns into a thieving financier. The three philanders are philanders still, and the genial old idler is still a genial old idler.

Only one finds a different self, and he is the one who dared to enter the wood open-eyed, while the others drifted into it. Instead of being a drunken waster, he becomes in the wood the eager artist and the devoted father that he would have been, if he had not been cursed with a snobbish vampire of a wife. For him there is hope. He awakes, not to the realization that a waster he is and that a waster he must remain, but to a new life. The delightful daughter whom this childless man finds in the wood is not a might-have-been, but a promise, and even his wife is transformed, perhaps through vicarious merit, into a helpmeet.

William Gillette, as Dearth, the artist, heads the cast here, as he did in the New York engagement. Madge Bellamy has the part of the dream daughter, in which role she replaced Helen Hayes in the latter part of the New York engagement. Hilda Moore, the English actress who has the role of the artist's wife, had the same role in the original production in London. Others in the cast are Marie Wainwright, Violet Kemble Cooper, Grant Stewart and Frances Anderson.

Miss Bayes Will Sing.

"Ladies First," at the Jefferson, is a musical play, remade from a Hoyt farce, and with book and lyrics by Harry B. Smith. The theme is woman suffrage, and Miss Bayes has the part of a young woman who runs for Mayor against a charming young man, her political career being dominated by a mannish aunt. The man wins both the office and the hand of the rival candidate. Miss Bayes sings at appropriate moments and some of her stage companions are Arthur Gordon, Florence Morrison and Al Roberts.

DeWolf Hopper is to play the Bairnsfather role of old Bill in "The Better 'Ole," opening at the American next Sunday night. The week of March 1 Frances Starr is to appear there in the Belasco production of "Tiger, Tiger!"

At the Jefferson next week William Courtenay will appear in "Civilian Clothes," a comedy by Thompson Buchanan, a Morosco production.

Ciccolini at Orpheum.

Guido Ciccolini, dramatic tenor, who is well known here, and who sang last season in the Chicago Grand Opera company opposite Galli-Curci, heads the bill at the Orpheum Theater tomorrow. This is his second tour of the Orpheum circuit, the first having been made several years ago. Harry Green, in a comedy playlet, "George Washington Cohen," has second place on the bill, and others are Miss Venita Gould in "Impressions," the Magic Glasses, Brendel and Burt, Tim and Kittie O'Meara, William Ebs and the Melonette Duo.

"The Corner Store," a rural comedy sketch, and "The Meanest Man in the World," another successful vaudeville sketch, will be the chief features of the Grand Opera House bill this week. At the Columbia, for the first half of the week, "Somewhere in France" will be the chief stage attraction.

The Standard Theater presents Sim Williams' "Girls from Joyland," with Billy Gilbert, George Wright and Billie Davies in the company. At the Gayety a burlesque revue is offered.

CHEMISTS TO MEET IN ST. LOUIS

National Association Will Hold Convention April 12 to 17.

The American Chemical Society will hold its next convention here, April 12 to 17 inclusive. The officers of the organization are: Prof. W. A. Noyes, University of Illinois, president, and Dr. Charles L. Parsons of Washington, D. C., secretary.

The St. Louis division of the American Chemical Society was organized in 1907, but most of the members had been connected with the St. Louis Chemical Society, a local organization, previous to that time. The St. Louis Chemical Society formally disbanded in 1911. Subjects to be discussed at the convention will be patent laws, confiscation of German patents, and legislation protecting American drugs, synthetic drugs, dyes and terra.

$100,000,000 ST. LOUIS COMPANY

INTERNATIONAL LIFE PUTS OVER THREE YEARS GROWTH INTO ONE YEAR BY INCREASING INSURANCE IN FORCE ABOUT 33⅓% DURING ONE YEAR.

Closing the calendar year of 1919 with insurance in force $101,967,853.00 on an issued basis as compared with about $77,000,000 of insurance in force on a paid for basis December 31, 1918, the International Life has disclosed by its tenth annual statement just filed, that it has become a one hundred million dollar company in about ten years by increasing its outstanding insurance by about thirty-three and one-third per cent in one year.

COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF GAINS

	Dec. 31, 1919	Dec. 31, 1918	Gain	Percent
Total Insurance in Force..	$101,967,853.00	$77,042,499.00	$24,925,354.00	32%
Total Admitted Assets...	13,261,727.40	11,593,728.40	1,667,999.00	14%
Total Premium Income..	3,414,125.21	2,655,494.37	758,630,84	28%
Reserve for Policyholders.	11,801,265,46	10,233,325.43	1,567,940.03	15%
Surplus to Policyholders.	776,875.10	652,605.99	124,273.11	19%

Progressive management coupled with an attractive group of policy contracts gives to prospective policyholders and to agents a great opportunity to grow up with and enjoy the benefits of a "Company of Today With Methods of Tomorrow."

Kill the Cold Stop the Flu

Do not fool with depressing, annoying colds this year. A cold today may lead to influenza tomorrow.

Dr. C. W. Waggoner, health commissioner, Toledo, says, "Cure colds the first day and it is unlikely you will contract pneumonia or influenza." Play safe. Kill your cold now. Turpo, the only turpentine ointment, has really wonderful qualities in relieving colds and congestions.

Buy a jar of Turpo now—use it according to directions and secure quick relief from colds and congestions. Snuff a little Turpo up the nostrils several times a day and the flu germ will have little chance of getting a lodging or breeding place.

Go to your druggist now while he has a supply of Turpo on hand.

NEED OF HOUSING FOR WORKING GIRLS URGENT

Y. W. C. A. General Secretary Tells of Conditions Prompting Campaign for $500,000 Fund.

Miss Elizabeth Wilson, general secretary of the St. Louis Y. W. C. A., says that housing conditions for women and girls who work are so inadequate that one large industrial firm is paying the transportation expenses of 25 girls to and from Alton each day. All of these girls, she says, attempted to find rooms in St. Louis but were told at each place they applied that there was not a room to be had.

"At the Y. W. C. A.," said Miss Wilson to a Post-Dispatch reporter, "we have converted rest rooms and even the lobby into sleeping places by using cots or mattresses. Many girls who have come to us for lodging have insisted that they be cared for in some way, even though obliged to sleep on the bare floor. Others have told us they would sleep in chairs or on tables if only they could be placed somewhere for the night.

"We have done all we could," she continued, "but even with the most drastic emergency measures we are obliged to turn away hundreds of girls each month and this number is increasing with startling rapidity. I often wonder what becomes of the unfortunate girls who are unable to find rooming places, and then when I read of suicides, or of girls arrested for wrong-doing, or see in the faces of some of those whom I meet on the street the answer, I feel that the situation has become so acute that it needs immediate and urgent measures. The industrial plants could do a great deal by providing some sort of dormitories or sleeping quarters for the girls who work in their establishments and who have no homes."

Miss Wilson said that the great majority of girls who apply for rooms are able to pay from $3 to $4 weekly for accommodations, but are unable to find rooms at any price. Some of them have gone to hotels and have met the same condition there.

It is to meet this need for housing accommodations that the campaign under direction of the Y. W. C. A. and the Letmar Club, is to begin here March 15, to raise $500,000 for the erection of two hotels, or dormitories, for working women. Mrs. Harvey G. Mudd is chairman of the Campaign Committee.

In connection with the campaign a slogan contest was announced yesterday. For the best slogan submitted before next Friday a prize of $15 will be given. The name will be announced next Sunday. Slogans to be entered should be sent to the Slogan Committee, Y. W. C. A., 1411 Locust street.

The Judges will be Mrs. W. A. Layman, Mrs. Thomas Francis, W. R. Compton, Mrs. Lon Hocker and George Priest.

The housing plan contemplates a reconstructed building in the West End, to be conducted by the Letmar Club, and a hotel nearer the business district, to be conducted by the Y. W. C. A.

Report Shows Need of Greater Housing Facilities for Young Men.

The need for more housing facilities for young men in this city is shown by a report issued yesterday by the Y. M. C. A. The dormitory rooms at the Central Y. M. C. A., Grand and Franklin avenues, Railroad "Y," Twentieth and Eugenia streets, Pine Street "Y," Ewing avenue and Pine street, and the North Side "Y" at Grand and Sullivan avenues, all are engaged and it is necessary to turn away approximately 720 young men each month on account of lack of rooms in the various dormitories.

The report shows that 60,287 persons used the dormitories the past year. The various Y. M. C. A. restaurants and cafeterias served 467,477 meals in St. Louis in the past 12 months.

MASONS TO INSTITUTE LODGE

University City to Get First Body of Kind Tomorrow Evening.

University Lodge of Masons will be instituted tomorrow evening at the M. E. Church in University City, which is said to be the largest town in the country without a lodge of this order. John F. Willman, late master of Clayton Lodge, will be the first master of the new lodge. The institution will be in charge of District Deputy Stratford Edler, assisted by J. Harvey Cranfill as grand marshall.

The list of charter members, the largest presented to the grand lodge in years, includes many men well known in the business and professional life of St. Louis.

MAETERLINCK TO BE HERE 14 HOURS TODAY

Active Entertainment of Noted Belgian Poet and Playwright Between Noon and 9:30 Planned

Maurice Maeterlinck, Belgian poet, playwright and essayist, will arrive in St. Louis at 8 o'clock this morning, accompanied by his wife and official staff, in the private car, "Mayflower." He will be here 14 hours.

The party will be met at Union Station by Marc Seguin, French and Belgian Consul in St. Louis, Ferdinand Lemoine, president of the Belgian-American National Alliance, and G. V. R. Mechim, president of the French Society of St. Louis.

From the station the distinguished visitor will go to Hotel Statler, where he will rest until noon, when he will be the guest at a private luncheon. At 1 o'clock he will be taken on a brief automobile tour, returning to the Statler for a public reception in the Daniel Boone room at 2 o'clock. A reception committee of the Chamber of Commerce will welcome the visitor at this reception.

At 3:15 the party will go to the Swiss Hall, 2726 Arsenal street, where the Belgian Society of St. Louis and citizens will greet the poet. At 4 o'clock the party will be taken to the Buckingham Hotel, where they will be guests of honor at a reception given by the Alliance Francaise.

There will be a dinner and reception at the Artists' Guild from 6 to 9:30 p. m. Dr. Otto Heller, professor of modern European literature at Washington University, who will deliver a public lecture on Maeterlinck at the University at 4:30 p. m. tomorrow, will preside at the dinner.

Maeterlinck will depart for Memphis, Tenn., at 9:56 p. m. From Memphis he will go to New Orleans and then to Kansas City, whence he will go direct to Los Angeles. There he will spend two months in studying the technique of photoplay production, being under contract to write and assist in the production of at least one feature motion picture annually. On their present tour of the United States, the Maeterlinck party are guests of a New York motion picture producer.

Luedinghaus Quality Truck

This is the Luedinghaus Quality Truck that has set a new pace for performance and durability, and given to St. Louis fresh honors in motor truck construction.

Each unit is expertly developed, with a resulting flexibility that is the wonder of all who see its capacity loads handled with the ease of a bare chassis.

Over fifty years of manufacturing transportation vehicles are your guarantee that every feature of the Luedinghaus Quality Truck is constructed to bring motor hauling costs lower than ever known before.

Specifications

Motor: Waukesha, 4 cylinders, 4¼ inch by 5¾ inch, patented governor. Radiator: All copper core, vertical copper tubes. Clutch: Dry plate multiple disc. Transmission: Three speeds forward and one reverse. Frame: Pressed steel, 6 inches wide. Front Axle: Drop forged. Timken bearings. Rear Axle: Worm drive. Radius Rods: Steel beams. Springs: Front, 2½ inch by 42 inches; rear, 3 by 54 inches, electric furnace alloy steel. Tires: Front, 36 by 4 inches; rear, 36 by 7 inches.

The Big Attraction at the Show

See the Luedinghaus Quality Truck at the Coliseum, Exhibits 51 and 52, February 16th to 21st inclusive. It will pay you to investigate it.

DEALERS

The Luedinghaus Franchise is a valuable and growing asset to any progressive dealer. Dealers wanted in territory not already represented. Write or wire at once.

Hair Curled This Way Looks Naturally Wavy

Tonight, after you have brushed out your hair, dip a clean toothbrush into some plain liquid silmerine and draw it through the hair, strand by strand. This is by far the best thing you can use if you want your hair to appear naturally wavy and curly, glossy and beautiful.

When you behold yourself in the mirror tomorrow morning, you will vow never to go back to the drying, devitalizing curling iron. Liquid silmerine is neither sticky nor greasy, and will not discolor the hair, spot the scalp or produce any harmful effect whatever. A few ounces, which of course can be had at any drug store, will last for weeks.

AN INVITATION

YOU are cordially invited to visit St. Louis' new and up-to-the-minute Tire House during the opening week, February 15 to 21.

This is an institution founded to meet your every requirement, from the child's miniature bicycle tire to the giant truck tires on commercial vehicles.

An institution founded on prompt service and good values.

And last, but not least, an institution founded on a profit-sharing basis, whereby every employe from the service boys up to the managers of the departments receive a proportionate part of the profit. This insures more prompt, courteous and efficient service than you have been able to obtain heretofore.

We shall be pleased to have you inspect our immense repair department, incidentally the largest in the State where pneumatic bicycle, motorcycle, automobile and truck tires are repaired by skilled workmen under the supervision of factory experts.

We would like to have you see the arrangements of our complete stock of Diamond, Fisk, Federal, Goodrich, Sioux City, United States, Victor-Springfield and many other good makes. Efficiency and good service is the watchword of the stock department.

Dealers can select from our fresh stock these many good brands of tires at prices which will enable them to realize good profits and repeat orders.

Prompt Deliveries on All Orders.

Mother and Daughter Doing Well

"Mother and myself, taking the advice of some kind friends, are taking Mayr's Wonderful Remedy for bad stomach and liver trouble and bloating. The medicine is rightly and well named 'Wonderful,' for such it is. It has certainly done wonders for us both." It is a simple, harmless preparation that removes the catarrhal mucus from the intestinal tract and allays the inflammation which causes practically all stomach, liver and intestinal ailments, including appendicitis. One dose will convince or money refunded.

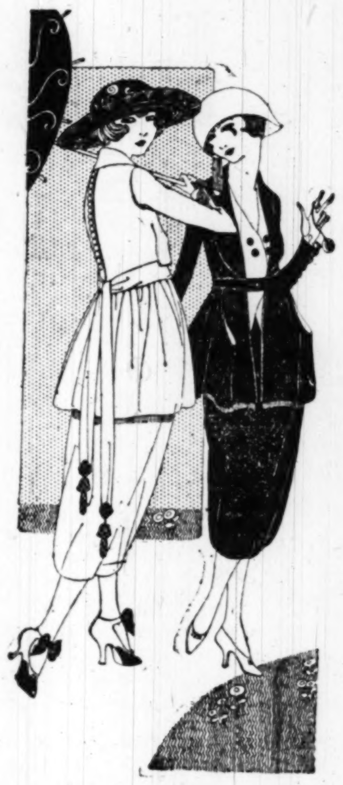
Women's and Misses' Sample Suits



New Arrivals, Delayed in Transit Because of Eastern Blizzards, Give Fresh Impetus and Offer Remarkable Economies in Smart Spring Suits for Immediate and Later Service at

$35 and $55

With New York literally "snowed under" by one of the heaviest blizzards in its history, traffic and business in general was suspended or greatly handicapped. Tardy express shipments brought several sample and specially purchased groups of new and very smart Suits, which will help to make the assortments for the last day of this sale splendidly complete.

The styles are eminently correct—the sample Suits are made purposely to express the latest vogue for Spring, which is soon to come. The tailoring shows workmanship of the highest class. The materials represent the newest and most fashionable weaves in colorings that have the sanction of Dame Fashion herself.

Great Pianists Choose The

DUO-ART PIANO

THE highest endorsement that a reproducing instrument can receive is the decision of a great artist to record his art for that instrument only. The leading pianists of our day have contracted to play exclusively for the Duo-Art Piano. It is not only the greatest Reproducing Piano in existence—it is the only instrument of its type that is entirely satisfying to the great pianists.

Pianists who make record-rolls exclusively for the Duo-Art

Caroline Cone-Baldwin · Harold Bauer · Moissaye Boguslawski · Madgeleine Brard · Winifred Byrd Charles Wakefield Cadman · Alfred Cortot · Augusta Cottlow · Oliver Denton · Hans Ebell · Arthur Friedheim · Ossip Gabrilowitsch · Rudolph Ganz · Heinrich Gebhard · Aurelio Giorni · Percy Grainger · Harold Henry · Josef Hofmann · Edwin Hughes · Ernest Hutcheson · Alberto Jonas Alexander Lambert · Ethel Leginska · Paquita Madriguera · Guiomar Novaes · Ignace Jan Paderewski · John Powell · Serge Prokofieff · Rudolph Reuter · Arthur Rubinstein · Robert Schmitz · Arthur Shattuck · Eleanor Spencer · Rose and Ottilie Sutro

The Duo-Art is, of course, a piano of highest quality. It is also a Pianola playing any 88-note music-roll. Installed in the Steinway, Steck, Stroud and famous Weber Pianos, Grands and Uprights.

DANDRUFFY HEADS BECOME HAIRLESS

If you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning, most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need to matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.

EXPEDITION BEING FITTED FOR TRIP TO BAFFIN LAND

Donald MacMillan, Who Accompanied Peary to North Pole, Will Lead Explorers Into Unknown Regions.

PARTY WILL SAIL IN SUMMER OF 1921

Section Never Visited by White Men, but Eskimos Tell Wonderful Tale of Mountains and Rivers.

By the Associated Press.

BOSTON, Feb. 14.—Secrets of Baffin Land, one of the portions of the Arctic still unexplored, will be the objective of the MacMillan expedition which is in preparation now for departure in the summer of 1921. Although the region was visited several times before the Pilgrims crossed the Atlantic to Cape Cod, Baffin Land, from the point of view of explorers and scientists, is still one of the richest and most alluring fields of research in the north.

Its whole western shore, more than 1000 miles in length, is but vaguely defined on the charts. Eskimos have told wonderful tales of vast lakes and towering mountains in the interior, but white men have never visited that section. Its flora and fauna have never been studied; little is known of the movements of the tidal currents along its shores; and facts of geology, mineralogy and meteorology await the coming of scientific observers.

To Leave Boston in 1921.

The party headed by Donald MacMillan, Peary's lieutenant on the expedition that reached the North Pole, plans to leave Boston about July 1, 1921, and to reach Baffin Land in less than a month. The following winter will be spent on the western shore in latitude 69. The camp will probably be just south of the entrance of the dangerous Fury and Recla strait where the ships of Capt. Parry and Lyon, seekers of a northwestern passage, were blocked a century ago. That is 160 miles north of the Arctic Circle and 700 miles south of Etah on the shore of Northwestern Greenland, where MacMillan's Crockerland expedition passed four winters.

During the winter attempts will be made by dog teams to explore the coast northward, and in the following summer the interior of the island will be penetrated. The plans for the expedition call for an absence of two years from this country. In case a longer stay is necessary, no relief expedition will be sent, according to present arrangements. If the ship is crushed in the ice, the party plans to retreat by dog teams to Fort Churchill, the trading post at the foot of Hudson Bay, and to return to civilization by way of Northwestern Canada.

Two Years' Supplies to Be Carried.

The schooner Bowdoin, named for the college of which MacMillan is a graduate and a present faculty member, will carry the expedition. It is expected that the vessel, which has been especially designed for the work required of it, will be launched at East Boothbay, Me., the coming summer. It is to be of the Gloucester fisherman knockabout type, of 110 tons displacement, of unusually strong construction and sheathed on the outside with ironwood to resist the grip of the ice as far as is possible. It will be approximately 87 feet in length with a draught of 9½ feet, and will be equipped with crude oil engines capable of developing 60 horsepower. In addition to 2000 gallons of crude oil, 500 gallons of kerosene and 20 tons of coal, the Bowdoin will carry in her hold stores and supplies for six men for two years.

The MacMillan Arctic Association, just organized, with Lieut. Peary as president, will back the expedition. It is composed of Bowdoin College alumni and other friends of the explorer.

Quick, Safe Way to Remove Hairs

(Toilet Talks)

Keep a little delatone powder on your dressing table and when ugly, hairy growths appear, make a paste with a little of the powder and some water, apply and let remain on the hairy surface for 2 or 3 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs have vanished. This treatment is quite harmless and rarely more than one application is required, but to avoid disappointment care should be used to buy the real delatone.

A two-cell searchlight showing Make-UR-Own Batteries in place

NOW
Make Your Own Flashlight Batteries

—It's easy—it's simple—it's quick—it's economical and it's absolutely dependable and harmless. It's the one thing that has saved the flashlight and its many uses. With a Make-UR-Own Battery outfit you can have new batteries in just a few moments, and you will have a better battery—a battery that is fresh; that burns brighter and lasts longer.

There can be no guess work with Make-UR-Own, as there is with the ordinary "ready made" battery, because deterioration does not take place until the battery is in actual use.

MAKE-UR-OWN BATTERIES

come to you "knocked-down." You assemble them quickly and apply them immediately. Your light is then ready for instant use—and a brighter burning, longer-lasting light than you ever would expect from a flashlight.

Ask your dealer to show you a Make-UR-Own Outfit today. There's a surprise in store for you.

Sold by all Good Department, Drug, Hardware, Electric, Auto Supply, Sporting Goods, and Stationery Stores.

The Life of a Battery

The minute a battery is made chemical action caused by the combining of the different elements starts. Deterioration is started and the term of battery life is definitely fixed.

With ordinary batteries if you are fortunate enough to secure one fresh from the manufacturer you secure a high percentage of usefulness—never 100 percent—some deterioration is sure.

Make-UR-Own Batteries come knocked down ready to assemble in a jiffy. And here's the big point. Until you assemble the parts, at the time you need a fresh battery, the Make-UR-Own principle keeps all the life intact. There's no life lost in deterioration before you get the battery.

For a brighter light which lasts longer and costs less—Make-UR-Own Batteries.

SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA FEATURES OWN TALENT

Gusikoff and Lepske This Week's Soloists—Ellen Rumsey Sings With Pageant Choral.

The St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will present two of its own members as solo artists for the three concerts of this week, and will feature American composers in its programs. Michael Gusikoff, concertmaster, will be the soloist at the Friday afternoon and Saturday night concerts at the Odeon, playing the great Tschaikowsky concerto in D major for violin and orchestra, and Jules Lepske, a member of the first violin section, is announced as soloist for today's Pop program.

Lepske is well known in St. Louis as a solo artist, having done considerable concert work here two seasons ago. Last year he joined the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, of which Ossip Gabrilowitsch is conductor, and came from there to St. Louis as a member of the first violin choir of the local orchestra. He is one of the few American pupils of the famous Viennese violin teacher, Sevcik. His part in today's program will be the "Scottish Fantasy" of Bruch, played at a recent pair of symphony concerts by the eminent American violinist, Albert Spalding, and last week by Fritz Kreisler.

Today's program is an exceptionally attractive one. It follows:

Coronation March from the Prophet—Meyerbeer
Overture to Zampa....................Herold
Prelude, La dernier sommeil de la Virge—Massenet
Scottish Fantasy, for Violin and Orchestra, Op. 46....................Bruch
(1) Grave: Adagio cantabile.
(2) Allegro.
(3) Andante sostenuto.
(4) Finale: Allegro guerriero.
Entr'acte Music from Rosamunde...Schubert
Overture to William Tell.............Rossini

Will Use Stradivarius.

In his appearance as solo artist this week Concertmaster Gusikoff will use the now famous Davis Stradivarius violin loaned him at the beginning of the season by Samuel C. Davis of this city. This fiddle is one of the finest now in existence, and was bought by its present owner from a noted violinist of Europe. It has appeared at many great concerts and musical events of the old world, but until Davis loaned it to the concertmaster of the local orchestra it never had been heard in this country.

Gusikoff has been concertmaster of the St. Louis orchestra for three seasons, coming here from the Russian Symphony Orchestra. He has a wide popularity hereabouts, and has won success both at home and abroad. He comes of a long line of musical ancestors, every generation of which has had at least one concert artist. One of his grandparents was a famous Russian violinist, and another was the author of a standard work on orchestral music.

Conductor Zach has announced two American compositions, one of which is a first-time number here, a Wagnerian excerpt, and the Rimsky-Korsakow "Capriccio Espagnol." The last-named is a florid and gay example of typically Spanish music, written in five scenes which are played without pause. It affords a remarkable opportunity for the solo instruments of the orchestra, each of which takes its turn a leading instrument, and various little solos, duets and trios occur all through the composition. This work is a great favorite with St. Louis audiences, and was one of the numbers asked for in the recent "request" concert.

Ernest R. Kroeger of St. Louis and Felix Borowski of Chicago are the American composers to be featured this week. The Borowski composition is new, and is having its first St. Louis hearing at the Friday concert. Following is the complete program:

Kroeger...............Overture, "Endymion"
Wagner—Prelude to act 3, "The Mastersingers of Nuremberg."
(First time.)
Tschaikowsky—Concerto for Violin and Orchestra, D Major, Op. 35.
1. Allegro moderato.
2. Andante: Canzonetta.
3. Finale: Allegro vivacissimo.
Borowski..................Elegie Symphonique
Rimsky-Korsakow—Capriccio Espagnol (on Spanish Themes) Op. 34.
1. Alborada (Morning Serenade): Vivo e strepitoso
2. Variations: Andante con moto
3. Alborada: Vivo e strepitoso
4. Scene and Gypsy song: Allegretto;
5. Fandango of the Asturias.
(Played without pause.)

Pageant Engages Ellen Rumsey.

Ellen Rumsey, contralto, a relative of the St. Louis family of that name, has been engaged as one of the three principal soloists for the third American performance of Bossi's symphonic poem, "Paradise Lost," to be presented at the Odeon next month by the St. Louis Pageant Choral Society, Conductor Frederick Fischer announced last week that the entire list of soloists now is completed, and that work on the great composition will be pushed with all possible intensity from now on.

The other stars in the cast are Arthur Middleton, baritone, and Lotta Madden, soprano. Miss Madden will sing the role of Eve, Middleton will present the Adam character in the first part of the performance and Moloch in the latter part, and Miss Rumsey will be Uriel.

Director Fischer now is busy with try-outs for new voices to augment the chorus for the great work, and intends to give the Bossi masterpiece with all the elaboration possible. It will be the final regular concert of the year by the Pageant Choral Society and the chorus will be assisted by the entire St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. The date for the event is March 9.

Galloway Organ Recital.

A composition for the pipe organ by Joseph Bonnet, organist at St. Eustache, Paris, and dedicated to Charles Galloway, organist of St. Louis, will be given interpretation by Mr. Galloway at his free public organ recital in Graham Memorial Chapel, Washington University campus, this afternoon, 3 to 4 o'clock. It is entitled "Rhapsodie Catalene."

The purchase of a Diamond should be made from a house which has had the experience of years. No matter how good a judge of gems you may be, it is wise and profitable to consult men who have given their business lifetime to the study of Diamonds.

Whatever you may wish to invest in Diamonds you can be assured that the purchase we will advise is the best obtainable for the price.

A combination of Diamonds and Platinum that is hard to resist. Beautifully pierced and hand carved.

Three Million Dollars

This illustration is a picture writing. Can you read it?

It says: Thomas A. Edison combined his genius with three million dollars and produced the Official Laboratory Model of the New Edison—"the phonograph with a soul."

Always remember this picture-message.

Remember the man at the top—the man whose genius is responsible for it all—Edison the wizard, Edison the idealist.

Remember the three million dollars spent, the seven years he experimented—the untiring research which spared neither men, materials nor money.

Then you will always understand why the Official Laboratory Model of the New Edison is the ultimate development of the phonograph—why its RE-CREATION of an artist's art and that artist's living art are without difference.

Replicas of the original three million dollar model are in our store. You cannot estimate them in terms of other phonographs—in anything except price. They actually cost no more. We'll put one in your home at once—and let you pay for it at your convenience.

Please advise full particulars regarding your special proposition. Also mail Free Booklet entitled Favorite Songs:

PILES CURED Without the Knife By Dr. Henrich's Method TO STAY CURED

No Cutting. No Pain. No Chloroform. No Hospital. No Danger. No Loss of Time. Consultation and Examination Free—Tell Your Friends.

Once cured—always cured. That's what my patients, who have suffered for years with Itching, Bleeding, Internal or External Piles and other Rectal Diseases can truthfully say, and you can say it if you experience my Mild Medical Method of treating these dreadful and painful diseases.

Do not think because you do not suffer all the time that this disease has permanently left you. Piles usually do not trouble much during looseness of the bowels and that is one way the inexperienced person tries to cure Piles. Just as soon as the bowels become constipated then you will find a return of Piles. The family doctor experiments on your Piles and you regret it later, for the longer you allow the disease to run the more difficult it will be to cure it and the longer time it will take. The time to get cured is right now when you have the chance to use my Mild Medical Treatment, which usually requires only one treatment for each Pile tumor, but which makes it disappear forever within a week.

You cannot have your Piles cured unless the cause is completely routed from the system and my method completely removes the cause. My treatment not only gives the quickest relief possible but it builds up the general health, is scientific, nonsurgical and has stood the test for more than 25 years' successful practice. It is highly endorsed by prominent physicians, clergymen, bankers, business men and farmers. Do not let this bothersome disease interfere with your general health and business ability. You cannot develop full capacity, mentally or physically, when you are suffering from Piles.

Beware of so-called home treatments and nostrums which promise great things for you. The most any of these remedies can afford you is temporary relief. You can get permanently cured only by personal treatment, where the Specialist who has devoted years of the best part of his life to the study of these ailments can see you personally, consult with you and examine your case. Do not delay further, therefore, but call personally on me and let us talk your case over. I will tell you just what you will want to know about your case, tell you just how much a cure will cost you and give you full particulars about my Mild Medical Method of curing Piles and other diseases of the rectum. You will be under no obligation to go further if you do not desire, but you will have the satisfaction of having this Free examination and consultation from a Specialist. Just this one consultation with me will convince you that I have a safe, humane and sure cure for Piles without cutting or danger of any kind. Don't be so shortsighted as to allow a simple case of Piles to develop into a dangerous case of Fistula or deadly Cancer. Come for that free consultation this week. I HAVE REMOVED my Office from the Victoria to the Scott Building.

PRINCETON MEMORIAL FOR WORLD WAR DEAD

Services for 146 Former Students Who Lost Lives to Be Held Next Saturday.

By the Associated Press.

PRINCETON, N. J., Feb. 14.—Princeton University men throughout the world will observe Feb. 21 as a memorial day for the 146 men from the university who died in the nation's service in the World War, President Hibben announced today. Memorial services, including a "minute of silence," will be held simultaneously in every city and town of the United States where there are former students of Princeton.

In historic Nassau Hall here, where George Washington received the thanks of Congress for his services in obtaining the nation's independence, and where the Continental Congress met in 1783, the memorial to the university's hero dead, which has been under construction for six months, will be dedicated. Franklin C'Olier, national commander of the American Legion, who was graduated from Princeton in 1898, will speak.

The university plans to establish scholarships in the name of each of the Princeton men killed in the service. These will be open to boys of limited means throughout the country and will be distributed as evenly as possible in the various states.

Some of these scholarships already have been established, including those for H. A. H. ("Hoby") Baker, Arthur Blumenthal and John P. Poe, football stars, and for James Paull, who rowed on the victorious Princeton crew in 1916.

THE SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA WILL FEATURE OWN TALENT

being a fantasie on two Catalonian airs.

The program is one calculated to carry a rather broader degree of interest than is usual in the recitals by the local master of that instrument, the six numbers embracing skilled selections from the lighter as well as the severer classical realms, as follows:

Prelude and Fugue in D major	J. S. Bach
Adagio in E major	Gustav Merkel
Rhapsodie Catalene	Joseph Bonnet
Melodie in C	Theodore Salome
Capricio in F	S. le Maigre
Sonata (No. 4)	Mendelssohn

Lepske at City Club.

The music committee of the City Club announces that Jules Lepske, violinist of the Symphony Orchestra, will give a recital in connection with the called meeting next Friday. He will play the following numbers with piano accompaniments by Mrs. C. A. Cale: Meditation from Thais, Massenet; La Capricieuse, Elgar; Rondino (on a theme by Beethoven), Kreisler; Liebesleid, Kreisler; Poem, Fibich; Caprice Viennois, Kreisler. Dr. Alex S. Wolf will preside.

Jan Berezowski will be heard in recital this afternoon at 3 o'clock at Polish American Hall, 1940 Cass avenue. Mr. Berezowski, who is now in service at Jefferson Barracks, is well known in musical circles; he will be assisted by Mrs. Karl Kimmel, Miss Maurine Hollyman, Mrs. Esmeralda Berry Mayes, and Miss Alice Pettingill.

National Song Week.

St. Louis will celebrate a "National Week of Song" beginning Feb. 22 to 28, inclusive. This nation-wide celebration is the outgrowth of an idea conceived early in 1915. Miss Alice Pettingill is sponsor for the movement here, having been appointed local chairman by Norman H. Hall of Chicago, promoter of the idea. Miss Pettingill will be assisted by the following committee: Mrs. Joseph W. Folk, E. L. Coburn, Mrs. E. George Payne, Nelson Cunliffe, Mrs. J. Alex Goodwin, Charles Claflin Allen, Mrs. Taylor Bernard, Mrs. P. J. Guerard and C. L. Brittain.

The purpose of the "National Week of Song" is, that a week, preferably that week in each year in which Washington's birthday occurs, shall be set aside for a campaign in the interest of community singing and to awaken and develop a national and patriotic spirit by the singing of our national and patriotic songs together with the old heart songs so well known.

All schools, churches, choral clubs, welfare clubs, women's clubs, men's clubs and all kindred organizations are asked to co-operate by singing together such songs as Star-Spangled Banner, Hail Columbia, Old Lang Syne, Carry Me Back to Old Virginny, Old Oaken Bucket, Yankee Doodle, The Red, White and Blue, Love's Old Sweet Song, Battle Hymn of the Republic, Old Folks at Home, Old Black Joe, Dixie and America.

Y. M. H. A. Adds 276 Members.

A campaign by the St. Louis branch of the Young Men's Hebrew Association for 500 new members, which was started last Monday, resulted in 276 new members being obtained up to Thursday night, when the association held a banquet at Hotel Statler. To inspire competition, the association is divided into two teams under the leadership of Samuel Kransberg and Milton Strauss. The campaign will continue until Feb. 25.

Heller to Speak on Maeterlinck.

"Maurice Maeterlinck" is the title of the second of the series of four public lectures which Otto Heller, professor of modern European literature at Washington University, will deliver in the old chapel in University Hall tomorrow at 4:30 p. m., under the auspices of the extension department of the university. The Belgian dramatist will be in St. Louis today and will meet Dr. Heller. When the arrangements were made for the lecture, Dr. Heller was unaware that Maeterlinck would be in St. Louis at this time.

50,000 BEGGARS INFEST STREETS OF MADRID

Have Organization of Their Own, Work in Shifts and Prorate Collections.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Feb. 14.—The hundreds of beggars who importune the visitor to the Spanish capital from the moment he leaves his hotel until his return have ignored a recent decree of the authorities which, if enforced, would have driven them from the streets.

That a Government, or the local authorities under it, which can keep the street of the fashionable watering places, such as San Sebastian, free from these beggars, cannot do the same in its capital city, is the wonder of all. Perhaps it is the power the beggars wield in local politics in Madrid that has something to do with it. Madrid has more than 50,000 mendicants; about 10 each 1000 of population.

They have a strong organization, which allots "pitches," hours of "labor" and distributes the collections among the collectors. Under the direction of this organization beggars are on the streets the 24 hours of the day, the late hours which Madrid keeps making this profitable.

To this organization belong the 679 licensed blind beggars who ply their trade during the day; the many maimed and disabled men, who display their misshapen limbs to the passerby; the blind musicians, who play outside the doors of the cafes and many others who wheedle centimos out of the charitable in varied ways.

Outside this union are the hundreds of urchins, who are busy around the cab stands, hotel and cafe entrances during the day picking up pennies as best they can, and an equal number who dart out of doorways and archways in the night after any passerby.

Another decree that has been honored in its breach is that which ordained that a law passed some years ago prohibiting the use of two-wheeled carts in Madrid should come into effect Jan. 1. The two-wheeled ox-cart still trundles over the cobblestones of the city street, much to the delight of the tourist who is looking for the picturesque, but at the same time destroying the new asphalt roads, on which Madrid has spent so much money and for the preservation of which the law against two-wheeled carts was passed.

ENDOWMENT FUND CAMPAIGN FOR OZARK SCHOOL BEGUN

Contributions Sought to Enlarge Institution for Students Far From High Schools.

An endowment fund campaign for the schools of the Ozarks, a home and school combined, near Hollister, Mo., has been started in St. Louis and the State to enlarge the equipment of the school. Every year there are about 50 applications above the number possible to accommodate.

Something about the work of the school will be told today at the Central Presbyterian Church, Delmar and Clara avenues, by the Rev. William Ray Dobyns of St. Joseph, president of the board of trustees of the school, and by James G. Trimble of St. Joseph at the Westminster Presbyterian Church.

The work includes high school and vocational studies and these students come from towns and districts in Missouri, Oklahoma and Arkansas, in which there are no high schools and often few grammar schools.

The school is housed in two buildings, a large picturesque log cabin, where the children have their social hours, with the girls' dormitory on the upper floors and Abernathy hall, the recitation and laboratory building, with the boys' dormitory above. Practically all of the work of the upkeep of the school and farm is done by the students.

Headquarters for the campaign are at room 408 American National Bank building, St. Joseph, Mo., care of Miss Ella D. Cowan.

Checks may be made payable to Milton Toole Jr., treasurer of endowment fund, care Tootle-Lacy National Bank, St. Joseph, Mo.

SNOW, UNUSUAL IN MEXICO CITY, CATCHES MANY BAREFOOT

Was First Experience for Most of Them, Though Snow-Clad Peaks Always in View.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 12.—It is possible almost any day to see snow banks from Mexico City, yet few of the natives here had ever touched it until recently, when there was quite a perceptible fall, the first in many years in the Valley of Mexico. The mountain peaks of Popocatepetl and Izfaccihuatl, clearly visible from the capital, are always snow-clad, but they are about 60 miles away.

Barefoot or lightly shod natives stepped gingerly into the strange element and afterward spent most of the day huddled in their homes or in sheltering nooks and corners. The snow flurry followed a sudden drop in temperature during a light rain.

New Owners Often Adjust Their Brakes Too Tightly

A mistake frequently made, especially by new car owners, is to adjust the brakes so tightly that they slide the wheels when applied. Of course, this stops the car quickly, but it inflicts such excessive wear on the treads as to make it a very expensive operation.

Gee! but it's a pity a man never can dispose of his motor experience for as much as it cost him. If he could, what a lot of ready-money guys there would be running around loose.—American Motorist.

"Out in all kinds of weather—hot and cold—dusty and rainy—I know that dry throat is dangerous. In a few hours that irritation may become inflammation."

DON'T risk serious throat trouble by neglecting dry throat. Use BUNTE'S Cough Drops the minute your throat begins to feel dry. The pure cane sugar, menthol and horehound combination soothes and heals—and the increased flow of saliva keeps the circulation active and prevents inflammation. They cost only a few pennies—taste good too.

Service Cost Per Car

Automobile dealers know that the one final test of the quality and dependability built into a motor car is the amount which they have to spend for service and adjustments after the car leaves the salesroom.

Ask any dealer if he ever heard of any car with a record for reliability such as this:

"During this past year we have kept a careful record of the amount spent for service and adjustments on each Columbia Six which has left our salesroom.

"It has cost us, including our labor and materials, just $2.19 per car. This is but a small fraction of the amount which we have heretofore been compelled to lay aside out of our initial profits to spend for service on cars we have previously handled.

"We have become thoroly convinced that your advertised statement that the Columbia is "good all the way thru" is 100% true."

1920 AUTO PRODUCTION MAY REACH 2,225,000

Production Among Manufacturing Industries This Year to Be Second Only to Steel, Is Prediction.

NOTWITHSTANDING the small production during the first three months of 1919, following the armistice, when the industry was on virtually a 100 per cent war basis, motor car manufacturers made such gigantic strides during the other nine months that the year's production of 1,891,929 motor vehicles exceeds all previous records, including 1917, when 1,868,000 cars and trucks were produced. The wholesale value brought the industry almost to the $2,000,000,000 class, according to Alfred Reeves, general manager of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

It was only 20 years ago when automobiles were barred from Central Park—yet within these two decades no year has gone by, except the war year of 1918, which has not seen an increased demand for these time-saving vehicles, now such an important part of American life, having advanced from the position of toys for the rich to a position on a par with the telephone, telegraph and the railroads in their work of transporting men and merchandise.

Passenger car production was slightly less than in 1917, totaling 1,586,787, as against 1,740,000 for 1917. The truck production, however, increased substantially, rising from 227,000 in 1918 to more than 305,000 in 1919.

The total wholesale value of passenger cars was $1,399,289,995, an average of $882 per car, while the truck value was $408,311,585, an average of $1338 per vehicle.

Close to $2,000,000,000 Class

The total value of these products was $1,807,594,580, which when combined with the wholesale value of bodies, spare tires and accessories to equip the cars or trucks ready for the owners' use, brings the industry close to the $2,000,000,000 class, with a practical certainty that this year its position will be second only to steel among the manufacturing industries of the country.

The rapid advance of the truck has resulted from its meritorious performance in the war, in general commercial life, in connection with rural motor express lines and in practically every other department of commerce. Busses are increasing in great numbers, it being worthy of note that in Newark, N. J., 16,000,000 passengers were carried by busses during the first half of 1919, the fares amounting to $800,000.

Some highly interesting figures in connection with the industry dating from 1899 are given in the following table:

Passenger Car Production.

YEAR	Number.	Wholesale Value.
1899	3,700	$4,750,000
1904	21,281	23,634,564
1909	127,731	139,918,506
1914	543,679	413,859,379
1917	1,740,792	1,053,050,781
1918	926,388	801,937,925
1919	1,586,767	1,399,287,995

Average wholesale price for 1919, $882.

Motor Truck Production.

YEAR.	Number.	Wholesale Value.
1904	411	$946,947
1911	10,655	22,202,821
1917	128,157	220,382,663
1918	227,250	134,168,392
1919	305,142	408,311,585

Average wholesale price for 1919, $1338.

Total motor vehicle production in 1919 was 1,891,929, valued wholesale at $1,807,394,350.

Passenger car production in 1920 should not be far from 2,250,000 cars, with truck production 400,000 to 425,000. It will depend largely on materials, particularly in connection with closed cars, for which the demand is increasing tremendously.

Exports are now only about $110,000,000, but this should increase substantially during the next few years. The world's markets are being covered by the automobile industry, our automobiles going last year to 81 different countries, including Iceland, which bought 21 cars and two trucks. There is a normal replacement annually of about 16 per cent of the cars and trucks in use. Final figures from the various states would indicate that almost 7,000,000 motor vehicles are now registered and running in the United States on Jan. 1. Of this number about 10 per cent are trucks.

The highest percentage of increase in the registration of cars during the last two years has been in the agricultural districts. The leaders are Tennessee, Alabama, Louisiana and Georgia, where the percentage of increase over 1918 has ranged from 29 per cent down to 16 per cent. New York has the greatest number of cars registered, approximately 570,000, or one for every 18 persons in the State. Ohio is second, with about 511,000.

Nebraska and Iowa are pretty close for the honor for the greatest number of cars per capita, Iowa with 365,000 and Nebraska with 201,000, or one car for every 6½ persons.

Mississippi has the fewest cars registered, less than one for every 50 persons, with Alabama next—one for every 43 persons. Better roads are expected to change this situation.

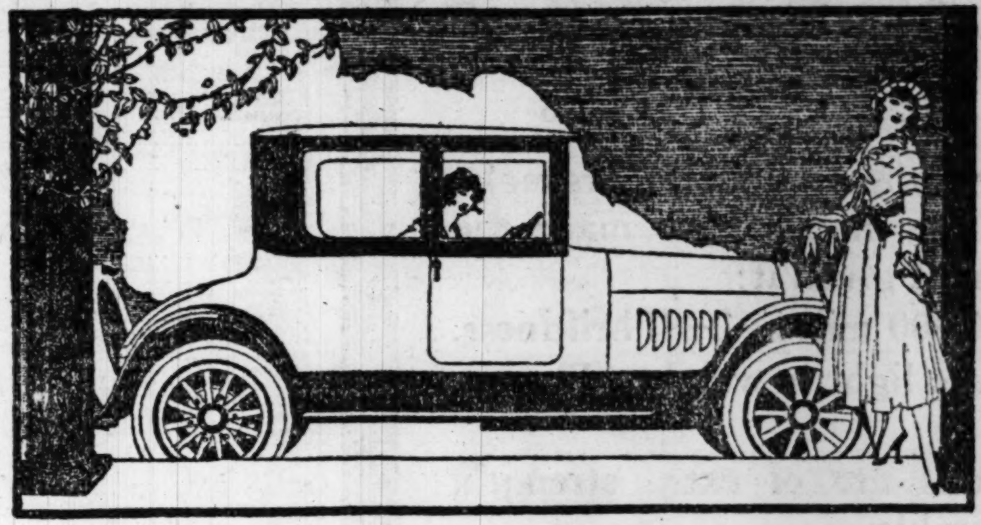
Depends Upon Highways.

Just how many cars can be used in the United States depends entirely on the improved roads and bettering the traffic conditions in big cities by the use of underground garages and parking places for cars not in use. There are many who believe that a few years from now will see 12,000,000 motor vehicles running.

Notwithstanding its giant strides in 20 years, the industry has not been one in which it was easy to succeed, as evidenced by the fact that more than 700 makers failed or retired from the business during the last six or seven years.

Many new companies now going into business will find the road difficult and success coming only to enterprising, well-financed and well-managed concerns having vehicles on a par with those now in use.

PEERLESS



The Most Satisfactory Car
And the Policy Responsible for It

THE Peerless Eight is the embodiment of the purpose of a policy which was adopted nearly five years ago with the conception of the justly famous TWO POWER RANGE EIGHT by The Peerless Motor Car Company.

This policy was, to build a motor car that would meet the requirements of the majority of motor car users.

The Two-Power Ranger has been developed by an organization equipped with twenty years experience in the field of motor car manufacture—an organization that is constantly alert to detect and eliminate any feature that is inconsistent with the best theory and practice of motor car design and construction and first to adopt those features which the trend of the motor car market may dictate.

That this policy has been strictly adhered to and its object attained is amply evidenced by the popularity of the Peerless Eight, and none recognize this fact more than the motorist of long experience.

LOOSE PISTON RINGS CAUSE POWER LEAK

Losses through leaking piston rings commence with the suction stroke, when there is a vacuum of as much as 10 pounds per square inch, slightly decreasing and debasing the incoming charge. On the compression stroke the leakage increases, under a pressure of as many as 60 or 70 pounds. On the power stroke the pressure is quadrupled and here occur the greatest losses through leakage. The moral of all this is to keep the piston rings in condition to perform efficient service.

NEW YORK AUTOISTS SEEK $100,000,000 FOR ROADS

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 14.—The New York State Legislature will be urged to adopt a final bond issue of $100,000,000 for permanent roads in the State. A campaign has been started by the New York State Motor Federation for the issue.

New York has a reputation for highways at the present time, but unfortunately a lot of the State's highways are falling to pieces as a result of the use they have been subjected to in the past three years. But there have been a number of permanent highways built in the State and the comparison between the two shows the value in no uncertain manner of the permanent type.

GASOLINE DEVICES GIVE SHORT MEASURE

Recently the Bureau of Weights and Measures of the State of New York made a comprehensive survey of the gasoline measuring devices in use throughout the State, and it was found that out of 1100 tested, 535 gave short measure ranging from half a pint to a quart on a five-gallon delivery, and in a few instances sealers found shortages running from two quarts to as high as two gallons. At the lowest estimate, this means a loss to the motorists of this one State alone of over a quarter of a million dollars a year. So that, with these bald facts before us, it is evident that the time is ripe for every driver of a car to look into the matter and see that he gets full measure.

KEEP FOOT OFF OF CLUTCH WHEN DRIVING

Are you a clutch rider? Does your foot continually rest on the pedal controlling this important part of your car? If so, you are unconsciously wasting power and are helping put the clutch in a condition where it will slip permanently. Spend a few minutes studying your clutch, its make-up and principles on which it works, learn how to keep it in condition and likewise learn to keep your foot off the pedal when it is not required to be there, and you need never have any trouble from this device.

The Rise of Maxwell Is Due to Its Metals

More miles per gallon
More miles on tires

Fine soil makes fine wheat; fine feathers make a fine bird; and fine metals have made the Maxwell. They have given it:

1—A life of 100,000 miles. 2—Thriftiness.

For its metals are light in weight. Therein comes thriftiness.

But these metals are of extra strength. Therein comes long life.

Metallurgists—those who have made the study of metals a science—will tell you that such metals are costly, but they guarantee quality in a car and their generous employment in a Maxwell is by far the best evidence anyone may need to determine its quality.

They are almost alone responsible for the rapid rise of Maxwell, for the fact that nearly 400,000 now have been built, for that ever-growing friendliness to Maxwell the world over.

STEPHENS Salient Six

At the Show—Verify Its Greater Value—Its Greater Service

The excellence of the Stephens Salient Six is so outstanding in its features and its acts of performance, that it is actually a car of Greater Value and Greater Service.

In the hand-built Stephens Bodies you see craftsmanship of the highest order combined with quality—a Salient Value.

The Stephens Engine is the most powerful and most economical in passenger automobiles—S. A. E. rated at 25.3 horse power, it actually develops 57.

And this great reserve power makes the Stephens a Salient road-performer—it has speed, endurance, hill-climbing ability, flexibility, smooth-riding, and quietness combined at their maximum.

The Stephens Engine is no respecter of the grades of gasoline you put into the gasoline tank. It burns the lowest grades without lessened performance.

These and many other Salient features, qualities and acts of performance combine to make the Stephens a motor car of Greater Value and Greater Service. At the Show, prove the Stephens Salient Six.

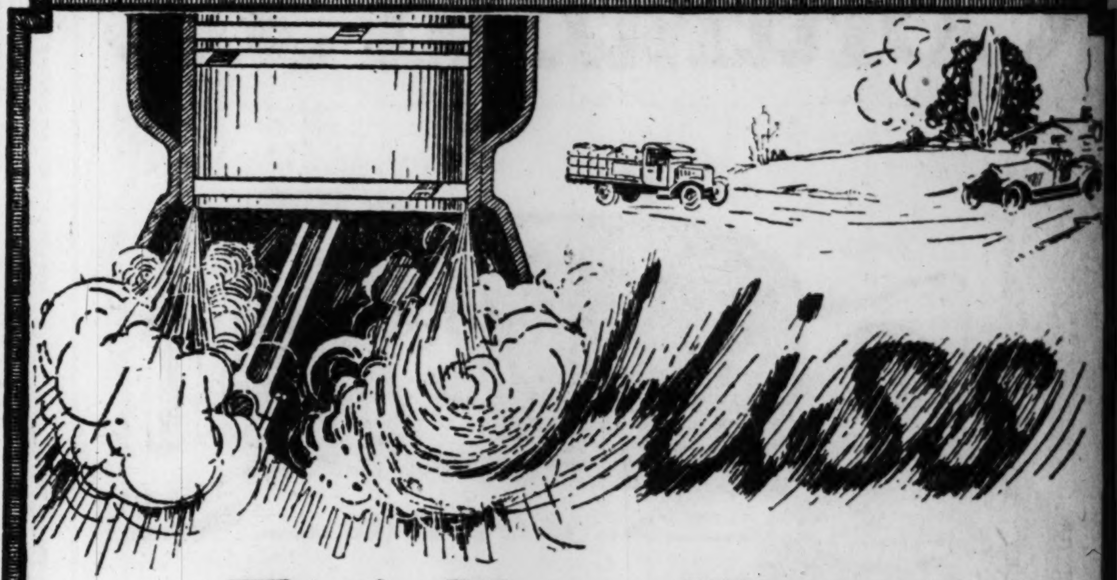
A GREATER VALUE STEPHENS A GREATER SERVICE



That's Money Wasted

Every particle of compression that gets by your pistons is lost beyond recovery—absolutely wasted.

The worst of it is that you paid good money for the gasoline portion of that wasted mixture—big money, too, for gasoline was never so poor at the price.

In addition to money, you lose power—and the satisfaction that goes with it.

Streett's IDEAL MOTOR OIL

"Seals and Satisfies"

Its great viscosity at high temperature effectively seals the clearance between pistons and cylinder walls. The small quantity that works its way into the compression chamber is burned up clean—greatly lessening carbon trouble.

And Streett's Ideal Motor Oil will flow at low temperatures. You can prove this any cold night by putting a bottle of it outside your window.

Don't Change For Winter, Change For All Time.

If your Dealer can't supply you, we will.

Carbon Dust.

In the truck which is equipped with a generator it will be found that a certain amount of fine dust collects in the bottom from the brushes. This should be carefully blown out by compressed air when the truck is undergoing periodic inspection.

NEWSPAPER MAN ENTERS THE AUTOMOBILE FIELD

J. Norton Johnson, who has been a newspaper man in St. Louis for the last five years, announces his entrance into the automobile field. He has become a member of the sales force of the Schlecht Motor Car Co., distributors of the new Gardner car in St. Louis, and is to begin his new work tomorrow.

Johnson, since his return from France last May, has been editor of the automobile section of the Post-Dispatch.

He served 16 months in the A. E. F. as a First Lieutenant in the field artillery and air service.

ENOUGH HEAT WASTED TO WARM AUTOMOBILE

"How can I make my motor car more comfortable this winter?"

Many car owners who have already experienced cold hands and feet and other bodily discomforts have asked this question.

Most of these discomforts are unnecessary if the motorist will take a few simple precautions.

There is enough wasted heat energy derived from gasoline by the average motor car to heat the average dwelling. Three-fourths of this is lost by way of the exhaust pipe and the cooling system. The utilization of this wasted heat should keep the winter motorist comfortable. Many automobile accessory manufacturers have brought out heating devices, most of which utilize the wasted heat of the exhaust.

If a car is of the inclosed type, one of these heaters in the tonneau will make driving in freezing weather as comfortable as in midsummer.

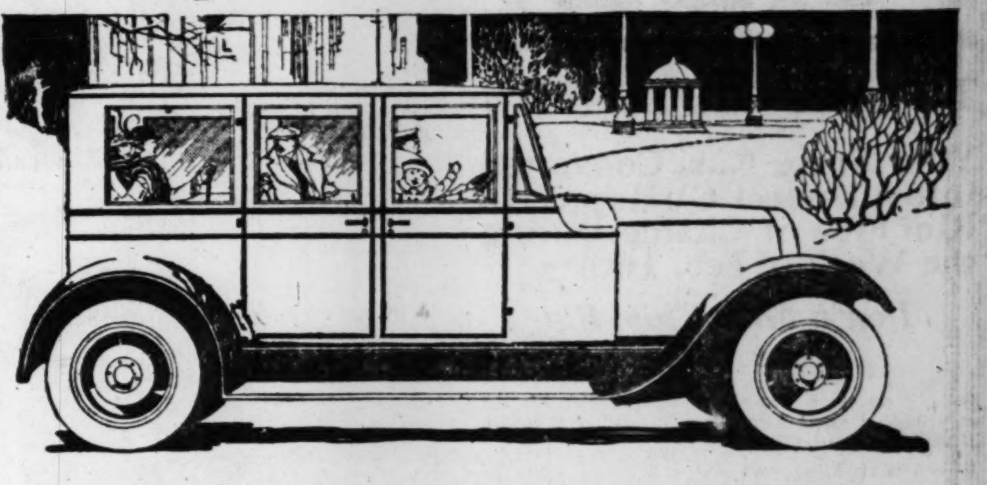
HOLMES
Improved Air Cooled



Experienced Motorists Prefer This Air-Cooled Car

HOLMES Improved Air-Cooling is accepted by experienced motorists as the most efficient cooling system for automobile motors. Among car owners of long experience, who are buying for satisfactory service, the Holmes is achieving first place.

for economy the Holmes is the natural selection, with an average fuel consumption of 18-20 miles to the gallon in a car of 126-in. wheelbase and with a speed range of 3-50 miles an hour on high gear.

for comfort the Holmes becomes first choice, full elliptic springs and a flexible chassis bringing boulevard comfort to all roads at any speed you may want to drive.

for serviceability the Holmes offers freedom from the usual destructive strains of a hard riding chassis — shown in actual driving experience by a tire service of better than 10,000 miles to the set and a noticeable freedom from body squeaks after long hard service.

for appearance the Holmes is built in the most accepted body styles and all models are marked by a noticeable roominess for the easy seating of the occupants.

If tires could talk they would blow themselves up with the heat of their indignation at the way they are abused, physically, as well as orally, by their owners, hence it is perhaps just as well that tires, like other inanimate things, have to suffer in silence without any chance at all to cuss back at their abusers.—American Motorist.

After we've paid a few repair and replacement bills a lot of us begin to wonder if we really knew as much about a car as we thought we did.—American Motorist.

TRUCK DIVISION OF ST. LOUIS AUTO SHOW TO BE AT COLISEUM

Average of 2 Models of Each of 39 Makes to Be Shown Varying From ¾ to 5 Ton Capacity.

Motor trucks for the first time in the annals of the St. Louis automotive industry will this year have a show separate from that of the passenger cars where commercial cars of all varieties and accessories applicable to them will be displayed.

The commercial car division of the Thirteenth Annual Automobile Show will open tomorrow night at 7 p. m., at the Coliseum, Jefferson and Washington avenues, to continue throughout the week the same as the passenger car division at the Southern Hotel building.

There will be 39 different makes of trucks displayed, varying from the three-quarter ton light delivery truck to the heavy duty five-ton type. Different styles of bodies are to be shown, many of which will bear the names of their new owners painted on the sides. An average of two models of each make are to be displayed. The trucks will be arrayed in three large rows with two wide aisles between. Each exhibit, whether single or double space, will bear a show card giving the names of the cars exhibited.

The passenger car show colors, gold and purple, are also to be carried out at the truck show. The ceiling of the Coliseum will be concealed by a huge canopy with wall curtains hung along the balconies to obscure from view the seating arrangement. A section of the seats on the first balcony over the main entrance on Washington avenue will be used by a 16-piece band, which will furnish music. A 12-piece orchestra will furnish music at the passenger car show. Tickets sold at the Coliseum bear a coupon of admittance to the passenger car show and vica versa. Admission price to both shows is 50 cents.

The Show Committee of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers' Association is in charge of the arrangements for both shows. George Schattgen is manager of the truck show. Robert E. Lee is general manager of both shows.

If you can't bring your rim, call Forest 3520. We will call for and deliver your rim when converted —free.

Satisfaction guaranteed. It costs you nothing to have your rim converted and if it does not give you entire satisfaction we will give you a brand-new rim of the kind you brought in.

That's fair, isn't it? You can't lose and the next time you have to change a tire you will be glad you took advantage of this offer.

Change Tires in 3 Minutes With the DRESSEL COLLAPSIBLE RIM

A Single Push With an Ordinary Screw Driver and the Rim Comes Away From the Tire in Three Pieces

No more tugging and pulling at the casing; no more hammering and pounding; no more special tools; no pinched tubes and no more strained muscles and bruised hands.

Once used, the motorist finds it as indispensible as the self-starter.

DRESSEL COLLAPSIBLE RIMS can be used on all makes of pleasure cars and trucks equipped with pneumatic tires.

Here's What One of Our Many Satisfied Users Says:
GENTLEMEN:
We wish to state that we now have all of our Post-Dispatch Dorris delivery trucks equipped with the DRESSEL RIM. The time saved in changing tires and the ease with which it can be done has made the delivery of the Post-Dispatch more efficient. We have driven more than 30,000 miles with some of our trucks since equipped with your rim and they are very satisfactory in every respect. We also have our pleasure cars equipped with your rims. Yours very truly,

USL STORAGE BATTERY SERVICE

Golden Rule Service

Service is the one thing that we sell— service in line with the Golden Rule

WE distribute this same Service to all car owners and to all makes of batteries without discrimination.

When you pay money for a new USL you are buying Golden Rule Service, of which the battery is but an essential part. It's just the same as paying your employees, your lawyer, your doctor, your dentist—for Service.

Service is the most important thing in the world today. To all car owners, we aim to be the "greatest Servant of them all."—Our Golden Rule Service, we think, makes us so. But we invite your careful co-operation in caring for your battery so as to assure you long battery-life.

Often when a man thinks his battery is "done for" and he is ready to buy a new USL, we show how we can save him money by repairing his old battery and giving an adjustment guarantee for eight months.

We sell only USL Batteries with the durable machine-pasted plates. The factory ships them to us "Dry-Charged." This avoids all before-sale deterioration so that you really get a perfect, full-life battery.

We are a USL Golden Rule Service Station—not a battery-store

Biltwell Bodies
Why They Use Them

BECAUSE Biltwell Bodies are Bodies Better Bilt. We make them right here in our own shop—they are all handmade—are made as strong for your truck as the bodies were made for the old delivery wagon. That they last is best judged by the ones still in service. That they please is because they are built after your own idea and painted the color you pick out. Nothing ready made and painted from which you have to make the best of. But a body built for your own individual need.

We Will Be at the Auto Show as Usual.

Trimming, Painting
This harmonious combination enables us to transform the old car so that it will be hard to distinguish it from a new one after we have fitted it with a new top, curtains, seat covers, high-grade job of painting, to color of your own selection.

Wire Wheels
Houk, Hayes and Rudge-Whitworth
We are the official service station and distributors for these wheels. We are thoroughly equipped to give immediate service on emergency repairs. We re-enamel wheels, and do it right.

WHAT ARE YOU DOING?

Are you keen on your work every minute of the working day?

Are you keeping as busy as you possibly can?

Are you alert to see things to be done around you that nobody seems to be doing—parhaps because nobody has been told to do them?

Are you doing the obvious thing, as it pops up unexpectedly in the day's work, without waiting to be told?

Are you improving your own methods of doing your routine work?

Are you making suggestions to your superior which may be of value and which may not have occurred to him because he is busy with his own immediate work?

Are you making yourself bigger than your job, or are you listlessly letting your job be bigger than you?

Are you using the brain that is above your ears for all it is worth, all the time?

If not, why? He who stands still is going behind, because others pass him—The Three Partners.

TOURISTS MEAN MONEY TO TOWNS THAT DRAW THEM

Money in the average town circulates. It moves in a circle from industry to employes, from employes to stores, from stores to the bank and back to the industry again. Additions from outside sources, therefore, are real gains, real profits to the community. Money left in town by tourists is such a profit.

Therefore the town that repels automobilists by poor roads, lack of signs and petty traffic restrictions is losing money. The community that goes out of its way to attract motoring travel is doing some real good for itself.

To draw the stranger and treat him well is more than merely advertising the town. It is making money.—The Ohio Motorist.

Our Special Auto Show Offer

As a means of introducing Tell-Tale Piston Rings in a bigger and broader way, we will allow you a 25% discount on any set of rings purchased by you from your Repair Man between now and April 1st, 1920. Merely present this ad to your repair man, and he will accept it as a 25% payment on the rings—not on the labor. In this way you will save from $3.00 to $9.00.

If you intend having your car overhauled after the rough winter usage, it will pay you to have it done now. Tell-Tale rings are a proven success. They are guaranteed to prevent oil leakage, are oil cooled, and because of their one-piece construction, give a perfect compression all around. Their serrated surface makes them "fit" themselves quickly and tightly in slightly worn, out-of-round or egg shape cylinders.

Service Trucks Give Service

Ideas differ as to what constitutes genuine Motor Truck Service. Here is the SERVICE TRUCK Idea of SERVICE.

Being on the job every day. Giving 100 per cent performance under any and all conditions. Carrying its full capacity load over any road in any old kind of weather.

Having constantly on tap beneath the hood an inexhaustible supply of POWER, always ready to obey instantly the touch of the driving hand or foot.

Possessing within itself those durable, dependable qualities of material and workmanship that reduce operating and upkeep expenses to an absolute minimum.

Let us demonstrate SERVICE superiority to you. You will be under no obligation. See our displays in Sections 146-147 at the Automobile show.

We Have the Solution of Your Trucking Problem

Trucking is a problem of efficiency and cost in the movement of goods.

We've solved other knotty trucking problems before—solved them by delivering to each of our customers a motor truck, or motor trucks, of low service cost, low operating cost, and of a capacity exactly suited to his specific needs.

These trucks are Diamond T Motor Trucks, which we know from experience are the solution of your trucking problems.

Diamond T Motor Trucks are made in a complete line of sizes—five models, ranging from one to five tons capacity.

All we ask of you is that you give us the opportunity to help you and to prove to you our statement that some one or more of the five Diamond T models will meet your needs.

DEVICES TO SAVE IN LOADING OF TRUCKS

Necessary to Decrease to Minimum the Idle Time of Truck and Driver.

"It is more difficult to build up than it is to tear down." This old axiom enters into the efficient operation of motor truck haulage in one of its most important phases. More careful planning and more constructive measures are needed in loading a motor truck than in the unloading. Assembling the cargo at the store offers a far bigger problem than the unloading of the goods at the freight depot or warehouse at the other end of the trip.

Extensive motor truck fleet operators are agreed that their haulage profits are dependent on their ability to decrease to the minimum the idle time of the truck and drivers. Unquestionably the longest delays to which the truck is subjected occur at the loading point. Business men should give special attention to the matter of loading facilities and examine closely all the quick loading devices on the market. Many of them will fit into his delivery scheme in one way or another.

Perhaps one of the most effective loading devices is the demountable body or some modification of the demountable idea. Here is the principle of this device: Two bodies are constructed for each truck. They are interchangeable, in fact, identical with each other. While the truck is making a delivery with one body, the second is held at the plant and loaded.

Trailers, too, are important adjuncts to delivery. In many cases they are considered more valuable than demountable bodies. They may be left at the unloading platforms and docks, they may be moved about as well on their own wheels as demountable bodies can on special overhead tracks, and their slightly increased cost over demountable bodies, is easily offset by their greater carrying capacity.

Another time saving device is the box or bin mounted on roller wheels. While the truck is busy with another delivery the bins may be loaded in the store. Without delay they may be rolled on to the truck body when it is backed up for the load. Such a truck may be likened to a sectional bookcase—a skeleton form is really used inside the regular fixed body of the truck. A modification of these bins are hampers or trunks made of wood fibre. They may be filled, routed and checked in the store and sent to the delivery room. This overcomes the necessity of checking goods at the time of loading, which is a common cause of delay. These trunks are relatively light and can be wheeled about on their own casters.

Escalators, which are nothing more than moving stairways for freight, are indispensable in most department stores, although for heavy merchandise the elevator is largely used. Gravity chutes, also, are valuable aids in the quick handling of small packages. Working hand in hand with spiral gravity chutes are broad belts which carry articles horizontally across the warehouse or store.

For unloading small and uniform units upon trucks a device called a roller gravity conveyer has given wide use and satisfaction. This is made long enough so that it reaches from the shipping platform to a point just behind the driver's seat. When the front portion of the truck has been packed the truck is gradually withdrawn adapting the packing at all depths.

The power winch, the crane and the traveling crane are efficient devices for loading heavy and rough material. There are many other useful devices, but the ones mentioned here embrace the basic principles of loading and they may be modified in a number of ways to meet the needs of individual problems.

TO KEEP MIDLAND TRAIL SIGNS UP TO DATE

Advice received from the Automobile Club of Southern California states that that club will undertake this year the remarking of the Midland Trail from Los Angeles to Ely, Nev., and the Lincoln Highway from that point to Omaha, Neb. This route was first marked by the Automobile Club with permanent enamel steel signs in 1918. The policy of the club being to keep its marking system well maintained, a careful survey of the existing markers was made during 1919, and this year all damaged or mutilated markers will be replaced, as will those signs which contain inaccurate mileage directions now, due to road changes and a shortening of the route across the desert.

HOW TO TELL RIM SQUEAK FROM A SERIOUS SQUAWK

"Too often the amateur motorist," says C. H. Claudy in Motor Life, "and by amateurs I mean one whose motor knowledge extends no further into the vitals of a car than the place to put in gas and oil—too often an amateur motorist will hear a squawk and decide in his wisdom, 'O, that's a rim squeak,' and let it go.

"Now the difference in sound in a rim squeak and a rear-axle-loose-key squawk is plain enough to the experienced ear, but enough similar to deceive the beginner.

A rim squeak is harmless, of course. But there is an infallible method of telling whether the sound is a squeak or a squawk. The rim squeak is recurrent and regular. The key squawk only occurs when sudden and heavy loads are put on the axle and usually after reversing."

HALF BILLION DOLLAR SAVING WITH TRAILERS

Nation's Road Haulage Bill Could Be Cut Third, Declares Expert.

More than $500,000,000 a year is being spent unnecessarily in the United States for road haulage by motor truck, according to a calculation made by H. W. Perry, manager of the Trailer Manufacturers' Association of America.

Basing his estimates on registrations in the various states, which show more than 600,000 motor trucks in use, and assuming the average capacity of these trucks to be two tons and the average mileage traveled by them per day to be 50 miles, it is found they have a daily capacity of 60,000,000 ton-miles, that is, they could haul two tons 20,000,000 in one day.

But the average truck or delivery wagon travels empty half its daily mileage, on its return trip. On many trips it is not loaded to capacity, but on the other hand, it is overloaded frequently and the average capacity is more than two tons. So an estimate of 30,000,000 ton-miles daily is a fair approximation of the work actually done.

265 Days Work for Truck.

There are 300 working days per year, but nearly all trucks are laid up part of the time for repairs, overhauling and painting. Some are operated on holidays and Sundays. An estimate of 265 days' service each per year is believed conservative. Multiplying the 30,000,000 ton-miles daily service by 265, gives a total annual service of 7,950,000,000 ton-miles, rendered by the 600,000 trucks.

The cost of operating trucks varies with the size of the trucks and operating conditions. It runs, roughly, from about $10 a day for a one-ton truck to $20 or $25 for a five-ton truck. Based on numerous records of actual operating costs, it is calculated that the cost of haulage by one-ton truck is about 40 cents per ton-mile, by a two-ton truck about 25 cents, by a three-ton or three and a half-ton truck about 20 cents. The greatest number of trucks in use are of one to three and a half tons capacity; therefore, 23 cents per ton-mile is taken as a fair average of the cost of haulage by truck. At this rate the total cost of the 7,950,000,000 ton-miles service is $1,828,500,000 a year.

Cost of Operating Trailers.

Tables of operating cost of trailers and semi-trailers as compiled by leading trailer manufacturers from their own experience and that of users, show the cost to vary from about 3½ cents to 6½ cents per ton-mile according to type and size of trailer. This indicates 5 cents as an average, or less than one-quarter that of truck haulage; but trailer manufacturers and users generally claim a saving of one-half or more in hauling cost with trailers as compared with motor trucks. To be conservative and well within the probability, an average of 10 cents per ton-mile, or double the estimates of trailer manufacturers, is taken as the basis cost of haulage with trailers and semi trailers.

If every motor truck were to draw one trailer or semi-trailer of the same load capacity as the truck, half the total tonnage would be carried on trailers. In practice a three-ton semi-trailer is used with a one-ton truck and a 12 or 15-ton semi-trailer with a five-ton truck. Sometimes two four-wheel trailers are hauled by a motor truck. Thus, three times the load capacity of the truck itself is hauled at one trip. But, again, to be conservative and on the safe side, it is assumed that only one-half the total annual ton-mileage, or 3,975,000,000 could be carried on trailers.

Taking the average ton-mile cost by truck as 23 cents and by trailer as 10 cents, there would be a saving of 13 cents per ton-mile. This multiplied by 3,975,000,000 gives $516,750,000 as the reduction in the annual bill of the nation for motor haulage that could be realized by the universal use of trailers, and semi-trailers with the motor trucks in operation today.

MOTOR GROCERY STORE VISITS ITS CUSTOMERS

One of the newest applications of the motor truck is its conversion into a grocery store. From the proprietors' viewpoint the principal advantage of the store on wheels is that it saves rent and means a quick turnover in handling and selling of goods. Stock sold from the car is replaced twice a day. Selling expenses are reduced, as there is no necessity for securing orders before making delivery. The car brings the store to the customer, the customer sees the goods and knows just what is being purchased. All the goods are sold from a two-ton truck, equipped with compartments and shelves built on much the same order as those found in the average grocery store. This plan is giving quite a jolt to the high cost of living, for goods can be sold cheaper, because of low operating cost.

HOUSES SCARCE, HE SHIPS ONE BY TRUCK

The ship-by-truck idea has been employed recently in many novel undertakings, but it remained for Lawrence Stewart of Wichita, Kan., to requisition it in its most unusual form. Stewart jacked up a three-room house at Towanda, placed a couple of pair of wheels under it, hitched on a motor truck, and after the outfit had made a short trip over country roads, Wichita, where a house shortage exists, was one house the richer. The venture was so successful that Stewart says he will give another house the same journey.

FIVE TYPES OF AUTOMOBILES; WHERE THE NAMES ORIGINATED

There are many styles and types of automobiles in use today, but probably the five best known and most popular in the United States are the coupe, the sedan, the limousine, the touring car and the roadster. The first three names are French in their origin, and the last two are English.

The word coupe was applied originally to a four-wheeled closed carriage for two persons inside, with an outside seat for the driver. It is derived from the French word meaning "to cut" and is so-called because it gives the appearance of a large carriage cut in half. The word was later taken over and applied to the present enclosed car with one seat in the rear, a driver's seat, and an auxiliary seat.

The word sedan probably is one of the oldest terms applied to a vehicle for transportation. It was used for the first time in France, and takes its origin from the French city of that name. This name takes on a peculiar significance now when it is remembered that the sensational advance of Pershing's fighters reached Sedan when the armistice was signed. The first sedans were portable enclosed chairs carried on poles by two men. They were extremely popular in England, and still are used in China, Austria and India. The modern sedan has an enclosed body and accommodates seven passengers. Because of the single enclosed compartment, it is popularly known as the all-season, all-purpose family car.

Limousine was originally the name of a cloak worn in France, and probably originated from Limousin, the name of an old province in Central France. Today it is applied to the chauffeur-driven car with an enclosed compartment. The driver's seat is outside, but covered by a roof.

Roadster was first applied to vessels that worked their way by means of the tides. Later it was used for bicycles. The modern roadster has an open body and was designed primarily for two persons, but of recent years the four-door roadster, accommodating four passengers, has met with popular favor.

The touring car, which is the most familiar type of car, takes its name from the fact that it is used by motorists on lengthy tours. It is an open car also, with a tonneau and four doors, seating seven passengers.

HOW MANY OF THESE QUESTIONS COULD YOU ANSWER IN COURT?

Wouldn't it be odd if you had an accident and you were sued, put on the stand in your own defense and the Prosecuting Attorney asked the following questions:

1. What is the make of your car?
2. What horsepower?
3. How many cylinders?
4. What kind of tires on each wheel?
5. What speed can you make?.
6. What wheel base is it?
7. How much mileage to a gallon of gasoline?
8. In what distance can you stop your car without skidding?
9. What kind of brake lining do you use?

In 99 cases out of 100 the autoist can answer unhesitatingly the first seven questions, but not one in 100 can answer the eighth or ninth question.

Then the Prosecuting Attorney says to the jury: "I rest my case. This party knows everything regarding his car which pertains to his comfort and economy, but nothing does he know, and apparently little does he care, for the safety of the public. I ask for a verdict on the ground of negligence." Now, Mr. Autoist, wouldn't you be in a fix?

Have your brakes inspected regularly.

AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY PUT AMONG REAL LEADERS

Its High Position Assured by Action in Washington—All Other Industries Depend on Truck.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The high position which the automobile industry is certain to hold in the industrial life of the nation in the future is foreshadowed by the action of the council of national defense in recognizing it as a basic industry.

Touching on this matter a prominent automobile manufacturer in an interview in this city, said:

"By the council of national defense selecting the automobile industry as one of the eight basic industries from which facts and figures were desired at the recent industrial conference held in this city as the best possible remedy for the high cost of living, there is not only a positive recognition of that industry but it is proved that the products of that industry have become basic utilities in the production and transportation of all other products.

"Take the seven other basic industries—steel, cotton, wool, food, industrial construction, shipbuilding, road and bridge construction. All of these industries depend to a great extent on the motor truck as well as the automobile in the transportation of materials, supplies, equipment, men and other factors that enter into their distributing activities.

"It is natural, therefore, when the leading and prominent executives in the eight basic industries started their conference that they would want facts and figures on just how the motor truck and the automobile could help in keeping high prices down. Without a doubt there was such a mass of figures and statistics to prove the economy of the automobile and motor truck that in final analysis, when the plans of the conference have been approved, it will find the auto.

Asked how he liked a certain make of spark plug, the truthful but kindly critic admitted it sooted him to perfection.—American Motorist.

Whatever You Do Don't Neglect Your Eyes, Says Dr. Lewis, Who

Tells How to Strengthen Eyesight 50% in One Week's Time in Many Instances

A Free Prescription You Can Have Filled and Use at Home

Philadelphia, Pa.—Do you wear glasses? Are you a victim of eye strain or other eye weaknesses? If so, you will be glad to know that according to Dr. Lewis there is real hope for you. He says neglect causes more eye troubles and poor sight than any other one thing. Many whose eyes were failing say they had their eyes restored through the principle of this wonderful free prescription. One man says after trying it: "I was almost blind; could not see to read at all. Now I can read everything without any glasses and my eyes do not water any more. At night they would pain dreadfully; now they feel fine all the time. It was like a miracle to me." A lady who used it says: "The atmosphere seemed hazy with or without glasses, but after using this prescription for fifteen days everything seems clear. I can even read fine print without glasses." It is believed that thousands who wear glasses can now discard them in a reasonable time and multitudes more will be able to strengthen their eyes so as to be spared the trouble and expense of ever getting glasses. Eye troubles of many descriptions may be wonderfully benefited by following the simple rules. Here is the prescription: Go to any active drug store and get a bottle of Bon-Opto tablets. Drop one Bon-Opto tablet in a fourth of a glass of water and allow to dissolve. With this liquid bathe the eyes two or four times daily. You should notice your eyes clear up perceptibly right from the start and inflammation will quickly disappear. If your eyes are bothering you, even a little, take steps to save them now before it is too late. Many hopelessly blind might have been saved if they had cared for their eyes in time.

NOTE: Another prominent Physician to whom the above article was submitted said: "Bon-Opto is a very remarkable remedy. Its constituent ingredients are well known to eminent eye specialists and widely prescribed by them." The manufacturers guarantee it to strengthen eyesight 50 per cent in one week's time in many instances or refund the money. It can be obtained from any good druggist, and is one of the very few preparations I feel should be kept on hand for regular use in almost every family. It is sold in this city by all leading druggists, including the Enderle, Johnson Bros., Pauley, Judge & Dolph and Wolff-Wilson stores.

228 Passenger Cars to Be on Display at Southern Hotel—Trucks of 39 Different Makes to Be Shown at Coliseum—Twelve New Passenger Cars Exhibited for First Time.

The latest word in motordom's fashions will be given the public tomorrow night with the opening of the Thirteenth Annual St. Louis Automobile Show, which will extend throughout the week. Passenger cars will be displayed in the Exhibit building, formerly the Southern Hotel, Broadway and Walnut street, and motor trucks, or commercial cars, as they are more preferably called by those in the automobile trade, will be shown at the Coliseum, Jefferson and Washington avenues.

Both shows will open simultaneously at 7 p. m. tomorrow evening and will close Saturday, Feb. 21, at 11 p. m.

This is the first time in the annals of the industry in St. Louis that commercial cars have been offered for public display separate from the exhibit of passenger cars. Last year because of the limited space at the exhibit building trucks were not shown. Neither were they shown in 1917. In 1916 when commercial cars were exhibited at the annual show for the first time it was done in conjunction with the passenger car show, at the Overland building.

Both shows will be open from 11 a. m. until 11 p. m. and tickets of admission purchased for either show will bear a coupon of admittance to the other. The price of admission will be 50 cents.

There will be 76 different makes of automobiles exhibited by 62 dealers at the passenger car show and each dealer will show an average of three models of each make, giving a total of 228 cars that will be exhibited.

Thirty-nine makes of trucks will be shown at the Coliseum with each dealer exhibiting at least two models of each make. There are 16 combination dealers who will have exhibits at both shows.

There will be 72 accessory exhibits at both shows.

Show Manager Robert E. Lee said that the decorations this year though adhering to the show colors of long standing, purple and gold, would be more beautiful in their profusness than ever before.

A special effort has been made this year he said to have the decorations distinctive and unlike any used in the past.

There will also be a great diversity of exhibits in accessories for the motor car at both the passenger and commercial car shows including various kinds of anti-theft locks, tires, gas savers, road signs, starters, tire fillers, automobile bodies, batteries, spark plugs, gasoline pumps, collapsible rims, piston rings, shock absorbers, cold air shutters for the radiator, oils, vulcanizing machinery, and many more.

Two very striking exhibits in the automobile parts display will be those of the McCabe Powers Carriage Co. and the McQuillan-Bradford and Company. The McCabe-Powers Company will show a hearse body the decorations upon which are hand carved. The body is in the natural wood finish and demonstrates the similarity of the craft to that of the sculptor working in marble where patience and care is a big factor. The McQuillan-Bradford company will have on display a touring car with top up that has been finished in a fabrikoid material resembling alligator hide. Even the body of the car which heretofore has been seen either in a painted or enameled state has been covered entirely in the new material. The material is similar to that being used by an increasing number of automobile manufacturers in the production of the California top, a permanent top for open cars.

The Beck & Corbitt Iron Co. will exhibit garage and service station tools and machinery. Other accessory dealers will have complete accessory shops in their spaces. The Shapleigh Hardware Co. will have a large space to show tools and hardware applicable to the automobile business. The Campbell Iron Co. will also exhibit garage and service station machinery and equipment. At the Coliseum there will be accessory exhibits applicable to the motor truck.

Among its manifold accomplishments St. Louis, it is predicted, has produced an exposition that will rank second to none in the country.

On entering the Exhibit building the public will be confronted with a scene that is certain to please and refresh. Here just inside the main entrance on Walnut street will be an electric fountain of large proportions with multi-colored lights casting varied colored rays as the water plays over them in trickling into a reservoir beneath where there will be great quantities of goldfish.

At the back of the fountain which is to stand at least eight feet high there will be a lattice work as high again solidly banked with trailing plants intertwined.

About the fountain are to be placed

What 1920-21 Holds Forth for Motorists in Way of Good Roads

At a Cost of $1,000,000 There Are to Be Built 43 Miles of Concrete Roads in St. Louis County—State Highway Board Has Authorized Building of 724 Miles of Highways

The Federated Roads Council of St. Louis has completed a survey of the road situation in Missouri with a view to determining the possible amount of road construction to be done during the years 1920-21. One of the significant items included in the survey is the work which the Council has made possible in St. Louis County where, during the present year, 43 miles of concrete highways are to be constructed at a cost of approximately $1,000,000. This work is to be on the State roads, namely: The St. Charles Rock road, Manchester, Gravois and Lemay Ferry. This does not include the work which the county itself is to do on the lateral roads and other highways upon which there is to be no Federal aid.

The roads to be completed in the county will make it possible to use hard surfaced highways the entire distance between St. Louis and St. Charles on the St. Charles Rock road; on 16 miles of the Manchester road from the North and South road to Grover, Mo.; 7 miles on the Gravois road from the city limits to Kennerly avenue and the entire distance traversed by the Lemay Ferry road from Carondelet to the Meramec River county line.

The statement of the Council shows that in Missouri the State Highway Board has authorized the building of 724 miles of roadway upon which Federal aid is to be used. Of this total more than 250 miles is to be of the high type of construction such as brick, concrete, asphalt, and bituminous macadam; 450 miles of this total is to be gravel and only 17 miles is to be graded earth. The total cost of this construction will be approximately $10,200,000, of which there will be $4,370,000 of Federal aid and $694,000 of State aid.

In addition to this authorized mileage the State Highway Board has set aside $7,200,000 which is to be used in the 114 counties of the State at the rate of $60,000,000 per county under the Morgan-McCulloch amendments.

The Federal Government in Washington has approved projects for the use of Federal aid in the following counties:

	Miles		Miles
Bonne	2.79	Lawrence	22.
Buchanan	33.8	Lewis	16.
Butler	37.	Mississippi	34.
Callaway	7.	New Madrid	38.

Hickory	12.	St. Charles	1.
Howell	40.	St. Louis	43.
Jackson	5.	Vernon	6.
Jasper	13.	Washington	8.
Jefferson	9.

This is 80 projects in 40 counties which the Federal Government has approved.

The report of the Federated Roads Council shows that there are outstanding in the State, at the present time, $18,132,000 worth of bonds passed by the individual counties, all of which money will be used during the coming two years for road construction. The report also shows that there is on hand, at the present time in the State Highway Department, approximately $3,000,000 worth of Federal aid which is held for the purpose of matching dollars with counties desirous of constructing State Highways. It is stated, however, that this Federal aid will be practically used up within the next few months, owing to projects now being prepared by the respective counties upon which Federal aid will be asked.

The report includes a statement showing the number of automobiles in each of the counties during the year 1919 and the increase in automobiles in each county over that of 1918. The total number of automobiles in the State at present is 245,000, an increase of more than 30 per cent over 1918.

The report of the Council is being prepared to show the fact that money for State Highway construction in Missouri is rapidly being used up and that the State is confronted with the necessity of passing the $60,000,000 bond issue in November in order to provide additional funds for State Highway construction.

HIGHWAY DON'TS

Don't blow your horn in an attempt to hurry a herd of cows off the road. It can't be done.

Don't start a race with a friend on a public highway.

Don't fail to give proper warning when attempting to pass a machine from the rear.

Don't leave your car standing with the engine running.

Don't speed through small towns.

Don't go back on to main highway or away from the curb without holding your signal arm out.

Don't cut corners, even in the country.

The ASTRA

The first showing of this new St. Louis automobile will be to St. Louisans at the Exhibit Building this week

The Astra is a car with ideals—ideals of comfort, of beauty, of economy. It is a popular-priced car with the ideals of a high-priced car.

Comfort in the Astra is in the luxury of the low, thick-cushioned seats, with a slant in the front of the tonneau which gives ample leg room. It is the comfort of sitting in an easy chair at home. You ride in and not on the car.

It is the easy-riding qualities brought about by the 6-inch frame being so swung between the wheels as to absorb the maximum of road shocks.

There is beauty in the simple, elegant straight lines which lifts the Astra out of the popular-priced class. And, added to this beauty is the charm of the European influence in the design. And there is beauty—and service—in the finish of the body.

The Astra is a car of real economy. It has a flexible power plant with ample capacity. There is just the proper ratio between the weight of the car and its power to secure the maximum economy of operation.

It is significant that 3000 Astras have already been ordered for export.

STANDARD EIGHT

A Powerful Car

See It at the Show

THE Standard Eight is a powerful car which does not depend on weight to keep the road.

Balance, suspension, and right proportions have been so perfectly co-ordinated with power that the Standard Eight's riding comfort leaves nothing to be desired.

Thus that sense of full and unlimited power which every motorist covets because it is the base of all motoring pleasure is obtained without sacrificing comfort in riding.

Meeting and luncheon for visiting dealers will be held Wednesday, Feb. 18, at Planters Hotel at 12 sharp. To be given under auspices of St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers' Association. Principal speakers will be Edward S. Jordan, president of the Jordan Motor Car Co. of Cleveland, and Maj. Harry B. Hawes, president of the Federated Roads Council.

THAT NEW MOTOR CAR

When your new car is delivered, remember that all working parts are new, fitted very tightly, and should be handled slowly until the car is run several hundred miles. It is advisable to drive slowly and carefully for the first 500 miles, giving such parts as motor bearings, pistons and various other parts fitted tightly a chance to wear in somewhat. See that your car has been gone over thoroughly for oil and grease, particularly the motor, transmission, rear axle and all grease cups. The radiator should be flushed out and filled with clean water, as sediments of solder or other foreign matter sometimes remain in new radiators and many work into water pump or other working parts, causing damage.

Have the storage battery examined to note that same is properly charged and full enough of distilled water. Often new cars remain in storage before delivery is made, which would cause battery to run low from standing. If battery is used in this weakened condition it often happens the entire battery is ruined.

A RECIPE FOR CEMENT.

Four parts of iron filings, two of lime, a fifth part of common salt, mixed to a paste by the addition of vinegar, makes an excellent cement for spark plugs, for connecting pipes, etc. When properly compounded this cement will withstand compression and heat and can be air dried.

Announcing the New Six-48 for 1920

Crowning eleven years of successful motor car manufacturing, the new Moon Six-48 succeeds the Victory Model as the greatest triumph of Moon builders.

Many improvements in the Six-48 are particularly noteworthy. The new high-speed motor is capable of lightning like acceleration from the pace of a walk to 45 and 50 miles an hour without the least vibration. This extraordinary flexibility of the motor is enhanced by a matchless oiling system that automatically lubricates under all conditions of speed and strain. A heavier frame and a four-inch longer wheelbase give a finer balance and a lower center of gravity—long steps towards greater driving and riding comfort.

Full cord tire equipment is added.

The New Six-48 is made in Touring, Roadster, Sedan and Coupe body types.

MODERN MOTOR CARS

AUTO PRICES NOT TO DECLINE DURING 1920

Labor and Raw Materials Too High, Say Manufacturers—Price Advance in Sight.

Motor car prices can't come down this year.

That's the vote of a majority of makers as indicated by answers to queries sent out by Automobile Topics, a motor trade journal.

On the contrary, prices are more liable to advance, the journal reports. "Exhausted stocks of all steel products holds all prices high," is one maker's explanation and "prices will undoubtedly advance unless we enter a period of business depression," is another.

On the theory that fundamentals absolutely govern affairs of the industry, another maker says that "if labor and materials decline car prices will follow."

The fact that the demand for motor cars is many times greater than the supply, although every motor maker is working full shifts night and day, is also a contributing factor.

However, the motor men point out, motor prices are out of all harmony with the prices of other commodities. They call attention to the recent report of the national industrial conference board, which reports an increase of 82.2 per cent in the cost of living between July, 1914, and November, 1919. Clothing, food, fuel, heat and light have gone up by leaps and bounds, while motor car prices have advanced but 2 per cent the last year.

Figures brought forward by the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce indicate that the average wholesale value of all cars produced during 1919 was $882, the average of all cars similarly calculated for 1918 was $864, making an advance during the year on the average wholesale prices $18 per car.

Of course the industry is so large and its production so varied that averages cannot be wholly representative. A complete analysis is not only difficult to compile, but difficult to interpret intelligently.

DRY THE SIDE CURTAINS.

There is a good chance of the curtains mildewing if folded and packed away when they are damp. It takes but a few minutes longer to dry them thoroughly before stowing them away, and the assurance of their keeping in good condition is worth these extra minutes.

USE 30,000,000 TIRES A YEAR.

It is estimated by experts in the Department of Research of the Automobile Trade Directory, that trucks and passenger cars in America use more than 30,000,000 tires a year, and approximately 46,000,000 tubes.

The Leader of Light-Weight Cars

WHILE the great mass of automobile users today still employ the motor car merely as a means of getting about, there are those who seek to express, in the equipages they own, something of the finer impulses and of the finer ideals that guide them in the choosing of their friends and of their homes. To such as these, the present post-war series of Premier motor cars will make resistless appeal.

Here is upholstering that is upholstering—not merely deep cushions, but actually deeper and softer cushions. Note heater in floor—all Premier cars, both closed and open, are regularly equipped with this great comfort feature.

EW OWNERS OFTEN ADJUST THEIR BRAKES TOO TIGHTLY

A mistake frequently made, especially by new car ners, is to adjust the brakes so tightly that they de the wheels when applied. Of course, this stops car quickly, but it inflicts such excessive wear on treads as to make it a very expensive operation.

CINDERS ON A GARAGE FLOOR.

The average car owner may not know that a layer cinders six inches thick makes a very satisfactory or for the home garage. The cinders should be oroughly tamped down, a hose being used to get em down during the operation. This floor absorbs ease, oil, or gasoline that may leak out of the echanism and it is, moreover, practically dustless.

Harry Newman Secures Valuable Car Franchises

During the war the Harry Newman Corporation announced they would sell trucks, trailers and tractors only.

The present enormous demand for passenger cars has prompted their re-entry in the passenger car field while continuing their truck business which has grown to great proportions.

When it was announced that the Harry Newman Company was again taking on passenger cars, sixteen franchises were offered.

Choosing from these were selected on the following five angles, stability of the manufacturer, quality of the product, price, beauty of design and delivery, the selection fell upon the Root & Vandervoort Engineering Co., and the Commonwealth Motors Corporation.

The R. & V. Knight announcement is shown to the right.

The other line, the Commonwealth, is a 4-cylinder, 40-H. P., 117'' wheel base motor car, with bevel edge, streamline body, leather-finished top, with plate-glass portholes, curtains that open with the door, extremely roomy tonneau, and sells for $1395.00.

This car has the noted Lycoming motor which is used in several other prominently known lines. The Commonwealth Motor Corporation are running an extensive advertising campaign—two pages appeared in January Saturday Evening Post, and a full page for each month the balance of this year. Both lines will be shown at the St. Louis Automobile Show on the 2nd floor, Fourth Street Salon.

It can well be said that with the wide experience that the Harry Newman Corporation has had, the selection of these two lines unquestionably stamps these cars as deserving of consideration of both the experienced motorist and motor car dealers.

Do not fail to see the Commonwealth 4-40, America's greatest motor car value.

The Most Beautiful Car in America

A Car of Beauty and Real Worth

In undertaking to build a six-cylinder motor that would set a new standard for five-passenger cars, we knew that we were assuming a task which could not be completed in a week, a month or even a year.

As a matter of fact, three years were consumed before we were satisfied that our original purpose had been fully achieved.

The verdict which we ourselves rendered has now been confirmed by the judgment of the motorist. Owners of the five-passenger Paige Glenbrook have found its six-cylinder motor not only exceptional in power and speed, but also a revelation in dependability and economy.

The Glenbrook is distinctly a Paige car in beauty as well as mechanical excellence. It was recognized at once as such. And, as an investment value, it is acknowledged to be without equal in the light six field.

AUTO DEMAND IS GROWING FASTER THAN HIGHWAYS

Revised Act Before Congress Plans National System of Roads.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Modern highway construction is not keeping pace with the demand for modern highway rolling stock. Motor-driven vehicles are being produced in numbers far beyond the mileage of types of roadbed necessary to provide economic operation. And yet, great as the productive rate of new vehicles may be, it is far below current requirements.

These facts bearing upon the nation's highway transportation problems are being emphasized in highway development circles as additional reasons for expanding the activities of the Federal Government in highway construction. The measure known as the Townsend bill, has been redrawn and reintroduced in Congress. Henceforth it is to be known as the national highway act. It now embodies all of the features desired by all sections of the country, and in its present form will be pressed to definite action as firmly and consistently as legislative conditions will warrant.

Two main objects, the construction of a national highway speedway commission, are sought in the act. It proposes that the commission shall establish, construct, maintain, improve and regulate a national system of highways composed of connecting interstate roads which shall, by the most practicable routes and with due consideration for the principal centers of agricultural and industrial production, afford ingress into and egress from each state.

The proposed act also provides that the commission may make all necessary surveys and maps in connection with the establishment, construction, maintenance, improvement or regulation of the national system of highways, and may construct, maintain, improve and regulate any highway which is a part of the national system, or, in its discretion, may contract with any state highway department for such surveys or maps, or for the construction, maintenance or improvement of any such highway in such state.

It is proposed also that the portion of the national highway system in each state shall equal 1 per cent of the total highway mileage used as such in the state as ascertained by the commission.

For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the act, it is proposed to appropriate $50,000,000 which shall become immediately available; $75,000,000 for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1920, and $100,000,000 for each of the three succeeding fiscal years, in all $425,000,000, which shall be available until expended.

WINTON SIX

For the First Time

ONE reason why the newest Winton Six is so pleasing to critical eyes is that, for the first time, automobile design satisfies the demand for artistic unity.

No longer is the automobile a motor in front and a body behind. Now, in the Winton Six, the entire car is one—a single, wholesome passenger vehicle, with harmoniously graceful lines; as delightful to behold as it is gratifying to own and to drive. It is the surprise car of the year—alive with power, charming in the energetic grace of its performance, and a builder of happiness.

SAFE DRIVERS' CLUB PLANNED TO CURTAIL AUTO ACCIDENTS

Automobile Club to Co-operate With Safety Council in Move to Make Driving Safe.

The Automobile Club of St. Louis has formulated plans for the organization of a Safe Drivers' Club in St. Louis which will operate in conjunction with the Public Safety Division of the local Safety Council in endeavoring to curtail automobile accidents.

Statistics prepared by W. L. Patterson of the Safety Council show that during the months of August, September, October and November last there were an average of 646 automobile accidents in the city per month, resulting in injury to an average of 240 persons. Deaths from accidents averaged 10 a month. The property damage for that period averaged $45,000 per month, or more than one dollar per montn for each passenger and commercial car operated in St. Louis.

It is the opinion of the Automobile Club that these facts are of vital concern to every owner of an automobile in the city and that there should be steps to conduct a campaign o fa nature that would instruct the motorist and pedestrian as well in the rules of the road and careful driving.

It is the plan of the Automobile Club to solicit the aid of schools and churches as well as motorists generally at a time to be announced later when a two weeks' safety plan will be launched. It is also part of the plan to hold at some convenient location a safe drivers' school for persons who drive their own car on the order of the school now being conducted for truck drivers and chauffeurs by the Safety Council.

To become a member of the Safe Drivers' Club it will be necessary to sign a pledge which is to the following effect:

1. I hereby make application for membership in the Safe Drivers' Club of St. Louis, and promise to observe the traffic laws and every rule of safety first in the operation of my automobile, and to influence, in every possible manner, every other automobile driver of my acquaintance, to do the same.

2. I understand that there are no financial or other obligations connected with membership in the Safe Drivers' Club of St. Louis, and that it is a great public move to reduce the number of automobile accidents by making automobilists think.

3. No man can have an accident while he is thinking safety first.

A lapel button has been designed which will be presented to each member at the time the pledge is signed. The use of motion pictures and talks by safety experts, city officials and the traffic police is also planned.

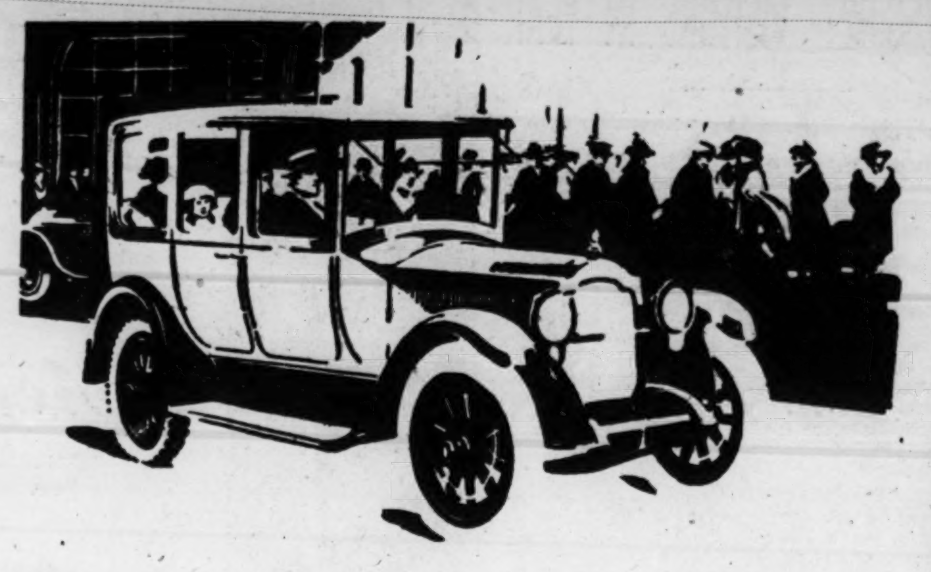
500,000 PERSONS SEE PARIS SHOW

PARIS, Feb. 10.—More than half a million persons attended the French automobile show in the Grand Palais, Paris, and of the 438,552 paid for admission. The total gate receipts were about 1,000,000 francs, $197,343. The show remained open 11 days, including two Sundays. The attendance was so great on the first Sunday that the price of admission was doubled for the following Sunday. This did not prevent 59,135 persons passing through the gates, the income from this source being $23,654.

All records for attendance and gate receipts have been broken, and the big income will allow a substantial refund to be made to exhibitors.

AN UPHOLSTERY CLEANER.

There is no better agent for cleaning leather upholstery than the old-fashioned formula: Raw linseed oil and turpentine mixed in proportions of two of the former to one of the latter. For cloth upholstery, which is so much used in closed car work, the best cleaning agent is plain cold water and a solution of three-quarters of an ounce of common salt and two ounces of either grain or wood alcohol. The mixture is rubbed on the cloth with a sponge and dampened in the solution.



What Can a Man Really Learn at the Show

THERE are a lot of things a man buys that he intends to discard after a season or so. He expects the style to change year by year. This is as it should be.

But no matter how much money a man has, when he makes a purchase involving perhaps $3000 and up, he expects to get a reasonably permanent value.

He usually gets it in everything but his motor car, where the habit of style change year after year may wipe out 27 per cent. of its value over night.

IF a car is expected to last only a year or two, there is no reason why its style should not change every season.

But the Packard Company believes that stabilized style is just as much a part of basic transportation principles as Packard mechanical features and performance.

The Packard car is built to deliver service over a term of years. Its style is no more subject to passing moods than its engineering design.

WHEREVER you go, you hear people say they see "so many Packards" on the street.

That is because the Packard keeps on running and is always a "new model."

The public opinion about the Packard car is perhaps the most valuable automobile goodwill in the world.

NATIONAL PARKS ATTRACT 756,027 VISITORS IN YEAR

Previous High Mark Doubled—Further Increase in Touring Expected This Year.

During the year just closed, travel to our national parks, not including Hawaii and Mount McKinley, reached the great total of 756,027 visitors.

This is an increase over last year of nearly 70 per cent. It is an increase of 55 per cent over the previous record year of 1917, and an increase of 125 per cent over the California exposition year of 1915. That year in turn had brought 25 per cent more visitors to the national parks than the highest year preceding it. It was the first year of Stephen T. Mather's direction of the national parks.

Two New Parks Opened.

As a record of this year's increased national parks travel over last year's, however, the comparison is misleading because the big total includes 101,745 visitors to the two national parks, which were created during the current year, Lafayette, on the coast of Maine, and the Grand Canyon in Arizona.

Deducting these, we have 654,282 visitors this year to national parks which were in existence the year before and were then visited by 451,691 persons. The rate of increase for the same 14 national parks was 45 per cent during the current year.

Oklahomans Travel Widely.

Platt National Park in Oklahoma drew 30 per cent fewer visitors, while Oklahomans were found in large numbers in other national parks and in California during the summer. The name of the State dotted hotel registers in all the resorts and fluttered on the flags of many thousands of touring motors all through the West. Oklahoma oil has brought widespread prosperity during the last several years.

Hundreds of motorists who before the war were accustomed to tour in Europe made transcontinental tours in this country last summer visiting the national parks. The slogan "See America First," which has been adopted generally throughout the country, is expected to result in a larger tourist travel during the coming season.

AN UNSATISFACTORY TIRE COVER.

A farmer having purchased a tire cover from one of Chicago's automobile supply houses, returned the cover in a ruined condition, saying he had received only 300 miles' service from it. He had been using the cover on one of the tires of his car with the idea that it was a means of obtaining larger mileage.

A Surprise in Design Awaits You at the Show

Mitchell sets new style

THE welcome accorded the Mitchell at the National Shows gives to motoring America the motor car style which sets a new standard in body building art.

Creators of automobile design have long been working toward the new ideas found in these new models.

And we predict that the cars of a year or two hence will follow the styles Mitchell now introduces.

To see these new Mitchell cars is to realize that this great forward stride is the logical development of design.

You will readily realize that they are the culmination of many months of effort by master craftsmen.

Severe vertical lines have given way to graceful slants in radiator, windshield, hood and doors. A long, sweeping effect is attained by the use of an extended moulding reaching from front to rear. An authoritative touch is added in the beveled crown.

Don't miss the ONE big style feature of the Show. See the new Mitchells. Note the crowd of admirers. Then place your order so as to insure Spring delivery.

AN ENTIRELY NEW MODEL

THE NEW GRANT SIX

Those who have seen the new Grant Six speak enthusiastically of its beauty. It is indeed the perfection of proportion and design. It combines the rakish, smart lines of the finest sport type car with the comfort of a really luxurious five-passenger touring car. Nothing so attractive has ever been shown in a car of such moderate price.

Its mechanical construction is as good and fine as its beautiful body. Its overhead valve motor is exceptionally powerful, its frame extra deep and strong. Its Columbia axles are unusually big, sturdy and capable—the rear axle having the one-piece housing, making it fifty per cent stronger than the conventional two-piece housing. Springs are so long and flexible that this car gives a new interpretation to riding comfort.

The large demand already indicates an extraordinary appreciation of this car, therefore it is advisable to place your order early to insure delivery at an early date.

CONFERENCE FEB. 23 TO PASS ON PRESIDENT'S RAILWAY WAGE PLAN

Strike of Maintenance of Way Men, Set for Tuesday, Postponed

DETROIT, Mich. Feb. 14.

THE strike of 300,000 members of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes and Railway Shop Laborers, set for Tuesday, was indefinately postponed by Allen E. Barker, international president of the union, in accordance with the request of President Wilson that action be delayed until after the general conference of railway union committeemen Feb. 23.

Mr. Barker's decision, he announced, was taken on recommendation of the Executive Committee, now in Washington, to whom it appeared, he said that late developments in their wage controversy tended to place the maintenance of way union in a position apart from the other unions and "seemingly forgetful of public interest." He maintained, however, that immediate relief must me had and that a strike as planned, would have been fully justified.

Notice of the decision to postpone the strike was communicated to Director-General Hines by Barker in this message:

"In compliance with recommendation of the committee of the brotherhood now at Washington I am indefinitely postponing the strike to have become effective Tuesday morning, Feb. 17. However, I am confirmed in my belief that strike action would have been eminently justified to force favorable action on the wage demands of the men for whom I speak. It is evident our committee did not desire that the maintenance of way brotherhood should be driven into a position seemingly forgetful of the public interest due to unfriendly interests, including the avenues of information by which the public can be reached, the people being ignorant of actual conditions among the railway workers. I desire to impress upon you with all force at my command the absolute necessity of relief for our members immediately if a most serious situation from which there will be no retreat is to be avoided."

Leaders Tentatively Accept Proposal and Maintenance of Way Men Postpone Strike Set for Tuesday.

COMMISSION WILL BE SET UP, SAYS WILSON

Declares Experts Will Go at Once Into Conditions — Workers Reply Immediate Relief Is Necessity.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The railroad wage controversy was referred today to a general conference of union committeemen, called to meet here Feb. 23 for final decision as to whether demands for increased pay will be pressed on the Government, or passed on to the railroad corporations soon to assume control.

Representatives of the 14 unions, conferring with Director-General Hines since Feb. 3 and whose spokesmen laid their claims before President Wilson yesterday, have tentatively accepted the White House proposal for a tribunal, created either by law or on the President's motion, to consider the demands. Final word must come, however, from higher union authority, the conference of union heads.

While union leaders feared the effect of further delay on their membership, possibility of a general strike appeared more remote tonight. Officials of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes and shop laborers did not sign the letter accepting Mr. Wilson's proposal, but their strike set for Tuesday, tonight was postponed indefinitely by President Barker at Detroit.

Wilson's Telegram to Barker.

The President tonight sent a telegram to Mr. Barker, calling upon him to withdraw the strike order and to "make sure no interruption of transportation occurs." Mr. Wilson said he felt sure that the officials of the maintenance of way union would realize that "you cannot in justice to your membership and citizens generally of the United States persist in a course which is opposed to your obvious duty to your country."

The President's telegram to Mr. Barker at Detroit follows:

"Yesterday I addressed to the Chief Executives of the principal railroad labor organizations, including the one of which you are president, a message, a copy of which has been transmitted to you at Detroit. I have just received a response indicating the purpose of the organizations generally to conform to the principles of my message, to bring it to the attention of the membership and to hold a convention on February 23 for the purpose of carrying the matters into effect. I note with surprise and disappointment that your organization is the only one addressed which has not expressed concurrence in this method of handling the matter, and I understand that no advice has yet been received of withdrawal of your strike order which was sent out several days ago. The Director General of Railroads explained this situation to your committee as soon as it presented to him advice of the strike order, and he has since summarized the position of the Government in a telegram to you, which I fully indorse. I ask you to take at once the necessary steps to withdraw the strike order and to make sure that no interruption whatever to transportation occurs on that account in this critical period. I feel sure that you and your associates, upon full consideration, will realize that you cannot, in justice to your membership and the citizens generally of the United States, persist in a course which is opposed to your obvious duty to the country, to the direct and specific request of the Government and also to the attitude of all other railroad labor organizations, all for the mere purpose of objecting to the procedure I have proposed, which is the only practical method of obtaining a prompt and reasonable

Hoover Had to Carry U. S. Passport During War to Enter Britain

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Herbert Hoover's sense of humor was revealed in a letter made public today that he wrote Casper W. Hodgson, of Yonkers, N. Y., his classmate at Leland Stanford University who had urged him to reply to varied attacks "if only for the sake of your family."

Mr. Hoover consoled his friend by "pleading guilty to the criminal charge," of pursuing his engineering profession abroad and to Hodgson's query "am I a British subject?" "Did I ever apply for citizenship?" the former food administrator replies:

"No. Many generations of persecuted Quaker ancestors would rise in their graves at such a discovery. They should remain quiet, however, for no Californian could live three months in London climate and become a British citizen if he knew it."

One thing, he added, that "reassures me this did not happen without my knowledge," is that "the British refused to allow me to come into their island during the war without an American passport, also I feel that my accent was disinfected of any English, French, Chinese, Russian or other taints by my presence in the United States a portion of every calendar year of my life, except three—even including the five in which the United States has exercised its right to draft my services a good portion abroad."

Answering another question by Hodgson about "the $10,000,000 I am said to have made in my early youth," and the "investments that I am supposed to have in Great Britain," Mr. Hoover wrote:

"Like the negro porter who was asked to change $10, I am grateful for the compliment. I am sorry that these sums do not exist, for they would be useful for children's relief."

MILLIGAN ELECTED TO CONGRESS ON LEAGUE PLATFORM

Democrat, Standing for Covenant and Administration, Wins in Third District by 1900 Majority.

VOTE LIGHT, WITH 26,000 POLLED

4000 Fewer Ballots Cast Than Both Candidates Received in 1916, but Democratic Gain Is Shown.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

EXCELSIOR SPRINGS, Mo., Feb. 14.—Capt. J. L. Milligan, Democrat, was elected to Congress in the Third Missouri district today by a majority of approximately 1900, an increase over the Democratic majority for Congress in 1918, after a campaign in which the league of nations was the principal issue, Capt. Milligan supporting the league and his opponent, John E. Frost, of Plattsburg, Republican, standing on a platform opposing the league.

The vote was light, the total being about 26,000, which is 4,000 less than the vote for both candidates in 1918, and about 14,000 less than the vote for both candidates in 1918, and about 14,000 less than was polled in the district in 1916.

With only three precincts in Harrison county missing, the unofficial vote was:

County.	Milligan, D.	Frost, R.
Caldwell	1,158	1,581
Clay	2,906	909
Clinton	1,468	1,162
Daviess	1,578	1,705
De Kalb	1,014	1,208
Gentry	1,354	1,111
Harrison	1,059	1,518
Mercer	401	947
Ray	2,338	1,361
Worth	616	504
Totals	13,892	11,956

Milligan's majority, 1936.

Missing Precincts Republican.

The majority of 1936 probably will be reduced by the missing precincts in Harrison county, a Republican county, though it is doubtful if it goes much below 1900.

In 1918 Joshua W. Alexander, whose appointment as Secretary of Commerce caused the vacancy which required this special election, carried the district over Frost by 1793, a smaller majority than Milligan received.

The election has been heralded by the managers of the Frost campaign as a test on public opinion on the league of nations and the Wilson administration, and while the managers of the Milligan campaign have denied that it could be considered solely a league of nations fight, they tonight are willing that it should be so considered.

The campaign has been watched in Washington and nearly all over the country with unusual interest because it offered almost the first opportunity to test the opinion of the voters on the issues which will be presented in the next campaign. Its result has been looked to to forecast the result of the next campaign, at least in Missouri.

Called Administration Victory.

An increased Democratic majority on a smaller vote is considered an administration victory by managers of the Milligan campaign, who contend that on the small vote a decreased majority if it was not great would even be a Democratic gain. While Chairman Neale of the Democratic State Committee had predicted that Milligan's majority would be 2500, he said tonight that he was highly pleased at the result.

"It means that the voters of the Third District are standing by the administration of President Wilson," he said. "I had no doubt that they were. To me, it also means that there is no question that Missouri will certainly be Democratic in the next election."

Chairman Cole of the Republican State Committe contended until tonight that Frost would win, but at 9:30 he conceded Milligan's election.

A peculiarity of the election was that in the strong Democratic counties, Clay and Ray, Milligan's vote fell below that of Alexander in proportion to the vote cast, while in the Republican counties Frost's vote fell below his vote of two years ago in proportion to the total vote.

No explanation has been offered for the Democratic losses in Clay County, but in Ray the Republicans attribute his loss to the vote of Democrats among the 1000 or more coal

PRESIDENT IS SEVERELY CRITICIZED IN CAPITAL

Even Democrats Concede That on Face of Correspondence President Came Off Second Best in Controversy With Secretary.

By the Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Nothing since the armistice has so stirred official Washington as the resignation of Secretary Lansing. Comment seethed all day on Capitol Hill, taking a tone remarkably uniform among Democrats and Republicans alike. To say that tone was critical of the President is to put the case in the mildest possible way.

"Outrageous," "dictatorial," "autocratic," "supremely egotistical" were some of the less highly-colored epithets used to describe the President's dealings with his chief Cabinet officer, as revealed in the published correspondence leading up to Lansing's resignation.

The Democrats talked privately, while the Republicans welcomed quotation. Otherwise there was not much difference in the comment on the two sides.

In the natural course of events in matters of this kind, the next week will see the outgiving of explanatory statements from administration sources, and perhaps the President's action will be put in a new and more favorable light. But today, on the face of the correspondence, there is general agreement that the President seems to have come off second best in the controversy.

Old Rumors Revived.

The old rumors connected with the President's long illness flared up in the Senate corridors while Senators read and re-read the rebuke to Lansing for "assumption of presidential authority" in calling meetings of the Cabinet during the President's incapacity. Senator Norris of Nebraska, a Republican "bitter-ender" in the treaty fight, remarked that "the mental expert at the White House was discharged too soon," and Republicans generally took the view that they had been justified in refusing to accept the treaty as Mr. Wilson brought it from Paris. They rejoiced also that the President had put into their hands "a potent weapon to be used against him in the next campaign."

The comment by Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican whip, was typical. "The correspondence," he said, "gives the country the best insight that it has obtained into the President's physical and mental condition."

Senator Capper of Kansas thought it "rediculous" that Lansing's resignation should have been requested on the ground stated in the correspondence.

"Mr. Lansing," said Capper, "was justified in calling the Cabinet together to consider the nation's business and the President's resentment at that course is most unreasonable and autocratic."

Seeking to find some other compelling motive for the President's action than that Lansing had erred in summoning the Cabinet, some Senators expressed the conviction that the real secret lay in the secretary's handling of the Mexican situation.

The President's speech at Mobile several years ago, in which he enunciated a policy of non-interference with Mexico, was contrasted with the sharp note that Lansing addressed to Carranza in the Jenkins affairs. Relations already strained at Paris reached the breaking point over Mexico, according to this theory, and the President seized the first convenient pretext to get rid of the secretary.

Pretext, if Such, "Unfortunate."

Persons friendly to the President agreed that the choice of the pretext, if such it was, was a most unfortunate one, giving Lansing all the better of the argument and inviting new Republican attacks against the President as a dictator brooking no show of initiative on the part of a subordinate.

By some, the President's dismissal of Lansing was attributed more to nervous irritability than to anything else. The belief was expressed that some recent occurrence, possibly something that he regarded as a personal affront, had angered the President.

One theory along this line is that the President thought the secretary had been too friendly with Lord Grey, the British Ambassador, whom Wilson never received and who, on his return to England, wrote the now famous letter defending reservations to the peace treaty.

Small comfort was taken by administration supporters from any of the explanations offered. The day belonged to the President's enemies and they made the most of it.

LACLEDE MARKED SITE FOR ST. LOUIS 156 YEARS AGO TODAY

Woodsman, With August Chouteau, Landed Near Market Street on Feb. 15, 1764.

No one need be surprised if Pierre Laclede Liguest gets down from his pedestal in the City Hall Plaza today and strolls down to the river to see if things have changed any in the last 156 years.

Feb. 15, 1764, was the day when Pierre Laclede and young Auguste Chouteau, his companion in trading and exploration, hopped from their skiff somewhere between Chouteau avenue and Market street, a western branch of which now bears the name of Laclede.

No moving picture operator was within range of the pioneer pair, but as painters have recorded the scene, there were then quite a few trees on the levee, and the agile woodsman, without so much as calling up the City Forester to ask permission, chopped a series of gashes in a row of the trees. That marked the site of St. Louis when Chouteau, with his construction crew, returned in the spring and began city-building.

Thornton Burgess' Stories FOR Post-Dispatch Readers

COMMENCING next Tuesday a new series of children's stories, "Burgess Bedtime Stories," by Thornton Burgess, and illustrated by Harrison Cady, will run on the Women's page of the Post-Dispatch every day. All of the old friends of the little folks will be found in these delightful stories—Peter Rabbit, Reddy Fox, Hooty the Owl, and the rest of the residents of the big forest.

Thornton Burgess is one of the best known writers for boys and girls—little and big—in America. Some of his famous children's stories are: Adventures of Reddy Fox, Mother West Wind's Animal Friends, Adventures of Buster Bear, Little Stories for Bedtime, and numerous Boy Scout tales.

Harrison Cady, who will draw the little pictures accompanying the Burgess stories, has illustrated many of Mr. Burgess' books and books by Frances Hodgson Burnett and Robert W. Chambers. He is also a frequent contributor to Century, The Saturday Evening Post, St. Nicholas and other magazines.

$27,152,882 FUR SALES HERE SET WORLD RECORD

Twelve-Day Auction Closes—1,500,000,000 Pelts Disposed Of.

Pierre Laclede founded St. Louis as a fur-trading post in 1784. A 12-day sale of furs was concluded yesterday at the International Fur Exchange in which the sales total reached $27,152,882, a world's record for the fur industry, exceeding by $11,818,334 the total of the previous record sale, which was that held last September in St. Louis.

The number of pelts offered during the sale was approximately 1,500,000,000, representing the visible supply of the world. The bidders were men from the four points of the compass. The pelts ranged in size from the tiny chipmunk to the huge polar bear. The price ranged from a few cents per pelt to nearly $1000.

In the offerings were mink, skunk and muskrat from the Mississippi Valley, kangaroo from Australia, lamb from Persia, seal from Alaska and chinchilla from Bolivia.

The prices paid were an advance as high as 100 per cent over previous prices, virtually all the pelts drawing an increased price, except ermine, which showed a slight decline. The buyers declared that the demand justified their outlay and predicted even a greater success for the next sale, which will begin May 3.

EARL OF READING TO ACCEPT U. S. POST, LONDON TIMES SAYS

Viscount Grey Not Expected to Return to Washington as British Ambassador.

By the Associated Press.

London advices recently have told of the growing belief in diplomatic circles that Viscount Grey would not return as British Ambassador, although there was no official intimation.

LANE UPHOLDS LANSING'S CALLING OF THE CABINET

Says He Considers Himself as Much Responsible as Retiring Secretary for Meetings.

ALL THOUGHT THEY WERE GOOD THINGS

Republican Senators Denounce President; Declare Lansing's Opposition to Treaty Is Factor.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—All Washington discussed today the resignation of Robert Lansing as Secretary of State. There was suspension of other business, wherever it was possible, to debate the action of the President in forcing Mr. Lansing out. It is believed tonight that Mr. Lansing has most of the sympathy. Many Democrats, as well as Republicans, critize the President for using the Cabinet meetings as an excuse for ousting the Secretary of State.

Outstanding developments today were the launching of a movement in the Senate to enact legislation defining the constitutional provision for the "inability" of the President and a resolution in the House to conduct an investigation to ascertain just what Mr. Lansing has done in violation of the Constitution.

Congressmen commented freely and frankly on the rupture in the Cabinet, denouncing the President.

Lane Upholds Lansing.

Secretary Franklin K. Lane of the Interior Department, who has resigned to take effect March 1, the only member of the Cabinet who would talk for publication, upheld Mr. Lansing. He declared that he considered himself "just as much responsible" as Secretary Lansing for the calling of Cabinet meetings during the President's illness. He said Mr. Lansing called him on the telephone and obtained his approval of the idea before calling the first meeting, and "presumably secured the approval of other Cabinet members also."

"We all thought the meetings were a good thing," said Lane. "They were often attended by Dr. Grayson, and messages were transmitted to the President on questions discussed. The critical situation precipitated by the coal strike came up for consideration, as well as other matters pertaining to the first industrial conference and other important questions. I feel that I attended the meetings on a full level of responsibility with Secretary Lansing, in as much as I had agreed to the advisability of their being held. Other members of the Cabinet apparently took the same position.

"The constitutionality of the action of Mr. Lansing was not discussed in any way at the meetings of the Cabinet," added Lane.

While conceding the authority of President Wilson to manage his official family as he sees fit, many in official life express regret that the President based his action on the fact that as Secretary of State Mr. Lansing assumed the responsibility of calling regular meetings of the Cabinet during the serious illness of the chief executive.

Diplomats expressed astonishment at the sudden and unexpected upheaval in the Cabinet, and much speculation was indulged regarding its possible effect upon the progress of the Versailles treaty in the Senate and possible results in foreign countries which have looked to the United States for leadership and guidance during the trying period of reconstruction.

Senator Borah's Comment.

Senator Borah, Republican of Idaho, said: "The Cabinet crisis arising out of Mr. Lansing's resignation cannot be fully understood, perhaps, without recalling the fact that Mr. Lansing protested most earnestly against giving Shantung to Japan and also is reliably reported to have protested against the treaty in its entirety. It will be recalled also that Mr. Bullitt, who was selected by Lloyd George and the President to initiate the peace proceedings with the Soviet Government, stated before the Foreign Relations Committee that Mr. Lansing declared in Paris as follows:

"'I believe if the Senate could only understand what this treaty means, and if the American people could really understand it would unquestionably be defeated. But I wonder

HINT WILSON RESENTED SECRETARY'S INQUIRY INTO HIS CAPACITY IN ILLNESS

State Department Head Said to Have Been One of Those Who Thought Marshall Should Become Active Executive.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Under Secretary Polk, John W. Davis, Ambassador to Great Britain, and Hugh C. Wallace, Ambassador to France, are foremost among those being discussed to head the State Department as successor to former Secretary Lansing, who announced his resignation after a dramatic clash with President Wilson.

Although it is known that Mr. Polk had determined to return to private life and practice law, some friends of the administration were hopeful that he might be induced to serve out the unexpired term of his former chief.

The Lansing resignation furnished official Washington with a sensation unparalleled since William J. Bryan departed from office. The statement of Secretary Lane, who is leaving the Cabinet March 1, that he felt an equal responsibility with Mr. Lansing for holding the Cabinet meetings to which President Wilson objected, seemed to add possibilities of further Cabinet resignations for a time, but this was disposed of by a statement at the White House that there were to be no further retirements as a result of the incident.

Notification of Lansing's retirement was sent to all foreign Governments today by Undersecretary Polk. It was said at the State Department that Polk would serve as Acting Secretary for 30 days unless a successor to Lansing was chosen sooner.

Immediately after the Senate met, the letters exchanged between President Wilson and Secretary Lansing were ordered printed in the Congressional Record on motion of Senator Brandegee, Republican, Connecticut.

Cabinet meetings will be resumed "very soon" and, as announced a few days ago, President Wilson will preside. White House officials reiterated today that he was making rapid strides toward regaining his strength.

Presidential Prerogative.

Congress discussed the sensation with avidity in the cloak rooms, but the subject did not come up in debate on the floor of either the House or Senate. Such comment as was made was more or less divided, opponents of the treaty praising Mr. Lansing's course, and others recalling that one of the President's prerogatives is to select the members of his own official family.

The row served to bring to public light much that has been going on under the surface since President Wilson fell ill and the principal effect was to emphasize that President Wilson and his former Secretary of State were altogether at loggerheads on many important subjects even before the United States went into the war in 1917 and that these disagreements, which were on fundamental questions of policy, continued throughout the peace negotiations at Paris and even to the handling of the Mexican situation since the President has been sick.

The best informed of those close to the administration were sure that the climax was the result of an accumulation of conditions which continued over the question of whether the peace treaty and the league of nations covenant should be separated or treated as one document, ranged into the recent handling of the Mexican situation and wound up in the inside administration discussion of whether the President's illness incapacitated him from discharging the duties of his office.

Precedent for Lansing Cited.

Mr. Lansing's friends say that in calling the Cabinet together he was acting with precedent to support him and that, although as ranking officer of the Cabinet, he actually called the meetings, other members of the Cabinet agreed in the procedure. They point to Secretary Lane's statement that he assumed equal responsibility and that all Cabinet members thought the meetings a good thing.

The under the surface discussion of the incident, however, the sort which goes on between officials and is not intended for publication—connects at least the first of the Cabinet meetings last October with the speculation which was going on

President "More Chipper" Than Ever, Tumulty Declares

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.

WHILE the outside world discussed, gossiped and speculated, President Wilson today chatted gayly with Dr. Cary Grayson and Joseph P. Tumulty. The sensational break with Secretary Lansing did not depress or disturb him. According to Tumulty, the President was "more chipper" today than at any other time since he was taken sick last fall.

When Tumulty approached him this morning with the newspapers, all of which carried headlines of his removal of the senior Cabinet member, he was in a jovial mood. As his secretary walked out on the portico the President called out a "good morning," and with the pleasure of a school boy reached out with his cane, grappled a railing and swung his wheel chair in circles, at the same time admonishing Tumulty to "see how strong I am."

Lansing refused to see callers today.

LANSING AND PRESIDENT BOTH HIS FRIENDS, SAYS HOUSE

He Declines to Comment on Resignation—Declares He Has Had No Difference With Wilson.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—E. M. House, in a statement today, refused to comment on the resignation of Secretary Lansing, stating that President Wilson and Mr. Lansing have been his friends and have shown him "much consideration and friendship." The statement follows:

"I do not care to make any comment, since both have been my friends. I have never had a disagreeable difference with either the President or Mr. Lansing; both have shown me at all times and in all circumstances much consideration and friendship."

The Amherst Association of New York, at a meeting today, adopted the following resolution, which was telegraphed to Mr. Lansing:

"Honorable Robert Lansing, Washington, D. C.: We tender our affections to a loyal son of alma mater; our absolute confidence in his integrity and his patriotism; our pride in his ability and his achievements."

LANSING'S DIFFERENCES WITH WILSON GO BACK TO 1917

at the time as to whether Vice President Marshall ought to be called upon to take over the duties of the presidency. While it is known that the subject never came up actually at a meeting of the Cabinet officers, it is also known that it was discussed privately and that some of the reports which were taken to the President included Secretary Lansing's name among those who were discussing that probability. How much of this part of the incident had to do with the outcome can only be left to speculation.

Mr. Lansing was not at the Department today, and it was understood, was preparing to go to his home in Watertown, N. Y., for a vacation and a rest.

The President's friends made the occasion one to observe that the President's action, like his conference with Senators Fall and Hitchcock on the Mexican situation several weeks ago, served to emphasize that, while he may be ill physically, he is in full possession of all his mental faculties.

Effect on Treaty Fight.

To the Senate, whose struggle with the peace treaty had given it some insight into the condition of foreign affairs, the revelation of President Wilson's disagreement with his Secretary of State caused less surprise than did the time and manner of the final break between them. Privately, many Democratic Senators expressed regret that the resignation came just on the eve of another effort to ratify the treaty.

Throughout the treaty controversy the tendency of the Republicans has been to exculpate Mr. Lansing from any blame that may be attached to the peace negotiations, and when the Secretary appeared before the Foreign Relations Committee last summer there was said to be a general understanding among Republican members that he was not to be cross-examined or put in an embarrassing position over questions about which he indicated that he was permitted by the President to know nothing.

Representative Mason, Republican, Illinois, introduced a resolution to have the House Foreign Affairs Committee investigate "this tempest in a teapot between the ex-Secretary of State and the President of the United States. It went into the hopper without speeches or debate.

The only comment in the House on Mr. Lansing's resignation was made by Representative Rogers, Republican, Massachusettes, who inserted the Wilson-Lansing correspondence in the record after some opposition. He said the only reason he could see for objection by Democrats was their belief that the letters were "so discreditable to the administration that they did not want the country to see them."

Representative Mott, Republican, New York, introduced a resolution asking that Congress disapprove of the President's attitude toward Mr. Lansing, and to express its regret of his retirement and the feeling that he had "in no respect lacked proper regard for and loyalty to the President."

Republican Defends Lansing.

Chairman Porter of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, in an interview said:

"I am not inclined to accept this new and novel interpretation of organic law.

"There is nothing in the Constitution which prohibits members of the President's Cabinet from meeting and discussing any departmental matter. If we accept the President's construction of the Constitution, it would be a violation thereof for two of the secretaries to hold a conference in the absence of the President.

"Mr. Lansing has faithfully served Mr. Wilson during both of his terms as President, and, in due consideration for his rights, I think the President should have asked for his resignation on the ground that they did not agree on the policies to be pursued by the State Department and not to have dismissed him in this harsh way."

Every Man Felt Easy in the Trust Committed to Lansing, Says Gillett.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Referring to the resignation of Secretary Lansing, Speaker Gillett, in an address here tonight, said:

"I have known him for many years, and, while we differ politically, every man felt easy in the trust committed to his hands. I do not want to say anything of political significance, but it seems to me hard, that when his chief was disabled he should not have been able to confer with his colleagues in matters with which they were charged.

"I cannot refrain from adding that I believe that if, in our administration of affairs there had been more willingness to consult and ascertain public opinion, America and the world would be brighter today."

"Other Causes" Behind Dismissal of Lansing, Says Redfield.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Cabinet meetings called by Secretary Lansing were "necessary, if the nation's business was to proceed regularly," former Secretary of Commerce William C. Redfield declared in a statement tonight, in which he expressed the belief that "other causes" than the calling of the Cabinet by Lansing "lay behind the President's request for his resignation."

"The request for Secretary Lansing's resignation was a great surprise and shock to me," said Redfield, a member of the Cabinet until November 1. "I was present at the first meeting of the Cabinet under Mr. Lansing. The members sent word to Mr. Wilson, through Dr. Grayson, that they were meeting and expressed hope that the President would have a speedy recovery. Admiral Grayson brought back an inquiry from Mr. Wilson as to what business was on hand, and the Cabinet members replied that they had met in conference to determine their duty in view of his disability.

"No word of disapproval ever [illegible] from the White House, to the best of my knowledge. The Cabinet gatherings were voluntary, informal and to, to my mind, necessary, if the nation's business was to proceed regularly and with intelligent knowledge of progress made.

"I accept my share of responsibility for what was done. To my knowledge there was never the faintest suggestion, in word or spirit, that the Cabinet members were trying to do anything except help President Wilson as far as we were able.

"Of course, I can speak only of what happened up to the time of my withdrawal. As the published correspondence brings out, I am forced to believe that other causes than the request by Secretary Lansing to his colleagues to meet for consultation lay behind the President's request for his resignation."

DRAMATIC FIRST MEETING OF CABINET UNDER LANSING

Message From President Broke Up Gathering Without Any Business Being Done, but Later Conferences Were Frequent.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The first Cabinet meeting called by Secretary Lansing because of President Wilson's illness assembled Oct. 5, seven days after the President returned from his Western speaking tour and took to his bed.

When the Cabinet convened Joseph P. Tumulty, private secretary to the President, issued a formal statement explaining the reasons for the conference. He said:

"The Cabinet was called to consider questions in which more than one department was concerned and also to discuss the industrial conference." He referred to the first conference called by the President with the hope of allaying the industrial unrest.

In his statement Tumulty said that Rear Admiral Grayson, Mr. Wilson's physician, was present and "suggested that only urgent matters be brought to" the President's attention.

Those who were present at the first Cabinet meeting describe a rather tense and dramatic scene. Congress was full of rumors that the President was so disabled as to be constitutionally unable to discharge the functions of his office. There was talk of what might be done to place Vice President Marshall at the head of the Government and how Congress might go about doing it. Nobody knew the full extent of the President's illness. It had not then become known that he had partly lost the use of his left arm and leg through an accumulation of blood in one of the arteries in his brain.

Rumors Disturbed Capital.

There were even ugly rumors that the President might not be in possession of all his faculties. Some Senators were even contemplating some action to "find out whether we have a President or not," as one of their number put it.

These persisted until Senator Fall, Republican, New Mexico, after a personal talk with the President, announced that he was satisfied that Mr. Wilson was in full possession of his mental faculties and entirely able to discharge the duties of his office.

The Secretary of State, it should be said, believed he was supported by precedent in calling the Cabinet together. Looking up the historical record, he found it had been done when President Garfield lay ill for weeks after having been shot by an assassin and that it had been done before that when President Taylor had a long illness and ultimately was succeeded by Vice President Filmore.

The Wilson Cabinet assembled the first day with a feeling of apprehension, for none of the members knew the extent of the President's illness, but expected to be informed of it. Secretary Tumulty had informed the President that Lansing had called the Cabinet together, and the President, somewhat disturbed, gave his personal physician a message to deliver to the Secretaries.

The Secretaries assembled at their usual places that day and Lansing sent for Dr. Grayson. The President's chair at the head of The table was left vacant until the physician arrived and he was asked to occupy it.

Lansing's Statement to Doctor.

"Dr. Grayson," Secretary Lansing is reported to have said by those who were present, "we wish to know the nature and extent of the President's illness, and whether he is able to perform the duties of his office, so that we may determine what shall be done to carry on the business of the Government."

The President's physician is quoted by some of the other Secretaries as having replied, in substance:

"The President is doing as well as could be expected; he is in full possession of all his faculties, and he has directed me to inquire of you by what authority this meeting of the Cabinet was called, what business is before it, and what business it is expected might be transacted at a Cabinet meeting without his participation."

According to the story told at the time, Secretary Lansing had no opportunity to reply because some of the other members stepped into the breach and asked Dr. Grayson to say to the President that the only purpose of the meeting was to inquire into the state of his health and to send him a message of loyalty and encouragement. At that point the meeting broke up without having transacted any business, but it did not end the so-called Cabinet conferences.

It has not been plain whether President Wilson knew since then that the Cabinet members had been assembling and talking over interdepartmental affairs, but the meetings have been held in the cabinet room in the executive offices and if the President did not know it probably was because those surrounding him did not think it wise to tell him.

Personally Settled Coal Strike.

During the coal wage controversy the President was said at the White House to have been advised of the meetings and to have been kept informed as to the progress his advisers were making toward a settlement of the controversy. He finally took the matter out of the Cabinet's hands and suggested a settlement which the miners accepted.

The best opinion of those "on the inside" is that the President did not know until last week of the regularity with which the Cabinet was meeting at the call of the Secretary of State, because at about the time at which the President's first letter to Mr. Lansing is dated, the White House offices "let it be known" that the President had ended the Cabinet conferences, and there was an inference that he might preside at the next one himself. There was, however, no hint that the ending of the meetings marked a separation between Mr. Wilson and Lansing.

Taft Says Public Will Side With Lansing in Dispute With Wilson

By the Associated Press.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Feb. 14.

WILLIAM H. TAFT, former President, said here today that the public will side with Secretary of State Lansing in the controversy with President Wilson which resulted in the resignation of Lansing.

"I believe that Secretary Lansing was acting altogether within his rights in calling conferences of the Cabinet members," Taft said. "I would not call them Cabinet meetings. To my mind calling such meetings does not constitute an assumption of presidential authority within the meaning of the Constitution."

LANE UPHOLDS LANSING'S CALLING OF THE CABINET

if they will ever understand what it lets them in for.'

"This has never been denied by Mr. Lansing. Mr. Lansing stated before the Foreign Relations Committee that the Shantung outrage was unnecessary and that Japan would have signed the treaty without that kind of a purchase. In fact, it has been understood for months that Mr. Lansing felt that the treaty was a great mistake. While he has supported it, perhaps, as he intimates in his letter, out of loyalty to the President, his private judgment was against it. I apprehend that neither the President nor Mr. Lansing, if they were free to speak, would deny that it was Mr. Lansing's dissatisfaction with the treaty and his pronounced condemnation of it, which had most to do with bringing about his resignation.

"Never in the history of the world has there been a treaty so rapidly disapproved either by those who had to do with writing it, or by those who had to do with passing judgment upon the ones who wrote it. There were some nine or ten Americans resigned in Paris because of their opposition to the terms of the treaty. Keynes, the great authority upon economics, and who was a member of the Supreme Economic Council at Versailles, resigned. Bullitt, emissary to Lenine and Trotzky, resigned. Lansing has resigned. Clemenceau was retired. Orlando was retired. Lloyd George has stated that he expects to go next."

Other Senators' Views.

Senator Capper, Republican, of Kansas, said: "The President has the right to discharge members of his Cabinet if he pleases, but to discharge Mr. Lansing on such a flimsy pretext as that given, is silly and unreasonable. Fortunately, the people will be with Mr. Lansing."

Senator Kellogg, Republican, of Minnesota, declared it was utterly ridiculous to think that members of the President's Cabinet cannot get together to discuss affairs of the nation when the President is laid up for five months.

Senator Cummins, Republican, of Iowa, said it was "absurd to entertain the idea that the act of Secretary Lansing in calling a meeting of the Cabinet is usurpation of executive authority. Such a statement comes with poor grace, especially from President Wilson, who has not had a noticeable regard in the past for usurpation when he was doing the usurpating."

Senator New, Republican, of Indiana, said: "The tone of the President's letter only shows that he wants another puppet in the Cabinet."

Senator Norris, Republican, of Nebraska, said: "The correspondence between Secretary Lansing and President Wilson demonstrates two things: First, the President was incapacitated and it was necessary for some one to look after the government; second, that the mental expert that has been employed at the White House has been discharged too soon."

Senator Lodge gravely declined to discuss the incident in any way.

Senator Curtis, Republican, of Kansas, remarked that the correspondence with Lansing "revealed the true physical and mental condition of the President."

Senator Moses, Republican, of New Hampshire, commented partly in Latin: "Haec fabula docet." He said: "The schoolmaster, though not abroad again, is at least able to grasp the pen and wield the birch once more."

How Garfield Cabinet Met.

The fact was recalled by one official that during the period when the late President Garfield lay in a critical condition from an assassin's bullet his Cabinet was called together formally and took such action as its members determined was necessary in the premises. It was not an informal Cabinet conference, but a formal official meeting.

Little sympathy was expressed in any official or diplomatic quarter with the position assumed by the President. The opinion frankly expressed in confidence was that Mr. Lansing has all the better of the argument on his side. Some surprise was expressed at the patience of Mr. Lansing in remaining in office for so long at a time when he knew that he could not bring his mind into agreement with that of the President on important matters of foreign policy. In this connection the disposition was to give Mr. Lansing the advantage of every doubt and accept his declaration that he remained in the Cabinet only because he feared his resignation would cause misunderstanding both at home and abroad and might embarrass the United States.

The determination of the President to be rid of Lansing, according to some Senators, originated during the peace negotiations in Paris, and was greatly intensified by the testimony given by William C. Bullitt before the Foreign Relations Committee last autumn. It was recalled by Senators that Lansing had been ignored by the President in Paris, and subsequently he was snubbed by all the officials connected with big affairs there. It is said Lansing was not invited to the formal dinners at which all other foreign ministers were present. E. M. House was invited, instead. It is said that at one function given by Balfour in Paris House was present, while Lansing was not invited.

On the Republican side a small group declared a thorough investigation should be made of the conduct of the public business while the President was sick, and to determine whether or not he was cognizant of what was going on or able to function now.

Investigation Proposed.

An investigation was called for in a resolution introduced by Representative Mason Republican of Illinois. He would have the House Foreign Affairs committee find out how the constitution was "broken," and report to the House "particularly what article of the Constitution was broken by the said late Secretary of State and whether other members of the Cabinet were equally guilty of breaking the Constitution by attending an unconstitutional informal gathering, called by the late Secretary of State, and if any of the new members of the new Cabinet who have so dangerously broken the Constitution have been asked to resign, and if not, why not."

In a long preamble Mason sets forth a number of satirical statements regarding the controversy.

"It is further rumored," says one section of the preamble, "that one Albert Sidney Burleson, still Postmaster-General, has repeatedly attacked the constitution of the United States by seeking the advice of the Department of Justice as to how he could possibly destroy unfriendly newspapers and also how he could increase the inefficiency of the postal service by reducing the pay of employes of the postal department?"

There is little chance for this resolution to receive serious consideration.

LONDON PRESS VIEW OF "SENSATION" IN WILSON CABINET

Pall Mall Gazette Says President Evidently Is in Spirit That Will Not Parley With Opposition.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—This afternoon's London papers print the news of Secretary Lansing's resignation under a variety of prominent captions, such as "United States' Political Bombshell," "Washington Sensation," "Great United States Sensation."

The Pall Mall Gazette says:

"President Wilson's return to political activity has been announced by a sensational stroke." During his illness, the newspaper adds, all kinds of reports were current as to where the real seat of authority lay in the conduct of the American administration.

"The curtain now has been thrust aside," the article continues, "and we have the lively spectacle of the President not only using his prerogative but employing it to discharge his chief legal adviser."

The newspaper considers the President's self-assertion "emerges all the stronger for his enforced rest and he is evidently going to take up the reins of government again in a spirit that will not parley with opposition."

The Westminster Gazette says:

"The dismissal of Secretary Lansing by the President is a dramatic illustration of the peculiar power assigned to the head of the Government by the American Constitution. What it is, exactly, that Secretary Lansing has done is not very clear, but he would appear to have applied on his own account for what has been described as the American principle of one-man management while President Wilson insists on a monopoly of the idea."

600 RAILWAY MEN VOTE TO STRIKE HERE TUESDAY

Local Members of Brotherhood Act While Walkout Is Being Postponed by President's Order.

In conflict with the report from Detroit announcing postponement of the strike of members of the Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employes and Railway Shop Laborers, 600 members of the organization met last night in New Club Hall, Thirteenth street and Chouteau avenue, and by a standing vote pledged themselves to strike at 7 a. m. Tuesday unless the wage demands of their organization are met.

The meeting was presided over by Frank Rought, general chairman of the St. Louis terminals locals, and addresses were made by Samuel J. Pegg, 5140 Page boulevard, grand vice president of the southwestern division of the order; R. T. Wood, president of the Missouri State Federation of Labor, who lately has been stationed at Washington looking after the interests of labor in a legislative way; F. C. Gassmann, chairman of the Missouri Pacific maintenance men, and by Attorney U. S. Bratton, general counsel, of Little Rock, Ark.

No mention of postponement was made in the meeting. Vice President Pegg opened the meeting with the reading of telegrams from Allen E. Barker, president of the order, which indicated that strike order is still on. One, dated Feb. 13, said: "There is no truth in press reports that strike order will be rescinded or even held in abeyance."

"Nothing to Change Plans."

A second message signed by Barker, and said to have been received yesterday, was also read by Pegg. It Said: "There is nothing in President Wilson's proposal to change our plans. He makes a feeble attempt to apologize for the inexcusable blunders of the Railroad Administration and the inability of the Government to do what it was committed to do."

Following the reading of these messages, Pegg explained that Director-General Hines was anxious to get the roads back into private ownership. His reason, he said, was that Hines, formerly employed by the railroads, drew a salary of $77,210 a year, but under Government control got but $25,000 a year. He said every week the roads stayed in Government control Hines was out $1000.

Out of Patience, Men Declare.

He explained that officers of the maintenance of way men had tried every means to avoid trouble by getting an equitable adjustment of their wage scales, but patience had ceased to be a virtue with them and that it was now decided that unless positive assurance was given that the wage increase would be given the men were going out next Tuesday to remain out until their demands were met. This declaration was met by cheers from his hearers.

Pegg said everything had been carefully weighed; that the officers knew what strike meant; that everyone in the organization was going to be asked to lay aside something that he had been enjoying, and that President Barker, the vice presidents and the general chairmen were going to ask only half pay from the Brotherhood during the strike period, for which they were going to give not 8 hours but from 18 to 24 hours a day if necessary.

Barker, in Wire to Wilson, Says Quick Action Is Necessary.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Feb. 14.—President Barker tonight replied to President Wilson's telegram informing him of postponement of the strike of the maintenance of way union, and that it would be represented at the general railway conference. The message continues:

"I desire to urge upon you the necessity for expediting action in the matter. Promises of future relief will not satisfy underfed stomachs; neither will they protect dependents of the railway workers, for whom I speak. Our members must have relief."

Wilson and Lansing Often Close to Breaking Point

President's Illness on Return From Speaking Tour Probably Only Thing That Saved Secretary, Following Bullit Testimony.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Robert Lansing became head of the State Department when William J. Bryan and the President had their differences over the Lusitania notes. Lansing was counsellor, an office in which he had succeeded John Bassett Moore. It has been common knowledge that while Lansing's name was signed to the succeeding notes to Germany and the notes which preceded the armistice, Mr. Wilson wrote them. In fact, he practically acted as Secretary of State in all important business. It was the President's conception of his relation to the foreign policy of the nation.

How much Lansing and the President differed on the Mexican policy never has been fully revealed, but officials who sympathize with Lansing's views say that they differed a great deal.

It has generally been believed in official circles here that the sharp notes which Lansing sent to Carranza in connection with the Jenkins case are what the President referred to in his letter to the Secretary when he spoke of the Secretary of State having taken action to forestall his judgment.

Friction With Other Chiefs.

But aside from his difficulties with the President, it has been common knowledge in Washington that Lansing has not been on good terms with Secretary Tumulty and from time to time there have been apparently well grounded reports of friction with Secretaries Baker and Daniels.

The disagreements between the President and the head of the State Department even antedate the entry of the United States into the war. The relations between the two men almost reached the breaking point in 1917, when Lansing issued his celebrated statement saying the United States was daily being drawn nearer and nearer the war. By some it was taken to forecast the entry of the United States. The President made every effort to overtake the statement after it had been given out at the State Department, but it was impossible.

When Lansing went as a member of the American peace delegation to Paris more differences developed. With other members of the American mission, he was not in accord with the President's idea of making the treaty of peace and the covenant of the league of nations one and the same inseparable document. It was Lansing's idea that such a plan would delay the ratification of a peace treaty and in this he was supported by Henry White and E. M. House.

Differences at Paris.

It may be said with a great degree of authority that, while the President and Lansing were together in Paris differences of more than minor nature developed, and this is confirmed by the reference which the President makes to it in one of his letters.

When President Wilson went back to Paris last March and found that during his absence in the United States Lansing and the others of the American mission had agreed, tentatively at least, to have the peace terms and the league of nations covenant separated, the situation came very near a breaking point and probably was avoided only because the President thought it more important not to let European statesmen see a split in the American peace delegation. While Lansing probably saw and conferred with the President in Paris as much as any other member of the American mission, it was a matter of remark that he saw him very little.

However, the incident which came nearer causing a break than any other, was the testimony of William C. Bullit, one of the experts attached to the American peace mission, before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Bullit, as will be recalled, was reading from a diary, quoted Secretary Lansing as having told him he was out of sympathy with the league of nations covenant and as predicting that the treaty would fail if the American people ever learned of its full import.

Lansing in Difficult Position.

Lansing, obviously in a very difficult position, did not repudiate Bullit's statements, although it was momentarily expected in Washington that he either would repudiate them or resign his office. President Wilson was at the time on his speaking tour in the West.

To say that he was upset by Bullit's story and his quotations of the Secretary of State puts it mildly. Officials in the presidential party who knew the workings of the President's mind expected to see the Secretary's resignation asked for when the President returned to Washington. These same officials believe now that the breakdown which sent the President home a very sick man was the only thing which prevented it.

Lansing, however, never saw the President again, and did all his business with the chief executive in writing. The relations between the men remained very much strained, and then Lansing's action in calling the Cabinet together brought them to the breaking point.

CONFERENCE FEB. 23 TO PASS ON PRESIDENT'S RAILWAY WAGE PLAN

settlement of the important wage questions now pending.

"I also ask you to send my message and its inclosure to all your members and give them the opportunity of co-operating with all the rest of railroad labor in handling the matter.

"WOODROW WILSON."

President's Assurance to Men.

Assurance was given to union officials by the President in his proposal that he would provide machery to deal comprehensively with their claims; he proposed the naming of a commission of wage experts to begin compilation of data. The President said he was certain it is apparent to all reasonable men and women * * * that these momentous questions must be dealt with by an agency which can continue to function after March 1."

"I wish, therefore," he said, "to announce to all railroad employes that I propose to carry out the following steps:

"1. In the event that, in connection with the return to private control, provision shall be made by law for machinery for dealing with railroad wage matters, I shall promptly use my influence and, so far as such law confers power upon me, I shall promptly exercise that power to bring about the earliest practicable organization of the machinery thus provided.

"2. In the event no such provision is made by law for dealing with these matters, I shall employ the influence of the executive to get the railroad companies and the railroad employes to join promptly in the creation of a tribunal to take up these problems and carry them to a conclusion.

"3. I shall at once constitute a committee of experts to take the data already available in the various records of the United States Railroad Administration, including the records of the Lane Commission and of the board of railroad wages and working conditions, and to analyze the same so as to develop, in the shortest possible time, the facts bearing upon a just and reasonable basis of wages for the various classes of railroad employes, with due regard to all factors reasonably bearing upon the problem and specifically to the factors of the average wages paid for similar or analogous labor for other industries, the cost of living and a fair living wage, so as to get the problems in shape for the earliest possible final disposition. The views of this board will serve as a guide to me in carrying out the assurance I gave to the employes last summer that I would use the full influence of the executive to see that justice was done them and will, I believe, be a means of avoiding what otherwise might be a long-drawn out investigation of facts. While I propose to act at once in regard to this matter, and to avoid any delay in doing so, I shall, nevertheless, invite the co-operation of railroad corporations and believe they will appreciate that it is to their interest, as well as to the public interest, to get these matters promptly settled."

Early Action Necessary.

Mr. Wilson said he recognized the necessity for disposing of the problems without further delay, but asked continued co-operation of the unions and requested them to use their influence in obtaining a recall of the strike order issued by the maintenance owners. He said, notwithstanding that "corrective factors are at work," in controling the cost of living, "these important wage matters ought not be postponed for further indefinite period and ought to be disposed of on their merits at the earliest practicable time."

The readjustment of living costs could not come with rapidity, Mr. Wilson explained, but added his belief that efforts to force prices down were having a "beneficial effect."

The union reply expressed gratification with the President's "recognition of principles" which have a bearing on their demands," but added that there was a pressing necessity for immediate relief.

"We feel justified in saying,' 'the answer continued, "that we do not believe the employes will countenance any plans which contemplate further delay.

"It is our earnest conviction that the situation warrants us urging that you promptly indicate to railroad labor that you will create by agreement a special tribunal to deal with specific and important problems."

Unions' Set of Principles.

A set of principles with which the tribunal is asked to deal, from the union view, were outlined as follows:

"1. Rates of pay for similar or analagous services in other industries.

"2. Relation of rates of pay to increased cost of living.

"3. A basic minimum living wage sufficient to maintain a railroad man's average family upon a standard of health and reasonable comfort.

"4. That differentials above this basic minimum living wage be established, giving due regard to skill required, responsibility assumed and hazard incurred; decision to be handed down within 60 days after agreement to establish it, and to be final and binding upon all railroads in the United States and employes whom we represent."

In a statement, supplementing their letter, the union officials declared their conviction, that a settlement of the controversy along any lines other than on principles they set forth would be "at best, a makeshift." They declared those principles to be fundamental and appealed to the public "not to fear that any wage increases granted us will prove a step in the so-called 'vicious cycle.' "

"It is the conscienceless pyramiding of profits, and not the increasing circle of costs incident to giving labor a living wage that the public should be on guard against," the statement said. "Labor, assured of uniformly fair treatment and relieved of distress and worry due to inadequate wages, will always, through greater efficiency and a desire to return square deal for square deal, hold labor costs on a sound economic level by increasing production and service. We ask the American people to see that we are met half way in our efforts to settle sanely and fairly, but speedily, a great and trying problem."

The labor conference late today telegraphed to President Barker of the maintenance of way employes and shopmen, and advised him to call off the strike. It is understood that Barker was informed the proposed strike would gravely embarrass the position of the other railroad organizations.

FLETCHER DECLINES TO GIVE OUT LETTER OF RESIGNATION

Ambassador to Mexico Retires Today and Says He Will Take a Long Rest.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINNGTON, Feb., 14.—Henry P. Fletcher, whose resignation as Ambassador to Mexico becomes effective tomorrow, today said good bye to State Department officials. Before leaving the department Fletcher said that he had made no definite plans for the future. He expects first to take a long rest.

Fletcher declined again today to make public his letter of resignation or President Wilson's letter of acceptance. The retiring Ambassador also declined to make public a letter which he wrote at the same time to former Secretary of State Lansing or the latter's reply.

From an authoritative source it was learned that Fletcher's letters contain no reflection upon the President or his Mexican policy. If good reason exists for withholding them from publication, it is believed to be statements which the retiring Ambassador may have made regarding the Carranza Government and his reasons for feeling that he could accomplish nothing further at Mexico City as American Ambassador.

It is known that Fletcher accepted the Mexican post in the hope that he might be able to accomplish something constructive. He at least succeeded in keeping the lid on during the participation of the United States in the world war, when serious trouble with Mexico would have been more or less embarrassing.

PRESS COMMENT ON DISMISSAL OF SECY. LANSING

Editorial Expressions From Various Parts of Country Almost Unanimously Critical of President.

MANNER OF OUSTING ADVISER CALLED HARSH

Disposition on Part of Some Writers to Attribute Executive's Attitude to His Illness.

Following is editorial comment of newspapers in various parts of country on President Wilson's dismissal of Secretary Lansing, gathered by the Post-Dispatch.

New York World—Like William J. Bryan, Robert Lansing was Secretary of State in name, but never in fact—at least until the period of the President's illness. Since March 4, 1913, President Wilson has been his own Secretary of State and has directed the foreign affairs of the United States in person. The foreign policy of the Government for the last seven years is to be found in a long series of state papers, some of them of extraordinary power, which are signed "Bryan," or "Lansing," but which were written by the President and never seen by the Secretary of State until the time came to affix his signature.

The Secretary of State has been little more than the great seal in animated form. But the sensational element in regard to the Lansing resignation lies in the President's accusations of usurpation during his illness. That is a grave charge for a President of the United States to make against his Secretary of State, and it cannot be left to the realm of speculation and conjecture. It is a charge that the President is under moral obligations to prove by citations of cases. The offense that is alleged is one that is impeachable, and the President has no right to let it rest on his own general assertion.

The American people have a right to know what is back of this extraordinary case, which is without precedent, in respect, at least, to the matter of usurpation.

New York Times.—The President says that there "could have been no disadvantage in awaiting action with regard to matters concerning which action could not have been taken without me." We fear that statement was not duly considered by its writer. The "disadvantage" presumably accruing from the application of this theory of the Cabinet's powerlessness to act without the President would have been the resulting stagnation of the public business.

Of all men in the United States, President Wilson should have been most wary of raising that question.

Mr. Lansing's conscientious effort to provide for the continuance of the public business during the President's illness was not a sufficient reason for rebuking him and asking his retirement.

New York Evening Post.—The country can feel nothing but amazement at the manner of Mr. Lansing's virtual ejectment from office and at the reasons assigned by the President for so summary a course. The tone of Mr. Wilson's letter to Mr. Lansing is harsh to the point almost of brutality. The stated cause for removing the Secretary of State is, in the light of the information the President has seen fit to vouchsafe us, frankly puerile. We cannot understand the charge of usurpation against a man who, instead of trying to snatch power, seems to have loyally tried to do his part in keeping the ship running while the captain lay sick. Mr. Wilson has either said too much or not enough.

New York Evening Sun—The resignation of the Secretary of State, Mr. Robert Lansing, and the situation past, present and future, which it reveals, fill the public today with a sensation of amazed dismay. The correspondence between the President and Mr. Lansing is pregnant with material for thought and none of it is pleasant. There is hardly a line that does not create disquiet, if not apprehension, concerning the existing processes of Government at Washington.

As for Mr. Lasing, it cannot be doubted that he goes out of office with the general sympathy and friendship.

New York Evening Mail:—Secretary of State Lansing's resignation is no surprise. The circumstances of it are a shock. They confirm a condition of chaos and of conflict in the national administration heretofore a matter of rumor to most people, but of real concern to those possessed of the facts. From every point of view it would have been far better for the country and for President Wilson had he kept Mr. Lansing in office; or, if a separation had to come that it should have come, officially at least, on some other grounds.

Brooklyn Daily Eagle—It is not too much to say that the President's action in forcing the resignation of Secretary Lansing amazes the country and causes regret among Mr. Wilson's best friends.

Brooklyn Citizen—There is something petty in the complaint that Mr. Lansing conferred with other heads of departments during the President's sickness, without authority. This is very small, and it is not an act of friendship to the President to say anything. The best possible excuse for him is that he is a sick man, and disposed to put a large meaning upon matters which would be too small for serious discussion were he in his usual state of health.

New York Tribune—The correspondence between the President and Mr. Lansing is more illuminating than all the interviews and bulletins recently given out. The whole country must have read the letters with a heavy heart and a sense of uncertainty as to the future.

The public realizes that the cabinet is not an organism known either to our constitution or to our statutes. It is never "constitutionally" summoned into session by any one. The departmental heads have not only the right but the duty to confer with one another, to avoid acting at cross-purposes. During the long illness of President Garfield Cabinet conferences were regularly held.

Hartford (Conn.) Times (Dem.)—No one can say that the Constitution has been weakened or that the country suffered in the least degree by reason of the cabinet conferences. No one will question Mr. Lansing's desire to serve his country in calling the conferences, nor his belief that he was justified by historical precedent in calling them. Full information is due the public regarding the causes of this important break.

New Orleans Times-Picayune (Dem.).—It is difficult for one accustomed to orderly processes of administration to find room for fault when a second in command, during his chief's complete inability to exercise the functions of his office, calls into conference the heads of various departments and endeavors to maintain unity of purpose and co-ordination of effort.

Philadelphia Evening Ledger (Rep.).—Public sympathy undoubtedly belongs to Mr. Lansing, and he will get it, while the President, by his unjustifiable spleen and petty temper, will shrink accordingly in the estimation of all just men and women.

The Kansas City Star (Ind.).—This is merely another manifestation of his (the President's) whole theory of autocratic, personal government. No Old World ruler of the old regime was ever more arbitrary or less given to taking advice. He has regarded his Cabinet as a group of clerks.

Cincinnati Times Star (Rep.).—Woodrow Wilson has done many big things as President. Only the blind will deny that. But all the time he has maintained an attitude toward men and matters that is essentially aucratic and unlovely.

Hartford Post (Ind.).—In Wilson and Lansing were two strong minds. Operating on divergent lines it was inevitable that they should clash. It illustrates again the inability of the President to subordinate his own ideas and to co-operate with subordinates who think for themselves, which is, perhaps, the great weakness of the President.

Pittsburg Sun (Dem.).—The retirement of the Secretary of State marks the return of Mr. Wilson to forceful direction of executive duties of government. The President shows all his grasp and confident mastery. This will be a source of gratification not only to his friends and adherents, but all citizens will hail the prospect of a revitalized administration.

Louisville Courier-Journal (Dem.).—No one can read the correspondence culminating in the resignation of Secretary Lansing without seeing clearly that the calling of the Cabinet conferences was but a petext used by the President for his suggestion that his secretary resign. Until revelations appear to cause them to reverse their judgment, the American people will regard Mr. Lansing as a secretary of admirable attainments and meritorious service.

Cleveland Plain Dealer (Ind. Dem.).—Mr. Lansing is sacrificed to executive irritability. The President's attitude toward Mr. Lansing is unpleasantly similar to his attitude toward the Senate on the issue of ratification.

Minneapolis Tribune (Rep.).—What is going to happen to other members of the Cabinet who are willing partners with Mr. Lansing in committing lese majeste, or whatever it may be called. This incident shows the presidential policy carried to the point of danger, as well as of absurdity.

San Francisco Chronicle (Rep.).—How any self-respecting man could continue to serve as a member of the President's Cabinet has always been a wonder from the beginning of Wilson's administration. We shall have to get on as best we can for another year.

Portland, (Me.,) Evening Express (Rep.).—Few who know the mental and moral makeup of President Wilson will be surprised.

PERSHING ADMIRED GERMAN ARMY, VON DER MARWITZ SAYS

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Feb. 14.—Gen. von der Marwitz, in discussing the allied demand for his extradition, declared he would not surrender and that he thought it inconceivable that Entente officers, especially the leading Generals, failed to protest against the demands of their Government.

"During the retreat of the Fifth Army in December, 1918," he continued, "Gen. Pershing, who was my opponent on the Meuse front, dispatched an emissary to my headquarters on an official mission. After this was attended to, the American officer asked permission to discuss a personal matter with me. He then stated that Gen. Pershing had instructed him to convey his personal greetings and express his admiration for the manner in which the Meuse battle had been conducted and for the general conduct of the Fifth Army."

"Would Gen. Pershing have done this if he was convinced his opponent was capable of criminal acts?" asked Von der Marwitz.

4 MEN THOUGHT TO HAVE TAKEN PART IN $11,500 HOLDUP

Three Entered Factory of Washing Machine Company, Other Waited Nearby in Automobile.

Police went about the city last night in automobiles arresting persons of suspicious appearance and persons they know as questionable characters in the hope that among them employes of the Blue Bird Manufacturing Co. would recognize three men who yesterday at 11:55 a. m. interrupted the weekly payday at the company plant at Jefferson avenue and University street, escaping with $11,526.64 in 403 pay envelopes. Some later were released and others were held, but none was found who answered descriptions given.

After many conflicting statements to them, the police last night pieced together what they consider the most plausible account of what happened. They believe now that four men participated in the robbery—one as driver of an ancient automobile in which the escape was made, another as lookout within the building and two who accomplished the actual taking of the money.

Policeman Had Just Left.

Joseph Henpen, paymaster of the company, as is his weekly custom, drove up to the plant at 9 a. m. with about $12,000, which he was bringing from a bank. He was escorted by a policeman. He departed for another plant of the company at 11 o'clock, accompanied by the policeman, who, however, turned him over to another policeman after a short distance. The first policeman returned to the Jefferson avenue and University street plant and remained until 11:30. At that time the payroll had been made up into envelopes and he was told there was no further need of his protection.

Hugh McLean, 727 Walton avenue, assistant paymaster, and an office clerk, Theodore Deffry, 4546 Arco street, had begun the distribution of the envelopes and had completed payment of the office force on the second floor.

They had gone to the fourth floor and had started to go among employes with the remaining pay envelopes, which were carried in a box between them.

In the meantime three men entered the building, placed blue handkerchiefs over their faces and entered the elevator. They drew revolvers and ordered the elevator operator to go to the fourth floor. Two left the elevator there and one remained behind to keep the elevator at the floor for the escape.

One Shot Fired, Wounds Youth.

The two went through swinging doors into the room where the assistant paymaster had handed out two or three envelopes. They pointed their revolvers as they approached and one said, holding out a sack: "Dump that money in here." The paymaster did not comply. "Dump it in," the robber repeated and he fired one shot with his pistol pointed to the floor, but the bullet struck Otto Schroeder, 19 years old, 2526W Dodier street, in the heel. Employes crowded forward as if to insist that the paymaster comply and that official and his helper thereupon dumped the 403 envelopes into the sack.

The robbers backed out the swinging doors and ordered the elevator man to descend. That individual, however, in his haste, blew a fuse in the car and it wouldn't budge. The robbers scrambled down the stairs, upsetting Erich Helge, 2604 University street, an employe who was ascending between the first and second floors. While they ran, the robbers threw off their masks. They went past the first floor by mistake and into the basement, running about there in search of an exit.

Three Seen With Masks Off.

Three employes in the basement got a look at the robbers' faces without masks and the police are depending upon them for identifications. One of the three, David Schwidde, 1400A Hebert street, endeavored to block the way to a rear door and was knocked down. Two of the men ran out. The third turned and with his pistol leveled, laughed as a farewell.

The robbers entered an automobile waiting on Parnell street just south of University street. The machine went south on Parnell street to Warren street and east on Warren until it disappeared from the view of employes who chased it on foot.

$800 WORTH OF WHISKY STOLEN

Twenty gallons of whisky, eight years old and valued at $800, was stolen from a locker in the basement of the home of Philip McDermott, 5803 Bartmer avenue, prior to 7 a. m. yesterday, McDermott reported to the police.

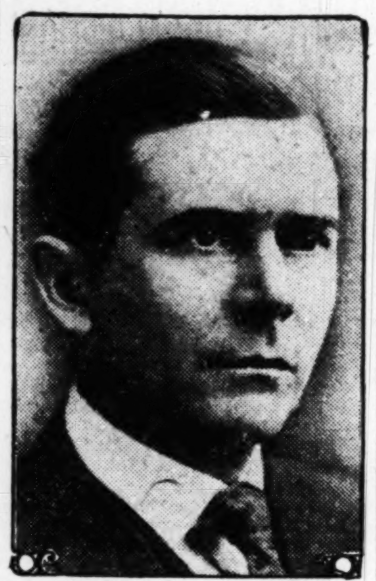
He said the whisky had been in a barrel, from which it had been syphoned by the thieves. A lock on the door of his wine cellar had been forced to gain entrance.

BOSTON TRANSCRIPT HEAD DIES

BOSTON, Feb. 14.—Samuel P. Mandell, 87 years old, president of the Boston Transcript Co. and, until his retirement, actively associated with the dry goods house of C. F. Hovey & Co., died today at his residence here.

He had been connected with the Transcript for 45 years and with C. F. Hovey & Co., 72 years.

DEMOCRATIC WINNER IN 3D CONGRESSIONAL FIGHT



CAPT. J. L. MILLIGAN.

miners, who, the Republicans say, took the opportunity in this election to express dissatisfaction with the manner in which the national administration had handled the coal strike. The Republican managers said several days ago that they had information that the visit of Attorney General Palmer to the district had benefited the Republican candidate because of opposition to Palmer among the miners.

Bad Roads a Factor.

The Republicans attribute their losses, mostly in the northern counties, to bad roads and an influenza epidemic, but Democrats say they can see no reason why bad roads and influenza should not keep Democrats away from the polls as well as Republicans.

Both parties made an unusually hard fight in the campaign, though the Republican campaign was less vigorous the last two weeks. It opened with Senator Hiram Johnson as the principal speaker. The Republicans were unable to get other speakers of national prominence, and, it is reported, the reason was that Johnson reported in Washington that there was no chance to elect Frost and that a campaign would be a waste of time and money. The Republicans had expected to have Senator Harding, Senator Poindexter, Senator Borah and others in the district, but they did not appear, sending word from Washington that they could not get away from their duties.

In addition to Attorney-General Palmer, the Democrats had Congressman Heflin, Congressman Champ Clark, Secretary Alexander, Third Assistant Postmaster-General Dockery, Gov. Gardner and many others. The Democrats at no time lacked funds for an aggressive campaign.

No Loss in Clinton.

It has been predicted that the Democratic vote in Clinton County would show a marked decrease because of alleged dissatisfaction among Irish voters with the league of national platform of Milligan, but this did not materialize, the Democratic vote in proportion to the total vote of the county being slightly larger than two years ago.

Captain Milligan served in the war in the 140th Infantry. He twice was cited in orders for extraordinary bravery in action, once by Gen. Pershing and once by Gen. Traub. Prior to the entrance of the United States in the war Milligan was elected captain of his home militia company in Richmond and was retained in command of the company after it entered Federal service. He is 31 years old and is a lawyer.

$15 OFFERED FOR SLOGAN FOR GIRLS' HOUSING CAMPAIGN

$500,000 Sought to Reconstruct Buildings as Quarters for Employed Girls.

In connection with the campaign of the Y. W. C. A. and the Letmar Club for $500,000 for housing employed girls, a slogan contest was announced yesterday. For the best slogan submitted before next Friday a prize of $15 will be given. The name will be announced next Sunday.

Slogans to be entered in the contest should be sent to the Slogan Committee, Y. W. C. A., 1411 Locust street.

The judges will be Mrs. W. A. Layman, Mrs. Thomas Francis, W. T. Compton, Mrs. Lon Hocker and George Priest.

The housing plan contemplates a reconstructed building in the West End, to be conducted by the Letmar Club, and a hotel nearer the business district, to be conducted by the Y. W. C. A.

SCHURMAN TO QUIT CORNELL AFTER 28 YEARS AS PRESIDENT

Says Head of Any Great University Should Not Hold Post More Than 25 or 30 Years.

By the Associated Press.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 14.—Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, president of Cornell University for nearly 28 years, tendered his resignation to the university's General Administrative Committee today.

In a letter to the trustees Dr. Schurman said he always held the chief executive of a great institution should not retain the post more than 25 or 30 years. He asked that his resignation become effective June 23, 1920.

SENATOR SPENCER FORGETS PAJAMAS; CLARK WEARS 'EM

Former Speaker, Without Nightclothes, Finds Blue Silk Ones in Hotel Closet.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Feb. 14.—While St. Joseph is not in the Third District, it is the "front door," for the upper counties of the district, and all the spellbinders who have been taking part in the campaign ending today have passed this way in filling engagements in the north counties.

Among the speakers who have canvassed the upper half of the Third District are Senator Selden P. Spencer and former Speaker Champ Clark. The distinguished gentlemen did not, of course, appear under the same auspices; nor did they meet. However, one pair of pajamas served both in St. Joseph.

Champ Clark is a little old-fashioned in some respects, and he still clings to the nightshirt of the forefathers. Senator Spencer is more sartorially inclined. He not only sleeps in pajamas, but he affects blue silk ones.

One night this week Congressman Clark reached St. Joseph at a late hour and was assigned to the room Senator Spencer had occupied the night before. The Senator, upon rising early to catch a train, had left his silk sleeping attire behind. A chambermaid had hung the pajamas in the closet of the room. When Mr. Clark opened his grip he made the discovery that he had left his nightshirt at the last preceding stand. He discovered the pajamas in the closet, little knowing to whom they belonged, or his politics.

The Spencer pajamas were not exactly a perfect fit for the tall sycamore of Pike County, but they were better than none, and they were permitted to encase the great form until the dawn. Just as the Democratic leader was in the act of robing himself for the day a porter appeared to assume charge of the senatorial pajamas, upon telegraphic order.

BRYAN TELLS OF RECEIVING COMPENSATION FROM "DRYS"

Says He Spent Four Months Last Year Speaking, Receiving Half of Usual Pay for Lectures.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—The World today prints the following from William J. Bryan, replying to its challenge to say whether he was on the Anti-Saloon League payroll.

"During this period of nine years (1910 to 1919) I spoke under the auspices of the national and state organizations supporting prohibition, including the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, the Anti-Saloon League and the National Dry Federation. I had the honor of being president of the last-named organization.

"During this period of nine years I received no compensation whatever, and nearly always paid my own traveling expenses, and I never derived more satisfaction from any money that I ever expended. My refusal, however, to accept compensation was not due to any thought that compensation was improper—God forbid that the defenders of this only and not its opponents should be worthy of their hire—but because I knew the foe I was attacking, and was not willing to have my efforts discredited by the criticism of those who, judging others by themselves, could not conceive of unpurchased services in a righteous cause.

"After the fight had been won at the election of 1918 and prohibition became a part of the Constition, the controversy ceased to be a political one and became a matter of law and enforcement. I then felt at liberty to consider an invitation extended by the Anti-Saloon League to assist in its campaign for funds to support enforcement and to carry on its propaganda in favor of world prohibition.

Sympathizing with the league in its purpose, and yet unable to contribute so large an amount of time at the time to its work as it desired, I accepted its offer to speak under its auspices and spent nearly four months of last year traveling with representatives of the league. During this period I used time that would have otherwise been devoted to lecturing and received a little more than one half as much for speeches as I usually receive for my lectures.

FRENCH BRIDE PROSTRATED OVER 'AMERICAN EXTRAVAGANCE'

Young Wife of Soldier Declares She Cannot Afford to Have Meat Delivered in Auto.

By the Associated Press.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Io., Feb. 14.—Mrs. Ewalt Sauer, young French bride of a former soldier, was held sane today by a board of examiners before whom her husband had taken her.

Mrs. Sauer had suffered nervous prostration over the high cost of living and what she termed "American extravagance," it was said.

Mrs. Sauer cried for more than an hour as she told how all the money her husband turns over to her each payday "goes out as fast as it comes in."

"Why is it that when I order some meat," she sobbed, "it is brought in an automobile. That is extravagance horrible for poor people. I cannot afford to have my meat delivered in an automobile and I won't."

It developed that the Sauers are buying a home on installments and this was something the young wife could not understand.

The husband, she said, gives her his pay envelope. The commission advised her that her husband is a jewel.

PART OF $6000 LOOT RECOVERED IN A RAID

James Miller, Under Bond in Connection With Supposed Murder, One of Six Arrested.

Eight pairs of silk hose and two silk kimonas identified as part of $6000 worth of silks, etc., stolen by "truck burglars" from the Andrew J. Slyman Co., 818 South Fourth street, Tuesday night, were recovered by detectives yesterday afternoon in connection with a raid on the former saloon of James Miller, 32 years old, at Blair and Cass avenues, where Miller and four others were arrested after a fifth man had been arrested outside the place.

Miller had been released from police headquarters only a few hours before his second arrest, on a bond of $5000, pending a grand jury investigation into the supposed killing of Frank Henneman, 45, Chicago bartender whose body was found beneath the Free Bridge April 7 last, and who was supposed to have killed himself until detectives were told by two witnesses that he had been beaten in Miller's saloon and supposedly carried to the bridge and thrown over the railing, as told in the Post-Dispatch Friday.

Four pairs of the hose of varied hues and colors and a pair of trousers and a vest with a tailor's alteration marks inside were found in a drawer behind the bar over which Miller presided. Miller declared the articles had been left there by others whom he did not know.

The raid on the saloon followed a chase in which detectives captured Edward Leonard, 19 years old, 1526 North Seventeenth street, while he was carrying four pairs of hose and two kimonas. The detectives were in an automobile searching for payroll robbers when near Seventeenth street on Cass avenue they saw Leonard leave the saloon with the bundle under his arm. When he saw them he ran into an alley.

Detective Ising entered the alley and Detective Walton drove the machine around the block to head Leonard off. Leonard ran through a lot, where the two caught him.

Returning to the saloon the other hose similar to the ones carried by Leonard, were found and the place raided.

Besides Miller in the saloon the detectives arrested George Warren of 1432 North Sixteenth street; Clement Gunn, 1709 Cass avenue; Bernard Shields, 4449 Farlin avenue, and Michael Marchlewski, 1320 North Twentieth street.

Slyman, summoned to headquarters, was able to identify the silks by private lead pencil marks he had put on the inside of the kimonas and stockings when the price tags had been lost in his establishment. The private marks were almost obscured.

Leonard, the police say, is at liberty on three bonds on charges of burglary and attempted burglary. He told the police he had been given the stockings and kimonas to sell by a man he met on the street.

Following the raid the detectives started a search for the rest of the stolen goods.

MRS. H. I. DRUMMOND GETS DIVORCE IN WEST

Wife of Former St. Louis Tobacco Manufacturer Alleges Intemperance and Non-Support.

Mrs. Mary Pricett Drummond has obtained a divorce in Los Angeles from Harrison I. Drummond, former St. Louis tobacco manufacturer, according to information received yesterday in Edwardsville, Mrs. Drummond's former home.

The Drummonds removed from St. Louis to Pasadena several years ago. They separated in November, 1918, and the wife's divorce suit was filed in March, 1919.

Drummond is said to be living at the University Club, New York.

Mrs. Drummond was the daughter of an Edwardsville banker, and is a sister of Mrs. H. Clay Pierce, wife of the chairman of the board of the Pierce Oil Corporation. Mrs. Drummond now lives at 312 South Grand avenue, Pasadena.

There are two children, Mrs. Francis Baer and Harrison I. Drummond Jr., who served in the navy during the war period.

At the hearing in Los Angeles, it was represented that, for several years before the separation, Drummond had been addicted to intemperate habits. The wife alleged that for a considerable time the burden of maintaining the household had fallen upon her.

NEW ARTICLE 10 RESERVATIONS BLOCK TREATY NEGOTIATIONS

Republicans Not Disposed to Accept Changes Offered by Hitchcock.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Peace treaty negotiations still stood at an impasse tonight, with opinion among leaders divided on possibilities of a compromise to insure ratification when the treaty is taken up in the Senate next week.

Discussion centered on two revised article 10 reservations submitted yesterday by Senator Hitchcock, Democratic leader, but there seemed little disposition by Republicans to accept either. Republican leaders said no formal reply had been made to Senator Hitchcock, and that there would probably be none.

Virtually the only difference between one Hitchcock proposal and the new Republican reservation, it was pointed out, is the insertion in the latter of the words "or by any other means" in enumerating measures which the United States would decline to bring into use to preserve the integrity of other countries.

HI-POINTE APARTMENT DESTROYED BY FIRE

Four Families Made Homeless and Property Loss Is Estimated at $45,000.

A four-family apartment house at 7126-28 Alamo avenue, in Hi-Ponte, St. Louis County, and the household and personal effects of its occupants were destroyed shortly before noon yesterday by a fire caused by an overheated furnace.

The flames, fanned by a strong west wind, gained rapid headway and spread to two adjoining apartment buildings, compelling eight other families to move their furniture to the street. These buildings were saved, however, through the efforts of firemen from St. Louis, University City and Clayton, but not until each had been damaged about $3500.

The firemen were handicapped by an inadequate water supply. It was necessary for them to stretch a hose line a quarter of a mile to the nearest fire plug at McCausland avenue and Skinker road. When the connection was made the pressure was low. Meanwhile the first building was destroyed.

Invalids Carried Out.

Two occupants of the buildings were ill from influenza and it was necessary for neighbors to carry them out. They were F. T. McDermott, who lived at 7128 Alamo avenue, in the destroyed building, and Harry Seegar, 7130 Alamo avenue.

Martin L. Newberry, owner of the building, discovered the fire. He called neighbors, and a bucket brigade was formed in an attempt to extinguish the flames, which had spread to the rafters in the basement. Their efforts proved ineffectual, and they hastened outside to assist in removing the furnishings of the adjoining apartments.

Fire insurance adjusters estimated the total damage at $45,000. The destroyed structure, which had been erected only three months ago, was valued at $20,000. The loss caused by the destruction of the furniture and personal effects was estimated at $18,000.

Salesman Heavy Loser.

A. H. Peters, a salesman, who resided at 7126A Alamo avenue, said that furniture, clothing and jewelry valued at $10,000 had been destroyed. He carried $1000 insurance on the furniture. The other occupants of the building were not protected by insurance.

Newberry said that he had about $10,000 insurance on the building.

The third occupant of the destroyed building was G. E. Russell, who lived with his wife and three children at 7126 Alamo avenue.

The families in the adjoining apartments, who moved their effects to the street, were those of Harry Seegar, Dr. D. R. Fuson, 7130A Alamo avenue; Fred M. Henry, 7132 Alamo avenue; E. K. Glosser, 7132A Alamo avenue; S. A. Whitten, 7122 Alamo avenue; E. T. Elkington, 7122A Alamo avenue; P. Leontsinis, 7124 Alamo avenue, and Raymond H. Pauk, 7124A Alamo avenue.

3 FORMER SOLDIERS WOULD RETURN TO EUROPE TO WED

One Has Fiancee in Germany, Another in England and the Other in France.

Three discharged service men recently have made application to the Clerk of the United States District Court here for passports to European points, stating their purpose to go abroad to marry the girls they left behind.

Harry J. Lambert, 3863 Olive street, a former navy man, brought a bunch of letters from a girl at an English port whom he said he met during a month's stay of his ship at that harbor. He said he had planned to marry the girl during his stay, but returning from shore leave one night, he found the ship getting under way. It sailed off without his having an opportunity to say goodby.

Henry A. Heidenfelder of Belleville, also took to the clerk's office a collection of letters from a German girl at Coblenz, in which she declared that she would never be happy again until he was at her side. "The only desire I have is to make her happy, so you see how urgent it is that I get back," he said.

William Hopeful, who gave a Detroit address as his home, also has applied for a passport. He wants to go to a French village to marry a girl he says is waiting for him.

FIRE PARTLY DESTROYS THE CABANNE HOTEL

Loss of $13,000 Reported at Hostelry Which Formerly Housed Exclusive Club.

The Cabanne Hotel, 5545 Cabanne avenue, a family hostelry of 36 rooms, was partially destroyed by a fire which started at 3:50 p. m. yesterday and is thought to have been caused by a short circuit in the electrical wiring. A total loss of $13,000 was reported to the police, including $3000 damage to the building and $5000 damage to the furnishings. The remainder represents losses by guests.

The building is owner by "Prof." W. L. Gladstone, a clairvoyant at 6124 Easton avenue, who said there was about $10,000 insurance on the building and its contents.

Mrs. Helen A. Grott, the proprietor of the hotel, said there were about 50 guests, only about six of whom, women, were home when the fire started. They and several hotel employes were able to leave the burning building without difficulty. Among the women were Mrs. John Clinton, Miss Nellie Powers and Mrs. Grott.

Several of the women threw or carried belongings out. Mattresses and shoes were other articles appearing.

The fire was discovered by a man guest when he drove up in front of the hotel in his automobile. He carried an alarm to an engine house on Vernon avenue, behind the hotel.

The building is of stucco-covered frame construction, with a slate roof. To reach the flames it was necessary to tear away large sections of the roof in front. The third floor was ruined, the second floor partially destroyed, and the first floor water damaged.

Losses of clothing and jewelry were reported as follows: Miss Louisa Blake, $2000; Miss Julia Cornwall, $1000; Mrs. Clara Krenlen, $1500; Robert Ziegler, $300.

Eight years ago the building was vacated by the Cabanne Club, an exclusive organization of business and professional men, and stood vacant for six years.

POLICE SERGEANT BADLY HURT WHEN HORSE FALLS ON HIM

Edward F. Dwyer Thrown When Mount Becomes Frightened at Auto.

Police Sergeant Edward F. Dwyer, 42 years old, of 1032 Tamm avenue, attached to the Mounted District, was injured seriously at 2 p. m. yesterday, when he was thrown beneath his horse at Clayton and Billon avenues. He suffered internal hurts and injuries to the abdomen.

The Sergeant was riding toward the station when an automobile on Clayton road frightened his mount, which swerved sharply to one side of the road and fell, throwing Dwyer. The horse rolled on the policeman and the pummel of the saddle was pressed against his body.

He was picked up by a passing automobile and taken to his home. The horse after the accident regained its feet. Another policeman came along and took it to the stables.

CAR CREW AND PASSENGERS HALT JOURNEY TO SAVE HOUSE AFIRE

Volunteers Interrupt Family Breakfast Under Blazing Roof at 7565 Rankin Avenue.

The crew and passengers of a Brentwood street car at 8 a. m. yesterday halted their westward trip long enough to fight a fire successfully.

The car had passed Pennsylvania avenue when Conductor J. M. Sparks stopped it. "All out to fight a fire," he said, leading the motorman and seven passengers in a dash to a blazing roof he had discerned two blocks away.

The fire was at 7565 Rankin avenue and Mr. and Mrs. Andrew F. Glode were having breakfast when the fire fighters arrived. The family mobilized its buckets, a line was formed and the fire was extinguished with slight damage. Passengers and crew then returned to the car and resumed their journey.

807 NEW CASES OF INFLUENZA IN WEEK; A DROP FROM 3662

Rapid Improvement in Situation Here Releases Part of City Nurses From Service in Private Homes.

WEEK'S DEATHS, 279; PREVIOUS WEEK, 420

Fatalities Expected to Be Noticeable for Several Days Because of Large Number of Persons Ill.

Rapid subsidence of the influenza epidemic made it possible yesterday to release 16 of the 80 municipal nurses who have been serving on influenza cases in homes of patients.

The total number of new influenza cases reported last week was 807, whereas in the previous week the number was 3662. The number of deaths last week was 279, of which 121 were ascribed to influenza and 158 to pneumonia. The number of deaths from these causes the previous week was 420, of which 186 were ascribed to influenza and 234 to pneumonia.

The number of new cases reported at 9 a. m. yesterday for the preceding 24-hour period was 76. The number of deaths for the 20 hours ending at noon yesterday was 23—11 from influenza and 12 from pneumonia. For the 28 hours from noon Thursday until 4 p. m. Friday, [illegible] deaths from these causes were recorded.

Health Department officials believe that, because of the large number of cases still under treatment, the number of fatalities will continue to be noticeable for several days.

A compilation made by the Health Department shows that the average weekly death rate from influenza and pneumonia in the latter part of January was 154, and thus far in February 344. In October, 1918, when the former epidemic was at its height, the weekly average of deaths was 193. In 1917, when there was no epidemic, the average week's deaths from pneumonia and influenza, or grip, was 71, in February 66, and in October 21.

The number of deaths from all causes last week was 544, the number of births recorded being 340. The death list included 32 from Bright's disease, 40 from heart trouble and 19 from tuberculosis, besides four suicides, three homicides and seven accidental deaths.

Park Commissioner Pape announced yesterday that the 10 Community Centers conducted in public schools which have been closed by order of Health Commissioner Starkloff because of the influenza would be re-opened tomorrow evening at 7:30. Community Centers are established in the Shepard, Gardenville, Grover Cleveland High School, Rose Fanning, Shaw, Chouteau, Madison, Glasgow, Ashland and Mark Twain schools.

AUTO DRIVER IS FINED $25

Judge Splits Difference Between Him and Policemen.

Raymond F. D. Oerbaum, of 1314 Washington avenue, in police court yesterday differed with motorcycle policemen who said he was going 30 miles an hour in his Ford automobile when they chased him from Union boulevard to Hamilton avenue Friday afternoon.

"I have driven a war ambulance in France and a Ford over here and I know I was going only 20 miles an hour," he said. "With that experience you ought to be able to tell by the rattle just how fast you are going," said Judge Mix. "I will split the difference between your estimate and the policemen's and fine you $25." It has been the custom of Judge Mix to fine a speeder $1 for each mile of his speed.

MRS. KUPFERLE DIES IN SOUTH

Mrs. Emma G. Kupferle of 6127 Lindell boulevard, president of the John C. Kupferle Foundry Co., and widow of John C. Kupferle, died yesterday in Jacksonville, Fla., according to information received last night by relatives here. Funeral arrangements had not been determined last night.

Four daughters survive Mrs. Kupferle. They are: Mrs. George Raithel, Mrs. P. W. Bittenger, Mrs. J. P. Woods and Mrs. Herman Lee Schnure. Mrs. Kupferle was formerly Miss Emma Gross and was married in St. Louis in 1868.

Call for Police at New Plant.

A call for police assistance was received last night from the plant of the General Motors Co., which is in course of construction at Union boulevard and Natural Bridge avenue. It was said a strike of engineers was on and a detail of police was sent from the Mounted District station. The engineer in charge of the plant refused to discuss the trouble.

Woman Dies on Way to Hospital.

When Charles E. Eaton of 2265 Indiana avenue returned from work to his home yesterday at 4:30 p. m., he found his wife, Addie, 63 years old, ill in bed. Under a pillow a bottle was discovered that had contained carbolic acid. She died on the way to a hospital.

Suggestions to Keep Children From Fearing Influenza

DR. JAMES STEWART, Supervisor of Hygiene in the public schools, yesterday issued seven suggestions for school children and their parents, the observance of which is expected to remove fear of influenza contagion when the public schools reopen Monday morning. The suggestions are:

Don't be afraid to go to school on Monday.

The sanitary conditions of the school buildings and premises make them much more safe than many other public places and buildings.

It would be wise for all people, especially children, to remain away from all poorly ventilated and unsanitary places.

Be careful of those who cough and sneeze, as they are dangerous, not only in influenza, but in diphtheria, measles and tuberculosis.

Everyone coughing or sneezing should always protect others by using a handkerchief.

Out of a total of 7917 reported cases of influenza to date, only 6 per cent were of children under 16 years of age.

The medical supervision over the school children will aid very materially in maintaining health.

C. OF C. ISSUES LIST OF APPROVED CHARITIES

Guide for Citizens Who Wish to Donate Funds to Worthy Organization.

The Charities Committee of the Chamber of Commerce has issued a warning against gifts to unworthy charities or solicitors, pointing out that such gifts result in a waste of money, in depriving legitimate charities of funds which rightfully belong to them and in encouraging the existence of what they term "charity parasites" who make it a business to live off public generosity.

To enable St. Louis citizens to discriminate between the worthy and unworthy, the Charities Committee has had compiled a list of charities to which the approval of the Chamber of Commerce is given, confining the scope of such approval to local charitable and philanthropic organizations. No attempt is made to pass on the work of churches, missions, or organizations whose work is primarily religious or to fraternal lodges, social clubs, business and trade organizations or national patriotic societies. The secretary will, however, make an investigation of any organization coming within these classes when requested to do so.

The list of approved charities for the year 1920 is as follows: Ben a Kiba Home for Women, Bethesda Charities, Beth Moshab 'Z'Keineim Society, Big Brother Organization of St. Louis, Big Sister Organization, Blind Girls' Industrial Home, Boyle Memorial Center, Caroline Mission Evangelical Social Center, Catholic Outing Home, The Children's Home Society of Missouri, Children's Industrial Farm Association, Christian Orphans' Home of the National Benevolent Association of the Christian Church, Country Home for Convalescents, Epworth School for Girls, Euclid House (Girls' Protective Association of St. Louis), Federation of Jewish Charities of St. Louis, German General Protestant Orphans' Home, German Protestant Orphans' Home, German St. Vincent's Orphan Association, Girls' Industrial Home, Holy Cross Corporation, Home for Aged and Infirm Israelites, Home of the Friendless, Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association, Jewish Educational and Charitable Association, Jewish Home for Chronic Invalids, Jewish Hospital of St. Louis, Jewish Orphans' Home, Jewish Shelter Home, Junior League of St. Louis, Kingdom House, The Letmar Club Association, Lutheran Hospital, Markham Memorial Presbyterian Church, Memorial Home, Miriam Convalescent Home, The Mission Free School, Missouri Association for the Blind, Missouri Association for Occupational Therapy, Missouri Baptist Orphans' Home, Neighborhood Association, People's Hospital, Russell Home, St. Joseph's Deaf Mute Institute, St. Louis Altenheim, St. Louis Catholic Woman's League of Missouri, St. Louis Children's Aid Society, St. Louis Children's Hospital, St. Louis Colored Orphans' Home, St. Louis County Welfare Association, St. Louis Maternity Hospital, St. Louis Obstetric Hospital and Dispensary Association, St. Louis Protestant Orphans' Asylum, St. Louis Provident Association, St. Louis Pure Milk Commission, St. Louis Settlement Association (Guardian Angel), St. Louis Society for the Relief and Prevention of Tuberculosis, St. Louis Working Girls' Home, St. Vincent de Paul Society, Salvation Army Rescue and Maternity Home, South Side Day Nursery, Summer Rest—Branch of Women's Christian Association — Visiting Nurse Association of St. Louis, Wesley House Settlement, White Cross Crusade, Women's Christian Home, Young Men's Christian Association, Young Women's Christian Association of St. Louis, Young Women's Christian Association of St. Louis (Phyllis Wheatley Branch), and Young Women's Club House.

The Committee does not pass on the work of the following agencies, but refers donors to the Archbishop of St. Louis for information: Aid Society for the Inmates of Penal and Reformatory Institutions of Missouri, Alexian Brothers' Hospital, Catholic Instruction League, Catholic Outing Home (this organization reports to the Committee), Catholic Women's Association, St. Louis Catholic Women's League of Missouri (this organization reports to the Committee), Convent of the Good Shepherd, St. Joseph Deaf Mute Institute (this organization reports to the Committee), Father Dempsey's Hotel for Workingmen, Father Dempsey's Hotel for Workingwomen, Father Dunne's Newsboys' Home, German St. Vincent Orphan Association (this organization reports to the Committee), Guardian Angel Settlement (this organization reports to the Committee), The Helpers of the Holy Souls in Purgatory, Hessoun Bohemian Catholic Orphanage, Home of the Aged, Ladies of Charity, Mercy Home, Mt. St. Rose Hospital, The Queen's Daughters, Religious Work among Catholics in the City Institutions, St. Ann's Widows' Home, Lying-in Hospital and Foundling Asylum, St. Anthony's Hospital, St. Elizabeth's Settlement of the Central Verein, St. Frances' Orphan Asylum, St. John's Hospital, St. Joseph's Convent of Mercy, St. Joseph's Male Orphan Asylum, St. Louis Industrial School Sunday School Association, St. Louis Mullanphy Hospital, St. Mary's Female Orphan Asylum, St. Mary's Infirmary, St. Patrick's Day Nursery and Emergency Home, St. Philomena's Technical School, St. Vincent's Institution for the Insane, Society of St. Vincent de Paul (this organization reports to the Committee), White Cross Crusade (this organization reports to the Committee).

The following agencies are listed as not reporting to the committee directly, but are under the supervision of the Hospital Saturday and Sunday Association:

Barnard Free Skin and Cancer Hospital, Theresa and Washington avenues.

Barnes Hospital, King's highway boulevard and Forest Park.

Evangelical Deaconess Hospital, 4125 West Belle place.

St. Luke's Hospital, Delmar and Belt avenues.

St. Mary's Infirmary, 1536 Papin street.

YOUTH CONVICTED OF ROBBERY AND SENTENCED TO 5 YEARS

Found Guilty of Participation in Hold Up of Auto Party in County Last June.

Earl Huston, 19 years old, of 2730 Olive street, yesterday in the Circuit Court at Clayton was convicted of robbery and received a sentence of five years in the penitentiary. He was charged with being one of four young men who held up Isaac Helmann, of St. Louis, and Miss Florine May, a daughter of David May, 5 Washington Terrace on the Berry road, St. Louis County, at 9 p. m. June 19. Helman and Miss May were in an automobile returning from the Westwood Country Club. The robbers took a $1200 diamond ring, a $40 stickpin and $45 in cash from Helmann, and a $600 wrist watch and a gold mesh bag valued at $500 from Miss May.

The State called as its principal witnesses Clarence Pitt, 18 years old, 3713 North Ninth street, and Robert Layman, 23 years old, 4270 Delmar avenue, who entered pleas of guilty to the same robbery and received six months' sentences. At a preliminary hearing and in a confession it was alleged that they implicated both Huston and Bernard Ball, 1810 North Grand avenue, declaring that Huston was the one who pointed a revolver at Helmann, but yesterday they repudiated their former statements and said that Huston was not guilty.

Helmann could not identify Huston. Miss May was not in court, being in California. The State had to rely on evidence concerning Huston's prevous criminal record. The case against Ball has not been tried.

TESTIFIES NEWBERRY MAN SAID HE GOT $1095

Grand Juror Attributes Statement to State Senator Who 'Considered Half of It Velvet.'

By the Associated Press.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Feb. 14.—Whether work for the committee which managed the 1918 senatorial campaign of Truman H. Newberry was a paying proposition, was again emphasized by the prosecution today at the elections conspiracy trial. From several bits of testimony there stood out the following statement, attributed by a grand juror to one defendant, C. V. Deland, a State Senator from Jackson:

"I got in all $1095, and I considered at least half of that pure velvet."

The expression was presented to the jury through G. L. Jordan, who made his second appearance. He was the second grand jury witness today, being preceded by the third appearance of C. R. Higbee, clerk of the jury.

As on previous occasions, Martin W. Littleton and G. E. Nichols of defense counsel put them through severe cross-examinations. They held stoutly, however, to the main portions of their testimony.

Higbee acknowledged he had little or no recollection of one defendant's grand jury testimony except what was recorded in his note, and Nichols played on this theme at length, closing by showing the trial jury Higbee made two brief pages of notes while the defendant was before the grand jury "at least 20 minutes, and perhaps half an hour."

W. H. Richter, worker in a local furniture factory, testified today so much in variance with the version of his grand jury information presented by F. C. Dailey, Assistant Attorney General, that Judge Clarence W. Sessions ordered an investigation. It was learned that the investigation probably will devolve upon Myron H. Walker, United States District Attorney.

Littleton objected strenuously to Judge Sessions' action, saying he did so because of the effect the incident might have on the jury. Richter had been testifying concerning some campaign activities of George Welsh, Grand Rapids member of the Legislature.

Richter's attitude drew from Dailey a most severe grilling. The government attorney managed to bring out that Richter had talked with Welsh about a State job for himself while the senatorial campaign was on.

"You not only got your job, but you also got a place for your son as a page in the Legislature, didn't you?" he asked. And when Richter tried to explain that Welsh had not promised it to him, the prosecutor declared:

"See here, you testified to that fact before the grand jury and repeated it in a signed statement."

"How often have you seen George Welsh in the last ten days?" was the next query, and after many questions Mr. Dailey learned that Richter talked with Welsh 45 minutes before taking the stand.

PROPERTY OWNERS PLAN FIGHT ON ENCROACHMENT OF NEGROES

The West End Improvement Association, an organization of white property owners who object to the encroachment of negroes in West End streets heretofore occupied exclusively by whites, will undertake a house-to-house canvass next week for the purpose of persuading property owners not to sell their places to negroes.

The canvass will be made by "block committees" consisting of one man for each block. In addition to visiting the property owners and acquainting them with the purposes of the organization the "block committees" will endeavor to observe all negotiations for the sale of property with a view of preventing the completion of such negotiations when the prospective buyer is a negro.

The committees were named at a meeting of officers of the association last night at the home of R. S. Rauschkolb, the president. It was decided for the present to confine the canvass to Enright avenue, between Grand avenue and King's highway.

The association was formed Thursday night at a meeting at the First Presbyterian Church, Sarah street and Washington boulevard. The original purpose of the association was to prevent the sale of the First United Presbyterian Church, Enright and Newstead avenues, to a negro congregation, but its scope has been extended and the organization will now endeavor to keep negroes out of the district bounded by Grand avenue and King's highway and Forest Park boulevard and the Hodiamont right-of-way.

THE CRIME OF THE AGE

Is the selling of Spectacles and Eyeglasses by incompetent opticians who call themselves doctors and others. None of these men are physicians. Ask them for their license to practice medicine in Missouri.

NOTHING IS MORE PRECIOUS THAN EYESIGHT

I AM a physician, oculist and optician and have practiced for many years in St. Louis. If your eyes are diseased I will care for them, and should glasses be needed, I will prescribe and make them correctly, and the total cost for treatment and glasses will not exceed the price of a pair of glasses that may do irreparable injury to your eyes. SATISFACTION GUARANTEED. I am both the oculist and optician. The privilege of communicating with any of my thousands of patrons is extended to any who care to do so.

TEACHER SPEAKS ON HER MODEL RURAL SCHOOL

Mrs. Marie Turner Harvey of Porter Declares Missouri's Great Need Is Education.

Mrs. Marie Turner Harvey, teacher of the Porter community school, three miles from Kirksville, Mo., spoke before the Social Service Conference yesterday at luncheon. The Porter school is known as the model country school of America and has become such during the eight years of Mrs. Harvey's regime as teacher. She was formerly a teacher at Clayton and organized a Community society there.

Mrs. Harvey declared educational matters must be absolutely divorced from politics if the future of America were to be safeguarded. "We must tear ourselves away from tradition," she said, "let us cut some red tape in our educational system. I am a free lance and I would not exchange my position for any other that could be offered me."

Condemns Teachers' Strikes.

Referring briefly to the matter of teachers striking or considering such measures, Mrs. Harvey militantly struck her hand upon the table as she said, "The teacher who talks of striking is not worthy of being a teacher." She said that teachers were underpaid, that they must have higher wages but that first of all they give consideration to their efficiency as teachers.

"The country and city must come together in a better understanding," she continued, " just now the country people regard you in the city with suspicion, while you regard us in the country as examples of profound ignorance. Let's get acquainted with one another; we might like each other.

"There's nothing the matter with Missouri except here people. And there's nothing the matter with them except that the rural population cannot see why the farmer of today needs education when his forefathers did not have it.

Education As a Cure.

"When you city people go before the legislative bodies with good roads laws or other good measures, the rural legislators view it with unjustifiable suspicion and kill the measure. That must be stopped. And the way to stop it is to educate the people of the rural districts. The ignominy which attaches to Missouri's rural school system is disgraceful and wholly unnecessary. It must be blotted out by sane and liberal policies. There must be put at work a propaganda of education for the farm boy and girl."

FOUNDER OF NOTED "COUNTRY HIGH SCHOOL"

MRS. MARIE TURNER HARVEY

Mrs. Harvey introduced herself as a "simple country school teacher, unaccustomed to facing audiences of city folks." She then proceeded to launch her invectives with a force which betrayed no embarrassment or strangeness of surroundings.

The Porter school is formed from a union of several school districts near Kirksville. When Mrs. Harvey first went to the school it was an ordinary rural school, badly run down with no modern facilities for teaching or in the way of sanitation. She says that the school building was used mainly as a refuge for tramps and that the school board members told her they dared not refuse these itinerants lodging because of the fear that they might obtain revenge by burning the farmers' barns. Mrs. Harvey obtained permission to call a mass meeting of farmers. She explained at this meeting what she wished done, the conversion of the school into a modern institution.

Won Support of Farmers.

She obtained their permission to proceed with such work along her own lines and was granted a liberal amount of money to do this work with, after she had succeeded in impressing upon the farmers of that community the fact that it was their interests she was seeking to aid.

As a result, the school building was remodeled and made modern in every particular. Sanitary lavatories were installed, a large library has been built up during the eight years of her teaching there and no rural school in Missouri has so complete a reference library. Modern methods of teaching, such as are employed in the most highly developed metropolitan schools have been introduced. The school has been termed the "country high school of Missouri."

Children are transported to and from the school by means of automobiles specially donated for the purpose. The school building has been made a community center and meetings are held in it of the farmers' societies, charitable and patriotic organizations, neighborhood clubs and other organizations to which the members of the community belong. "The tramp of old would find it hard to secure lodging there now for there is hardly a night when the school is not being used for some community gathering," Mrs. Harvey says.

LABOR'S POLITICAL PROGRAM OPPOSED BY STATE INDUSTRIES

Opposition to the announced program of the American Federation of Labor to enter actively into politics in an effort to elect to office only "true and tried trade unionists or of assured friends" was declared yesterday by the Associated Industries of Missouri in a letter sent to business men by Elmer Donnell, secretary and manager.

"The labor leaders' policy of 'closed shop' in industry is now being carried into politics," Donnell states in the letter, "and if this program is successful it is natural to suppose that the 'closed shop' will prevail in Government. Imagine Washington, Lincoln, Roosevelt being requested to show a union card before the Federation of Labor would permit them to take the oath as President of the United States.

"Next election day is Nov. 4 and between now and that time, whether we be Democrat or Republican, you and I should make it our business to support candidates big enough to believe that a platform must not consist of one narrow plank labeled 'class,' but be broad, strong and liberal enough to support the weight of a program 'of the people, for the people, and by the people.' "

SHOP WORKER FOUND IN ALLEY SHOT THROUGH HEART

Police Say Revolver With One Empty Chamber Was Lying By His Side.

The body of Louis J. Herring, 25 years old, 1912 St. Louis avenue, was found with a bullet through the heart in a sitting posture against a shed in an alley in the rear of 1323 Carr street last night at 10.30 o'clock.

Persons in the neighborhood reported that they had heard one shot. The police found the body. Beside it was a revolver with one cartridge discharged.

His mother, Mrs. Alice Herring, said that she could conjecture no reason why her son should take his life. He was employed as a shop worker by the Missouri Pacific Railroad.

BUSINESS MAN IS DENIED CITIZENSHIP

Fritz Marx Says He Desired Naturalization So He Could Buy Grain Company.

Naturalization was denied yesterday to Fritz Marx of 5554 Delmar boulevard, treasurer of the K. & E. Neumond Co., manufacturers of grain by-products with offices in the Pierce building, after testimony and affidavits had been submitted to Federal Judge Faris to show that Marx claimed exemption from the military draft on the ground that he was an enemy alien and at that time said he would not fight against Germany.

It was also shown that in his application for naturalization under a special exception granted by the Department of Justice, he said his object in obtaining citizenship was to purchase the stock of the Neumond Co. which during the war was held by the Custodian of Enemy Alien Property.

Judge Faris, in denying the application, said he would not grant citizenship to any enemy alien, regardless of special exceptions granted by the President and the Department of Justice until after peace had been definitely declared between the United States and Germany. He said it appeared that Marx was well educated and qualified for citizenship, but that he sought citizenship to obtain selfish and unreciprocal benefits.

ESKIMO SHIRTS

The sewing industry is one of the best, if not the best, form of employment for the woman or girl who wishes to earn the greatest amount possible, and at the same time receive a training which blends into the future of any woman's home.

TO THE LEARNER: Rice-Stix factories offer you a guaranteed wage while learning, the best instructors and foreladies in the city, normal hours, amid constantly improved surroundings. We invite you to visit any of our factories, particularly the one nearest by, for carfare and time spent on street cars are both items that cannot be overlooked.

TO THE EXPERIENCED OPERATOR: You know the result of each week's work depends not alone on any one particular item, but on a combination of the following: Steady, uninterrupted flow of work on garments of the highest grade, modern equipment, competent cutters, foreladies and machinists, and last but not least, pleasant, roomy, sanitary surroundings and consequently a good moral atmosphere.

TO THE FINISHER, IRONER OR LAUNDRY EMPLOYEE: These particular departments in our factories are unique in that they give the women in the neighborhood of the various factories, who have household duties to perform, an opportunity to profitably use the spare hours they have.

LASTLY—Do you figure hours on the car and carfare? If the factory nearest you does not provide the work for which you are best fitted, we provide and issue daily street car tokens at 5c each.

We believe that a garment, when completed, reflects the factory surroundings just as surely as the individual reflects the environment of a home.

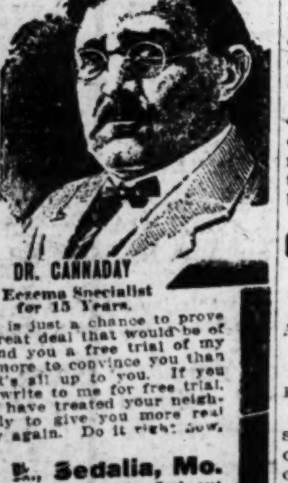
ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.



DR. CANNADAY
Eczema Specialist for 15 Years.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone, ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now, your very life may be at stake.

Send this notice to some poor sufferer from eczema. It will be a kind act by you.

HONOR ROLL OF WAR DEAD NEAR COMPLETION

Memorial Tablet for St. Louis and County Will Contain 950 or 1000 Names.

The preparation of the Honor Roll of St. Louis and St. Louis County, which is to include the names of all United States soldiers, sailors and marines from the city and county who died in the war, either overseas, at camps in this country, or at sea, is being completed by the Memorial Tablet Honor Roll Committee, of which Mrs. Ben F. Gray of 374 Walton avenue is chairman.

Mrs. Gray said yesterday that the final number of names in the roll had not been determined, but that it probably would exceed 950, and would fall short of 1000.

Temporary tablets with adjustable letters, are to be placed in the city hall. The permanent tablets, of marble, are to be in the Jefferson Memorial, or in any suitable memorial building which it may be decided to construct.

The Honor Roll Committee of St. Louis and St. Louis County was formed in August, 1918, following the publication of a statement that Mayor Kiel would welcome the co-operation of patriotic societies in gathering data as to those killed.

Officers of Committee.

The officers of the committee, as constituted at that time, were: President and chairman, Mrs. Gray; vice presidents, Mrs. Theodore Shelton, Mrs. Nettie Harney Beauregard, Mrs. Samuel McKnight Green and Mrs. Robert McCulloch; recording secretary, Mrs. Arthur W. Southward; corresponding secretary, Miss Hallie Baker; treasurer, Mrs. Wilson W. Keyser; advisory council, Mrs. Wallace Delafield, Mrs. John N. Booth and Mrs. W. D. Parish; honorary, Mrs. Walter B. Douglass, Mrs. John Trigg Moss, Mrs. Frank de Garme, Walter B. Douglas, Adjutant-General Clark and Mayor Kiel.

Organizations contributing tablets and giving work and their representatives in the work were: Daughters of the American Revolution, St Louis Chapter, Mrs Ashley Cabell, Mrs. Keyser, Mrs. A. V. L. Brokaw, Miss Lilian M. Kilburn, Miss Katherine Thompson, Mrs. Senter Gettys, Mrs. Arthur M. Wilson, Miss Edna Newcomb, Mrs. Cabell Gray, Mrs. Ernest Bisbee, Mrs. Walter B. Trask, Miss Margaret Pilcher, Mrs. Robert Lund, Mrs. Alby Mason and Mrs. B. F. Gray.

Colonial Societies and Daughters of 1812—Mrs. H. W. Eliot, Mrs. Wallace Delafield, Mrs. A. W. Southward, Mrs. W. L. Kline, Mrs. Booth, Mrs. Shelton, Miss Katherine Moody, Mrs Gray, Mrs. Loraine Jones, Mrs. Hiram Phillips, Mrs. B. R. Foster.

United Daughters of the Confederacy, three St. Louis chapters—Mrs. S. H. Curlee, Mrs. Charles G. Petrie, Mrs. John Hurck, Mrs. W. W. Henderson, Mrs. L. W. Ray, Mrs W H. Hudson

Other Contributors

One Hundred and Tenth Army Supply Train Auxiliary, Navy Auxiliary and Marine Corps Auxiliary—Mrs. J. D. Marshall, Mrs. Oscar Niedringhaus, Mrs. William Bagnel, Mrs. Lionel Bel Moses, Mrs. James A. Waterworth, Mrs. Marguerite Hopkins.

Ladies of the G. A. R. and Spanish War Veterans—Mrs. M. Wanless, Mrs. Julia Roemer, Mrs. John H. Lott, Mrs. Homer Scherrer, Mrs. Susan Campbell, Mrs. Ida Herbert, Mrs. Flaskamper, Mrs. Anna Fisehr, Mrs. Laura Hurtgen, Miss A. Schumacher, Mrs. Della R. Henry.

Mayor Kiel and city officials. This is to be a tablet containing the roster of battles and camps.

In addition to these societies, a contribution was made to the cost of the work by the Colonial Daughters of America, represented by Mrs. John Trigg Moss and Mrs. William Van Slyke.

The names are to be placed under division and company headings, and are to be designated as killed in action, died from wounds, or died in hospital or camp, or at sea.

Task Difficult.

The committee's most difficult task, Mrs. Gray relates, was that of elimination, as it proved that some of those reported in official casualty lists as having died were still alive. There was no official list of those dying at camps in this country, and this added to the work of investigation. It also proved that some names credited to St. Louis were those of nonresidents, whose next of kin lived here, while in a like manner some St. Louis men were named in the casualty list as residing elsewhere. Hundreds of cards of inquiry were sent by mail to the next of kin, and the answers furnished the basis for the final record.

The Missouri Historical Society, in the Jefferson Memorial, was headquarters for the work until last December, when it was transferred to Mrs. Gray's home.

The Honor Roll Committee conducted the memorial service in Forest Park June 15 last, and it furnished the memorial decorations at the Armistice day anniversary celebration, Nov. 11 last.

COAL OPERATORS IN CENTRAL FIELD COMPLAIN OF LOSSES

Assert Many Mines Will Close Unless Prices Are Adjusted to Offset Wage Increase.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—The coal strike commission appointed a subcommittee today to investigate a complaint filed by operators of the central competitive field that the industry was in a critical condition, due to operation of the 14 per cent wage increase.

The operators' brief declared that the wage increases without a compensating adjustment in prices would force many mines to close.

That Little Thin Spot Will Soon Grow Larger

Thinning hair is a sure sign that your scalp is inactive and the roots of the hair are not in a normal condition. Don't neglect your scalp. Dust, excess oil, perspiration, dandruff and other impurities clog up the hair ducts, prevent the natural growth of the hair and soon it falls out.

A few minutes brushing every day with a good stiff brush, and a shampoo once a week with Coconol will keep your hair and scalp clean, stimulate the circulation of the blood in the underlying tissues, and promote a thick growth of lustrous, beautiful hair.

Cocoanut Oil Shampoo
Coconol

Cleanses the Hair—Nourishes the Roots

Coconol is made from the purest cocoanut oil. It is mild and antiseptic. The soothing, creamy foam penetrates the hair ducts, cleanses them thoroughly, and supplies the nourishing cocoanut oil that promotes the growth of the hair. Try this perfect shampoo and prevent that little thin spot.

Only 25 Cents a Box—At All Dealers

Each box contains 12 snow white cubes of pure, mild Coconol, and only costs 25 cents. Each cube is sufficient for a shampoo. Simply dissolve it in hot water. It is cleansing, soothing, refreshing and nourishing. Don't forget—don't delay—order Coconol today. Your dealer has it, or will get it for you.

How Thin Folks Can Put On Flesh

If you are weak, thin and emaciated and can't put on flesh or get strong, no matter how much you eat, go to Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co., or Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and get enough Blood-Iron Phosphate for a three-weeks' treatment and take it as directed. If at the end of three weeks you don't feel stronger and better than you have for months; if your eyes aren't brighter and your nerves steadier; if you don't sleep better, and your health, strength and vitality aren't more than doubled, or if you haven't put on several pounds of good stay-there flesh, you can have your money back for the asking and Blood-Iron Phosphate will cost you nothing.

IMPORTANT—Blood-Iron Phosphate is sold only in original packages containing enough for three weeks' treatment, at $1.50 per package—only 50c a week.

To Peel Off Blotchy, Rough or Chapped Skin

To remove roughness, chaps, freckles, blotches, or any complexion difficulty, the best thing to do is to remove the skin itself. This is easily, painlessly and inexpensively done by the application of ordinary mercolized wax, procurable at any drug store in the original one-ounce package. The wax absorbs the defective outer skin, a little each day, gradually bringing the second layer of skin to the surface. The pores are unclogged and the face breathes in the life-giving oxygen. The new skin is beautifully soft and spotless, bearing the healthy glow of youth. Just apply the wax as you would cold cream, only not rubbing it in. In the morning wash it off with warm water. It's the most effective complexion treatment known.

THIN PEOPLE NEED BITRO-PHOSPHATE

Increases Weight, Strength and Nerve Force in Two Weeks' Time in Many Instances

Take plain bitro-phosphate, is the advice of these physicians to thin, delicate, nervous people who lack vim, energy and nerve force, and there seems to be ample proof of the efficacy of this preparation to warrant the recommendation. Moreover, if we judge from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing arms, neck and bust, and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their excessive thinness.

Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency so well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by Judge & Dolph, Enderle Drug Stores, Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., and most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

Georgia Hamilton, the wonderful "movie" girl, who was once thin and frail, says: "Bitro-Phosphate brought about the magic transformation. I gained 15 pounds and never before felt so well."

Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which nearly always accompany excessive thinness, should soon disappear, dull eyes ought to brighten and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

Physicians and hospitals everywhere are now recognizing its merits by its use in ever-increasing quantities. Frederick Kolle, M. D., editor of New York Physicians' "Who's Who," says: "Bitro-phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital to increase strength and nerve force and to enrich the blood."

Joseph D. Harrigan, former visiting specialist to Northeastern Dispensatory, says: "Let those who are weak, thin, nervous, anemic or run-down, take a natural, unadulterated substance such as bitro-phosphate and you will soon see some astonishing results in the increase of nerve energy, strength of body and mind and power of endurance."

Bitro-phosphate is made entirely of the organic phosphate compound referred to in the National Standard Dispensatory as being a preparation which has recently acquired considerable reputation in the treatment of neurasthenia. The standard of excellence, strength and purity of its substance is beyond question, for every Bitro-phosphate tablet is manufactured in strict accordance with the U. S. Pharmacopoeia test requirements. Bitro-Phosphate is therefore not a patent medicine, and should not be confused with any of the secret nostrums, so-called tonics or widely advertised "cure-alls."

CAUTION—While Bitro-Phosphate is unsurpassed for the relief of nervousness, general debility, etc., those taking it who do not desire to put on flesh should use extra care in avoiding fat-producing foods.

Quick Relief From Indigestion, Gastritis and Stomach Acidity

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE

Owing to the great variety of stomach ailments and the hundred and one "specifics" for their treatment, it would indeed be a mere chance if the average layman selected a remedy for his own case that would give substantial and lasting benefits; even granting that the selected remedy possessed real merit when administered for a specific condition. It is therefore not surprising to find the sufferer from stomach irregularities buying and trying first one "cure," then another, in a vain endeavor to obtain relief. Recent investigations of the treatment of a large number of cases of indigestion, dyspepsia, gastritis and conditions prove that there is nothing more effective in the treatment of these ailments than ordinary serathol, which can be obtained from any good druggist at trifling cost. Many a sufferer from these complaints has been agreeably surprised at the almost instantaneous relief and subsequent permanent benefit from its use. Serathol is a harmless and tasteless white powder, a teaspoonful of which should be taken in a full glass of water immediately after meals. In many cases of hyper-acidity a single dose produces almost magic effects. For sale by Wolff-Wilson Drug Co. and all good druggists.

CORN MARKET HIGHER AT END OF THE WEEK

Big Break in Early Trading Is Recovered; Oats Show Upward Drift.

Widespread refusal of farmers to sell did much last week to compel an advance in the corn market. Compared with a week ago, corn quotations at the close yesterday were 2½c to 4c higher. Oats showed gains of 2¾c to 3¾c.

Rural antagonism to selling corn became especially pronounced after a sharp setback in prices had taken place, as a result of emergency railroad orders to hurry the crop movement, and not allow cars to be used for any grain shipments from Chicago to the East, except wheat.

The emergency orders were expected to bring big supplies to primary centers, but the fact that values had quickly dropped in anticipation, led to nearly complete failure of the program.

Country shippers who had been clamoring for cars preferred now apparently to risk indefinite delay rather than accept any cut in values.

Opinion as to the market effect of the threatened railway strike was very unstable, but for the most part the corn trade was inclined to regard such a strike as bearish.

Oats, like corn, ascended after showing temporary weakness. Domestic demand was active and country offerings meager. There also was some revival in export business. Yesterday's market showed the top level of the week.

CORN UNSETTLED AT SLIGHT ADVANCE ON CHICAGO BOA

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—New advances in the price of corn took place today, largely as a response to continued smallness of receipts. The market closed unsettled, ¼c to ⅜c higher, with May $1.33⅛ to $1.33⅜ and July $1.30¼ to $1.30⅜. Oats gained 1c to 1¼c. In provisions the outcome varied from 5c decline to 10c advance.

The fact that arrivals of corn were smaller than had been looked for was emphasized by knowledge that zero weather prevailing might reasonably be expected to hold down further the movement of grain from the country. General belief that any immediate danger of a railroad strike had been averted gave the bulls additional help and so, too, did word that announcement of big exports from Argentina was an error. Backwardness of shipping demand here led afterward to a temporary decline, which was also associated somewhat with gossip about increased importation of foodstuffs into this country from Denmark. Buying for big elevator interests, though, strengthened the corn market again as the session came to a close.

Oats displayed independent firmness. Country holders said that the South was outbidding Chicago.

Provisions were steadied by estimates that the hog supply here next week would not be over plentiful.

Stop Hatching Weak Chicks
With Cheap Incubators
Remember, it is not how many you hatch that counts but how many you raise. Chicks that hatch out weak and wobbly, and live but a few days, mean nothing to you except trouble and loss.
Queen Incubators
hatch chicks that live and grow. That's the kind you want. You want big hatches, of course, but 100% hatches don't mean much if half the chicks die. We sell Queen machines because they have a splendid reputation as reliable hatchers of vigorous chicks. We have some Queen books that are interesting. You are welcome to a copy. IRREGULAR PRICES IN CATTLE MARKET HERE

Advance in Early Part of Week Is Lost; Hogs Also Irregular.

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Week.	Previous Week.	Last Year.
Cattle	20,330	22,174	19,679
Hogs	78,908	62,132	88,123
Sheep	8,437	5,351	6,968
Horses and mules	5,348	4,958	5,628

Buyers started out to get a few more cattle the early part of last week, and the extra competition brought about a stronger undertone to the market. Bulk of early steer sales were 25c higher, but the late trade lost all of the advance and in spots 25c more. One drove of yearlings topped the week at $13.25, with heavies up to $12.90, while bulk of the week's steer business was transacted in a spread of $10.75 to $11.75.

Good lightweight butcher cattle also showed additional strength at a 25c to 50c advance. The market weakened late and practically all of the advance was wiped out. The common and low-grade offerings in many cases were 25c to 50c lower. A few yearlings around $11 to $12.50 were the best, while a spread of $9 to $11 caught the bulk of sales.

Cows were slow sale from the start. Tuesday was the best day and a strong market was the result. Late in the week good beef cows showed a 25c reduction, while common canners and cheap grade cows were easily 50c lower. Canners dropped to a nickel for the first time this season. A spread of $7 to $9 caught the big end of sales, with a few choice grades quotable up to $10.50. Bulls were dull and steady to a quarter lower.

The railroad crisis was probably the chief drawback in the feeder and stocker cattle market this week. Buyers were confronted by a threatened tieup of roads and were not seeking cattle. The result was that the market showed a very weak tone and was mostly 25c to 50c lower. Demand was very small and not over half the usual volume of business was reported in this branch of the trade.

Veal calves at the high point sold up to $18.50, but the late market was a flat $1 lower, and in places $1.50. The late top was around $17.25, with only a few outsiders going above that price. Yearlings were hard sale all week and suffered a cut of 50c to 75c. Lights late were quotable from $6.25 to $6.75, while heavies sold as low as $5.50 in spots.

With the top price on hogs at $15.60 per cwt. in the week's final session, the market reflected practically no change from the previous week, on choice light hogs. Stronger weights and heavies, however, closed 50@75c lower and were very slow aand irregular at all times. According to old timers the market was more complicated than it has ever been, practically no two loads of hogs selling alike, where the weight exceeded 200 pounds.

Good hogs weighing 250 to 300 pounds sold from $14.25@14.50 per cwt. on the close; or more than a dollar below the price of good light hogs. To bring top prices hogs had to be even, just right in weight and well finished. Pig market closed 50@75c higher, with good weight pigs selling from $15@15.40, and light kinds from $13.50@14. Packer sows sold from $12.50@13 on the close, or about like a week ago.

Lamb prices advanced around 75c per cwt., although receipts totaled 8400 head, or more than 3000 greater than the previous week's run. Yearlings show about the same improvement as lambs, while sheep scored about 25@50c higher, placing this clas at the highest level of the season. Choice lambs are selling at $21, against a top of $20.25 this time a week ago. Current prices reflect almost a full recovery of the heavy declines imposed two weeks ago, and on the best grades are within 25c of the record high mark. Fair to good lambs are worth $19@20.50, plain to medium, $18@19; culls, $15@17 and skips, $12@14. Fat light yearlings sell from $19@19.50 and heavies from $18.50@19. Fat sheep are worth $13@13.50 at this time; canners $4@5 and choppers and bucks $6@8.50.

A comparatively light run of horses showed last week, and with a strong representation of buyers forced good action on practically all classes. General selling averaged stronger than the week preceding.

On a materially reduced run, the mule trade displayed a satisfactory tone throughout, showing considerable betterment as compared with the dull trade two weeks ago.

COTTON FIRM, UP 20 TO 55; MARKET NEWS IS BULLISH

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—There was a sharp further advance in the cotton market owing to the continued firmness of foreign exchange and the improved tone of the stock market. May contracts sold up from 33.52c to 34.20c, or 55 points net higher, and closed at 34.15c, with the general list closing firm at a net advance of 20 to 55 points.

Realizing brought in by the rapid advance of yesterday led to some irregularity at the start, and after opening 6 points lower to 27 points higher, most month sold about 8 to 13 points below last night's closing figures. Offerings were readily absorbed by the continued buying of Liverpool and Wall street shorts, and the market soon turned firmer on the bullish domestic consumption figures and the better tone of the financial markets. Domestic trade interests were credited with buying some cotton on the advance from 35.89c to 36.25c for March and from 31.60c to 32.10c for July, making net advances of 30 to 55 points on the active positions. In the case of May this made a recovery of nearly 2½c per pound from the low prices touched on the big break of last week, and there were reactions of a few points later under realizing. The census report showed domestic mill consumption of 591,725 bales for the month of January, or the largest reported for any month since 1917, when mills were busy with heavy goods for war uses.

It was also noted that the number of spindles reported active during January was the largest on record, which naturally created bullish sentiment as to future requirements. Local brokers said the bulk of the buying represented covering by straddle or wall street shorts, however, and trading was not more than moderately active. The early news from Washington was considered unsettling by some traders, but late in the morning there seemed to be increased optimism regarding prospects for any early ratification of the peace treaty.

Coffee Market.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Evening up for over the week end caused some irregularities in the market for coffee futures today, but the tone was generally steady owing to the further advances in sterling exchange and the steady showing of the official cables from Brazil. The opening was 9 to 22 points higher with May selling at 14.30c or 60 points above the low level of the week. There was some scattering March liquidation and the switching from near to date months, however, and prices eased off to 14.10c for May during the middle of the morning or within 3 points of last night's closing figures. Rallies followed on the continuous strength of the stock market with May closing at 14.17c and with the general list closing 9 to 15 points higher. March, 13.85c, May, 14.17c; July, 14.40c; September, 14.35c; October and December, 14.33c. Spot coffee dull. Rio 7s, 14c; Santos, 4s, 24c.

Preferred Stocks
INVESTORS who are confronted by the necessity of making the Revenue from Investments parallel the rising cost of living, have come to favor High-Grade Preferred Stocks yielding 7% to 8%, exempt from Federal Normal Income Tax.
Bankers and Investment Dealers have in recent years so protected the MODERN Preferred Stock by restrictions and safeguards that the Preferred Stockholder today practically occupies the position of a creditor (as does a bond holder), receiving materially greater income without reducing safety of principal.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—The Evening Post, in its copyrighted weekly financial review, says:

"That financial markets, the Stock Exchange in particular, not only reflect what is happening in the economic world, but foreshadow what is going to happen, is a familiar fact. It is no more familiar, however, than the other fact that they usually overdo the work of forecasting.

"The mood into which the financial community gets when the stock market is rising as it did last autumn, for instance, is a complete perversion of judgment. Probably the greater part of Wall street was actually convinced in November, that nothing could stop or check the pace at which our industrial activity and trade prosperity were apparently moving. The truth was that both had been checked already; partly, at least, because of the extravagant use of credit by the Stock Exchange itself.

"But the reverse movement is quite as certain to create equally mistaken views in the opposite direction, of which we have just had an excellent example. The 14 or 25 weeks of crumbling prices for stocks, accomplished so complete a reversal of ideas about the immediate financial future that, during the past week or so, Wall Street has largely devoted itself to predicting calamity.

Panic Not Realized.

"Instead of gradual reduction in Europe's purchases of American merchandise, such as pretty much every one predicted on Dec. 31, we were to have an outright embargo on orders for our staple export commodities. Europe itself was not to be left to the process of slow and arduous reconstruction. It was to go bankrupt; probably it was bankrupt already; witness the foreign exchange market.

"As for our own economic outlook there was absolutely no hope for the railways. The Conference Committee would certainly give them no chance, and, if they did, there was no future for them but willing insolvency.

"The unusual money stringency in New York may have been caused largely by the excesses of last year's stock market, but, at any rate, it pointed to an approaching 'panic.

"Now, except, perhaps for the persistence of the abnormal rates for time loans on Stock Exchange collateral, the simple and perfectly apparent fact is that nothing whatever has occurred to justify any different view of these matters from that which Wall Street entertained in the second week of November. There has been no ruthless embargo on European imports from American; even the imaginative story about cotton served no purpose, except to break the price and enable England to put in new orders at the lower level.

"Europe appears to be paying its current trade bills; the break in sterling to $3.18 was one evidence that it was paying them. Prophets of 'European bankruptcy' are still at liberty to prophesy; but they now have to take into account the returns of England's exports and imports in January, showing export of British products to have been more than double that of the previous January, or of the January before the war, and showing also an excess of imports less by $150,000,000 than in the same month of 1918.

Market Position Stronger.

"The noteworthy fact about our own Stock Exchange liquidation has been the composure, not to say gratification, with which it was received in serious-minded circles of finance and trade. None of that blind fright, that sense of being in the grasp of unknown and paralyzing forces, existed anywhere as it did in 1907, for instance. On the contrary, everyone understood why 'the industrials' had collapsed in price, and why their collapse was a benefit to the whole financial situation.

"Prophets of ultimate panic do not need to recant; the teaching of past economic history is that some time in the next decade, or half decade, we shall have to meet such an advent, and probably of very large proportions. But there is little, or no indication that anything of the sort is impending in the near future.

"In the matter of the railways there is still perplexity enough; but when the present status of the matter is contrasted with that of three or four months ago, one is at least tempted to wonder what would have been the course of the market then, if the things which have actually happened in the congressional conference had been happening then.

"What has actually been agreed upon by the conferees in the way of safeguarding the credit of the railways, would probably have been described as incredible by the majority of Wall Street people, even as lately as the adjournment of Congress in December. The problem of the companies on their return to private operation two weeks from now will be formidable. Some unpleasant surprises are possible, but agreeable surprises are also easily on the program; and that Wall Street may as well keep in mind, is that in recent weeks it has been 'discounting' about the worst that could befall the properties.

"From all this it does not in the least follow that all the precautions in the way of Stock Exchange liquidation were needless, and that the organized speculation of last autumn is now to be resumed. Nothing is more improbable; and if it were to be done, the responsible banking authorities would have to interfere again.

"The utterly abnormal condition of the money market and the Federal Reserve, remains as a problem yet to be effectively dealt with, and another raid on the credit fund by stock market speculators is hardly the way to solve it. But the recovery in stocks from the low level of exaggerated despondency, is as natural as the recovery of sterling from $3.18 to $3.46, almost within a week.

"Presently, both the stock market and foreign exchange market will have regained a footing where they can measure the real situation intelligently."

New York Curb Market.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—There has seldom been a time in recent trading when the Broad street curb market was so acutely unsettled and sustained so severe losses as it did in the past week. The outside market was flooded with offerings at times, and sales were made at intervals without much regard to price, the percentage of declines of many of the medium-priced issues being extremely large, and much greater than was indicated by the losses in points.

The greatest pressure was in the petroleum issues. Houston Oil fell from 110 to 90¼, but rallied to 100 on yesterday's recovery. Midwest Refining dropped from 155 to 140 and rallied to 150. The heaviest trading in this group was in General Asphalt, which sold down from 97½ to 78, followed by a rally to 85½. Simms Petroleum, sold down from 43¾ to 34¼, and rallied to 38, and White Oil yielded from 31½ to 26¼, with a rally to 29¼. Gilliland Oil dropped from 40 to 33. International Petroleum sold down from 60½ to 51½ and rallied to 57.

A feature of the market in industrials was the initial trading in General Electric rights at 5. The industrial stocks were also acutely unsettled, although not in the same degree as the petroleum issues. General Motors fell from 30 to 24¼ and Tobacco Products Exports broke from 22 to 12, followed by a rally to 18. United Retail Candy was traded in at 15 to 13. Republic Tire was specially affected by reports of a coming new stock issue. Columbia Emerald dropped from 13 to 8½ and rallied to 11½. Orpheum Circuit, one of the recent promotions, sold down from 31 to 28⅝. Armour Leather was fairly steady, ranging from 18 to 16¼. A sale of Philip Morris was made at 6.

Spicer Manufacturing was traded in at 29 to 28¼. Submarine Boat was fairly well held and after declining from 14 to 12 rallied to 12½. Carib Syndicate dropped from 34 to 25. The recovery which came in these stocks and in the oil issues in the late trading yesterday was in line with the display of strength on the Stock Exchange, just as the violent declines in the preceding part of the week had been.

Mining stocks acted in an orderly manner, although some of those issues yielded under liquidation. Rand sold at 38½ to 39½ and De Beers, after dropping from 39¾ to 37½, rallied to 39. Nipissing fell from 10¾ to 9¾ and rallied to 10.

Following is a list of the day's highest, lowest and closing prices for the most active stocks dealt in on the Broad street curb:

Silver Slumps in London.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—Silver slumped in price today to 82, due partly to firmer American exchange and the Government's proposal to reduce the silver content of British coins in future. The principal reason, however, is said to be a cessation in buying from China with the approach of the Chinese new year. This demand has recently kept the market free of supplies but they are now larger, with moderate offerings from the continent and from Peking.

It's Nice to Be a First String Pitcher, but It Doesn't Pay to Be Too High Strung

Oklahoma Basket Team Wins Close Tilt From Pikers

Sooners End Washington's Winning Streak at Nine, Scoring 26-23 Victory.

HURD CLOSELY GUARDED

As a Result the St. Louis Star Counted but Five Field Goals During the Game.

Washington University's hope of winning the Missopri Valley Conference basketball championship received a setback last night when the University of Oklahoma quintet defeated the Pikers in the second and final game of the series at Francis Gymnasium, 26 to 23. The score at the end of the first half was 15—13 in favor of Benny Owens' men.

Washington now has a record of nine victories against three defeats for the season, while Missouri is in first place with 12 straight conquests. The reverse last night shattered the Pikers' winning streak, which had reached nine in a row.

Last night's contest was not decided until the last two minutes of play. A minute and a half before the final whistle, White, the Sooners' right forward, who proved the outstanding star of the series, got the ball and shot a long field basket, giving his team a two-point margin. Ten seconds before the end of the contest, E. Waite put a free throw into the basket.

Pikers Lead in First Half.

The contest was a nip and tuck affair throughout, with the Oklahomans always in the lead except for a brief period in the first half, when Coach Rutherford's charges were ahead, 13—12. The Pikers to gain this margin had put on a great spurt, as the Sooners had been showing the way by a 12—6 count. This lead by Oklahoma was the largest of the contest.

Washington's play was below its usual standard. The players missed many easy baskets, while the passing was woefully weak. However, the Pikers scored 10 field goals against nine for the Oklahomans.

The inability of Russell to score on free throws proved damaging to the Pikers. Russell was able to count only three of nine attempts, while E. Waite of Oklahoma proved a real star by netting eight of 12.

Hurd Scores Once Only.

Harry Hurd, the star forward of the Pikers, was closely guarded by two Sooners throughout the second half and as a result he scored only one field goal. In the opening period, Hurd had counted four. There was no outstanding star for the locals. Marquard's floor work was high class.

Left Guard Kraehe of the Pikers was forced out of the game at the completion of the first half, because he had permitted four personal fouls. Hausladen played the position throughout the second half.

Millers to Play Screw Co. Today

Innisfails Are Scheduled to Oppose Scullins in Opener at Cardinal Field.

The Ben Millers, leaders in the St. Louis Soccer League, are scheduled to meet the Screw Co. team in the second game of today's double header at Cardinal Field. The Innisfails and Scullins fight it out in the opener. Play at 2 o'clock with Phil Kavanaugh as referee.

With only four more rounds of games remaining after today, the Innisfails will have to defeat the Scullins to remain in the running for the championship if the Millers defeat the Screw Co. If the Millers win and Innisfails lose, the men of Ratican will have a lead of five points.

Willie Foley, manager of the Innisfails, announced yesterday that he would use Jim Mason, a veteran player of the old St. Leos at center forward today. Mason will replace Danny Byrne.

Freak Ball Rule May Work Hardship on Innocent Hurler, Local Official Believes

Interpretation of Changes Adopted at Recent Major League Meetings Shows Interesting Possibilities—Balk Clause Still Foggy—Dead Ball Provision Pleases Players.

UMPIRES, players and managers are still delving into the mysteries of some of the rule changes agreed upon at the recent baseball session in Chicago. The verdict as to whether the alterations will result as intended is still withheld.

Weird and unguessed reactions are likely to result in some instances. For example there is the case of the rule barring the "freak" ball deliveries. According to one interpretation this clause may work a serious hardship on a perfectly innocent pitcher.

One major league official told the Post-Dispatch of a hypothetical case, as follows: Manufacturers sometimes overlook defective baseballs known as "sailers." Because the center of gravity of such balls does not coincide with the center of the sphere itself, the ball behaves peculiarly, when pitched—very much like the "freak" ball. According to the baseball man in question, "sailers" are plentiful among major league baseballs in the proportion of one to each dozen. He comments upon the situation as follows:

"If a pitcher gets the proper hold on this ball, it will take a peculiar hop. As this is the main principle of all freak deliveries, there is a possibility that the umpire will banish him from the contest for using a "shine ball" and he would be automatically suspended for 10 days according to the rule.

"This would be a hardship on the pitcher, as he has absolutely nothing to do with it. It would be a case of an innocent person being punished for someone else's error."

Rule on Doctoring Ball.

In order to keep other players from doctoring the ball for the pitcher, the Rules Committee inserted the following section 4 to rule 14:

"In event of the ball being intentionally discolored by any player, either by rubbing it with the soil, or by applying resin, paraffine, licorice, or any other foreign substance to it, or otherwise intentionally damaging or roughing the same with sand or emery paper or other substance, the umpire shall forthwith demand the return of that ball, and substitute for it another legal ball, and the offending player shall be disbarred from further participation in the game. If, however, the umpire cannot detect the violator of this rule and the ball is delivered to the bat by the pitcher, then the latter shall be at once removed from the game, and as an additional penalty shall be automatically suspended for a period of 10 days."

This new law is apt to keep the umpire on the jump all the time. He will have to be watching all players to see that they are not defacing the ball; also when a hurler protests after getting hold of a "sailer," he will have to closely examine the sphere to see that it has not been doctored. This would be the only way to keep from punishing the innocent party.

Balk Rule Still Foggy.

While there are many amendments to Rule 34, which covers the balk, Sec. 7 is a bit misleading. It reads as follows: "Making any motion to pitch while standing in his position without having the ball in his possession, or regardless to whether he makes any motion to pitch or not, if the pitcher takes a legal position on the rubber without the ball in his possession, or if he takes a position off the rubber and feints to deliver the ball to the bat."

It is the last part of the rule that puzzles. The word "feints" causes all the trouble. A local official when asked about this rule yesterday stated that he would have to study it thoroughly before he would be able to render an opinion.

Whether this rule means that a pitcher is not allowed to take a pitching position off the rubber, or whether he has to make a distinct motion to pitch, makes a great deal of difference. If he is not allowed to take a pitching position, this new law will do away entirely with the ancient "hidden ball" trick, which is pulled once or twice a season. It was turned by the Browns in a game against the Red Sox at Boston last summer and it saved Allen Sothoron from defeat.

Rule Designed to Block Intentional Pass Not Likely to Fulfill Its Mission

Despite the fact that a law was passed covering "intentional passing" of batters, this will not stop the flinger from walking a reputed slugger in the pinch. This rule reads "that it is illegal for the catcher to leave his natural position directly back of the plate."

But then consider the case of a pitchout, when the opposing side has a man on first base and it is figured that he will attempt to steal. On this play, the catcher remains in his regular position until the pitcher starts the ball. In the new intentional pass rule, there is nothing to prevent him from doing the same, when the purpose is to walk a slugger in the pinch.

So it is expected that the fans will still see their share of intentional passing during the 1920 campaign.

The penalty under the "intentional pass" rule when a catcher leaves his position prior to the time the ball leaves the pitcher's hand is that all runners on bases are allowed to advance one sack.

Here's a Pleasing Change.

One of the best rules adopted is that concerning the "dead ball." Rule 35 is as follows: (1) a dead ball is a ball delivered to the bat by the pitcher, not struck at by the batsman, that touches any part of the batsman's person or clothing while he is standing in his position, or (2) a wildly pitched ball which the batsman plainly makes an attempt to dodge to avoid being hit, but which ball accidentally hits his bat."

In previous campaigns the "dead ball" rule has worked a hardship on the batter. Many times a man at the plate had a wild pitcher in the hole, when in trying to dodge, the ball hit his bat. If it resulted in an easy roller that went fair, he was retired at first base, without being in a position to run. If the ball after hitting his bat went foul it was called a strike. Under the present rule the batter gets more of a chance.

From now on there will be no more argument as to which game of a doubleheader shall be considered the regular contest for that day, as the following Sec. 4 was added to Rule 22: "Whenever necessity demands that two games be played on one afternoon, the first game shall be the regularly scheduled game for that day."

Heretofore there have been many wrangles as to which was the regular contest when a twin bill was played.

Rule to Help Sluggers.

A law which should help "Babe" Ruth and other sluggers in adding to their home-run records, is the following: "Provided, that if a batsman, in the last half of the final inning of any game, hit a home run over the fence or into the stand, all runners on the bases at the time, as well as the batsman, shall be entitled to score, and, in such event, the final score of the game shall be the total number of runs made."

Under this law there is a chance for the home team to win a game, which until its half of the ninth was 0—0 by a 4—0 score. This could happen if a batter hit for a home run with the bases full.

In all other cases, the batter will be credited for the bases from which he drives home the winning run. For instance: If a man is on second with the winning run, the batter will be credited with a double, and so on.

Failure of the team captain to notify the umpire of a substitution hereafter will call for a fine of $25 instead of only $5, according to an amendment of Sec. 4, Rule 28.

Rule on Infield Fly.

The "infield fly" rule was altered and now reads as follows: (Sec. 8, Rule 51) "If, before two hands are out, while first and second or first, second and third bases are occupied, he hit a fair fly ball, other than a line drive, that can be handled by an infjelder. However, if the batter attempts to bunt under the same condition and an infield fly is the result, it shall not be called such by the umpire."

Several amendments were added to Rule 52, which covers the running of bases. In case of a run-up when two men are on the same base and tagged, the second man shall be called out, according to Sec. 3; Sec. 4 states that the failure of a preceding runner to touch a base (and who is declared out therefor) shall not effect the status of a succeeding runner, who touches each base in proper order.

Several amendments were offered by the Baseball Writers' Association and were adopted. One of these has to do with the "gift steal." Hereafter all stolen bases credited to a runner who is allowed to advance without any effort to stop him being made in the last half of the inning, when his run will have no effect on the result of the game, shall be eliminated.

In all the Rules Committee adopted 31 new amendments, which were approved by both major leagues.

Rule Changes Most Interesting Feature Of League Meetings

TO the average baseball fan the playing rule changes adopted at the recent major league meeting were by far the most important feature of the conclave—far more interesting that the arguments, mud-slinging and litigation of the magnates.

This feature has been minimized in most reports of the meeting and the Post-Dispatch prints herewith an interpretation of some of the most interesting of the changes.

Some of the new clauses are still foggy and probably will remain so until league umpires establish precedents or they are ruled on after appeal.

TURNER RETURNED VICTOR IN FOURTH SERIES OF POLICE REVOLVER SHOOT

Winners in the fourth series of eight targets, with a possible maximum of 800, in the winter handicap shoot of the Police Revolver Club, were Julius Turner, 774, first; James C. Espy, 769, second, and John J. Waddock, 764, third, all being handicap men. This series was concluded last week. Gold, silver and bronze medals will be awarded at the next meeting, when the last series in the shoot will begin.

The leaders for the entire series are Waddock, 3006, first; William F. Linne, 3004, second, and James C. Espy, 3001, third. The runnerup, William J. P. Rich, scratch, has not participated in the last four shoots on account of illness. He will be allowed to complete his scores when he recovers and will probably figure among the winners.

Billiken's Again Beaten by Valpo Basketball Team

St. Louis Varsity Quint Loses 25-15, After Leading in First Half.

VALPARAISO, Ind., Feb. 14.—After being outplayed in the first half, Valparaiso University's basket quintet came back strong in the second half, overcoming a five-point lead and winning tonight's game from St. Louis University, 25 to 15.

In the first half the Valparaiso team played poorly, their passing and shooting being inferior, while St. Louis showed better basket-ball than in their previous exhibition here. Fischer and Weber played brilliantly, being responsible for the visiting team's lead of 10-5 at the end of the half.

In the second half the Brown and Gold staged a sensational rally, Gilbert scoring two baskets on difficult shots and Bradley tossing a free throw, tying the score.

Both teams played desperately to obtain the lead, Bradley finally caging the ball for Valparaiso after a pretty bit of team play. Goheen scored two more for Valpo, after dribbling down the floor. Eggler caged the ball for the Missourians, giving them the opportunity to again tie the score.

Billikens Fight Desperately.

But goals by Haas, Gilbert, Goheen and two by Bradley robbed the visitors of any chance to win, despite their desperate playing in the last five minutes, which netted two points on a field goal by Eggler.

Capt. Fischer, Eggler and Weber played brilliantly for St. Louis.

This was the last of a two-game series between the teams, Valparaiso winning both contests, the first by a score of 35—18. The lineup.

Hunting Prairie Chickens

Sportsman Describes Thrilling Autumn Day Spent in the Wheat Fields of North Dakota.

By Edward C. Warner

THERE are banner days which stand out in every sportsman's memory; days which can be lived over and over again, with as much pleasure in the recollection as was derived from the happenings from which his memories spring. And these red-letter days held their charm not alone because of the amount of game secured; there are other factors of equal or greater importance.

Given a pleasant day and a companion who holds a proper regard for the unwritten laws of sportsmanship, and the size of the bag becomes a secondary consideration. All of which is but a prelude to this little story of a delightful day spent under conditions which measured up to the above requirements.

The time was September, 1919; the place a farm on the North Dakota prairies, and the object of our hunt that noble bird, the prairie chicken. On account of the pleasant conditions under which it is followed, chicken shooting has always held a high position in the average sportsman's regard. When to its ordinary attractions is added the peculiar allurement of the great prairies of the Northwest, the result is a combination difficult to surpass.

The writer will not attempt to describe an autumn day in Dakota; nor will he concede that any pen can do it justice. The invigorating tang in the air; the miles and miles of golden wheat shocks stretching away into the dim distance; the faint hum of a threshing machine far away toward the horizon—all these contribute to a condition of mind which bids one fairly shout in exultation at the sheer joy of living.

Good Fortune Unexpected.

As is often the case, our good fortune on the day which forms the subject of this narrative was quite unexpected. With his good wife acting as chauffeur of the car in which she had accompanied him on the 1100-mile trip from Chicago, the writer had spent a number of days in the company of his long-time friend, "Jim" Shea, scouting about the country in search of coveys reported in different localities. But as the North Dakota laws prohibit the use of a dog, our efforts had resulted in the main in nothing more tangible than a ravenous appetite at the end of the day's hike. We had about given up hope of finding the birds, and, in fact, were starting out on a certain morning without our guns. With his usual optimism, however, Jim had insisted that we go prepared for any contingency, and the guns were put in the car.

After the business in hand had been disposed of we decided to make one more effort to find the chickens. We had been informed that they had been seen frequently in the region of grass and brush on the writer's farm, but all our attempts to rout them out had thus far been unavailing. On this particular morning we were skirting the edge of this patch, when an old cock jumped up about 100 yards ahead of us. He must have been flushed from some other cause than our approach, as he headed straight in our direction. We crouched, and he came on until he looked almost as large as a turkey. When he was directly over my head I fired. Without so much as wavering he kept on his way and I gave him the other barrel, with no more apparent effect. I was dumfounded, and stood staring after him, wondering whether he was bewitched or whether I could have missed such an easy shot. Then suddenly, as he reached a point about midway of the patch he pitched, like a stone, into the long grass. Marking him down carefully, I walked to the spot and found him after a moment's search under a tuft of weeds.

Good Luck Continues.

Encouraged by our luck we proceeded on our way, and a few minutes later two more birds jumped at a distance of perhaps 150 yards, alighting in a stubble field about a half mile away. We hurried to the spot from which they had started up, thinking there might be more, but after 15 minutes of the most careful ranging about were forced to give up the idea of finding a covey. We had almost decided to go back to the car and return to town, but finally concluded to make one more effort, so we made our way to the place where the last bird came down. Never was a hunter's patience more abundantly rewarded. When we arrived within about 65 yards of the spot we had marked down, a bunch of not less than 40 chickens jumped up. They were fine, full-grown birds, and although too far away for a good shot, they presented such a tempting mark that I chanced a couple of shots and one of them dropped. The flock made a wide swing, and much to our delight, settled into the patch of grass and brush, not over 200 yards from where we stood. Instead of bunching, as we feared they might, they scattered out over a considerable territory, and we knew that we could flush them a few at a time.

Receive Call for Dinner.

We made for the patch in a hurry and had not traversed 25 yards of it when three birds flew up. We dropped all of them and were pressing on eagerly when an insistent honking came from the direction of the auto. This was a reminder that lunch time was approaching and as our "chauff" insisted on a rigid observance of meal-time schedules, we decided that the prudent course to defer to her wishes. So we our way to the car and hastened to the hotel, having concluded the heavy grass cover offered an tractive retreat for the chickens that they would probably be there on our return.

Resume Hostilities.

Two o'clock found us back at grass patch, prepared to resume tilities. With no dog to locate birds we knew that it would be essary to work the ground with tematic thoroughness, so we sta at one end of the tract, walking a few yards apart. Before we gone 20 paces a big cock jumped almost under Bill's feet. While was attending to him, two more up, offering easy targets to Jim me. This began to look prom and we proceeded on our way in spirits. A quarter of an hour elap however, without any more birds ing flushed.

By this time we had traveled length of the tract, but had co only a small section. Marking another portion we turned abou the direction from which we come. We had not walked 50 before a pair jumped within range and from ground over we had passed not 10 minutes be Jim and Bill dropped a bird and a moment later four more gave us heart failure by starting in different directions from under very noses. In the general conf we fumbled two, but aded two to bag.

We realized now that to passing them we must cover inch of territory. With their velous protective coloring they d the closest scrutiny and refused leave their cover until almost on. But we worked the ground thoroughly that few ascaped. and forth we ranged, all during glorious afternoon. And what afternoon it was! What thrills ours as the birds jumped, now of us, now behind us, and again most under our feet. There good shots, heartily applauded, inglorious misses, followed by of derision. Finally when we covered the patch not less than a dozen times, someone sugg that we had better count our bag. we laid them out and found that had just one less than our limit, fine plump birds.

Pleasant Close to Day.

The afternoon was now drawing a close, and as the car was wai for us close by we were glad to in and start on the homeward ney. At the hotel a most agre surprise awaited us in the form roast prairie chicken, prepared the birds brought in earlier in day. Like so many famished we attacked the savory fowls, ping only when the last tooth morsel had vanished.

Supper over, we lighted our and gathered before the blazing place, as is ever the hunters' to live over again the events of and other days. Presently the died down to a few smoldering bers, the conversation began to and a delicious drowsiness stole us. So, with many a stretch yadn, we bade each other good and retired to that sweet and dre less slumber which Mother Na ever holds in store for those seek their pleasures in her outdoors.

Why So Many Men Are Good Starters But Poor Finishers---

Lack Of Iron In The Blood Holds Them Back And They Fall Exhausted By the Wayside.

Physician Says You Must Have Plenty of Iron in Your Blood to Be Strong—Tells Why Organic Iron—Nuxated Iron—Helps Build Red Blood That Gives Men the Strength and Endurance to Climb the Road of Life With Courage and Power

"Weakened by the heavy drains upon the nerve force and physical strength, thousands are held back in life by lack of iron in the blood," says Dr. John J. Van Horne, formerly Medical Inspector and Clinical Physician on the Board of Health of New York City.

"Their thin, pale, watery blood has utterly lost the power to send energy and power through the body and as a result they are without the endurance to keep on — they are forced to drop back among the weaklings and failures—beaten because their blood is literally starving for health-giving iron. But when such men and women supply the right kind of iron to their blood a most surprising change often takes place. They gain physical poise and fitness, mental alertness and greater power to combat obstacles and withstand severe strains. To help build stronger, healthier men and women, better able physically to meet the problems of everyday life, I believe that physicians should, at every opportunity prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron — for, in my experience, it is one of the best tonic and red blood builders known to medical science."

If you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times per day, after meals, for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. Numbers of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the while have now astonishingly increased their strength and endurance simply by taking iron in the proper form.

LACK OF IRON IN THE BLOOD
THE ROAD OF LIFE

IS LACK OF IRON IN THE BLOOD HOLDING YOU BACK?

Life is like a mountain road. At the start the climbing is easy. But at the "Dreary Middle" when overwork and worry have sapped his energies, many a man falls down—his progress stopped by Lack of Iron in the Blood. Only by tremendous force can he release himself from such a set-back—only by building up the health and strength he has blindly allowed to slip away. Then it is he must fill his blood with iron. Nuxated Iron is the power behind strong, keen red-blooded men—a power that helps them on to Health, Success and Achievement.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is prescribed and recommended above, is not a secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists. Unlike the older inorganic iron products it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by Judge & Dolph Drug Co., Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Welpert Drug Co., Pauley's Drug Store, Enderle Drug Co., Johnson Bros. Drug Co. and Merker's 3 Stores, East St. Louis, and all other druggists.

Knockout in Mason's Record Makes Wilde Choice to Win Toledo's Second Title Bout

American Flyweight Was Forced to Quit, Two Years Ago, in Fight With Present Bantam Champion, While Briton Has Beaten at Least Two of Herman's Closest Rivals.

By John E. Wray.

TOLEDO will be the scene of another world's championship fight, the second week in March, one that for size of the contestants will be the last antithesis of the late lamented Willard-Dempsey affair. Frankie Mason of Fort Wayne and Jimmy Wilde of England represent the minutest integers in the professional fight world who are listed as championship factors.

Weighing only 108 pounds, both men could enter the ring scaling even less than this figure, if conditions demanded it. Their combined tonnage would about equal the average ring weight of Fred Fulton and would be about 35 pounds less than the figure Jess Willard scaled for his battle with Dempsey.

Nevertheless there is far more chance that, for rapid action, clever boxing, science and gool clean battling, the combat between the little fellows will utterly outshadow the clumsy exhibition of the behemoths of the ring.

Those who have the good fortune to witness this bout will be regaled with their first opportunity of seeing a boxer with an absolutely clean style, who stands for all that is good in the game—Wilde. America has one or two men who approach Wilde in boxing method; but they are so far the exception that a majority of boxing enthusiasts have only rarely come in contact with them.

Mason Himself a Marvel.

MASON is not to be belittled. He is clever and can put up a scientific, clean fight. But he has been known to lapse into the American tricks of the trade, which, while they might be condoned in a fight to a finish, are not tolerable in a limited boxing contest.

Unless all signs fail, Mason is due for a boxing lesson at the hands of his cleverer and harder-hitting foe. Mason is a game fellow and, like Wilde, takes them on, no matter what they weigh. He has escaped all misfortune in these efforts save on one occasion. In 1917 he undertook to give Champion Pete Herman about 10 pounds and beat him. But the referee stopped the bout because the Fort Wayne lad was all through.

Wilde, on the other hand, has fought featherweights and beaten them. He even knocked out a featherweight champion of England. He has met the best American bantamweights, conceding one of the hard hitters (Joe Lynch) some 12 pounds. He not only survived, but he gained the decision.

The American flyweight will have to be a superman to win over such a record as that owned by the atomic miracle from England.

Characteristic Americanism.

"THE soldier hung on gamely," wrote a ringside observer at an Eastern bout, unconsciously slapping the manly art of self-defense squarely on its august beezer.

The sooner the critics of the country cease to condone the offense of hanging on, a leniency which encourages fighters to practice it, the sooner boxing matches will cease to be ruined by wrestling and stalling. Under cover of the clinch, everything from conversation to conspiracy takes place.

Abolish Ringside Weight.

JIMMY WILDE has relented in the matter of demanding ringside weight of his opponents. At least, he will permit Frankie Mason to weigh in at 3 p. m. for their coming encounter.

There are many objections to the ringside weighing, chief among which is the abuse of the boxer's nervous system as well as his physique, at a moment when he needs all his stamina.

Weighing in 30 minutes before his bout with Wilde, here, Babe Asher was forced to get on the scales five times during the day. Asher was less worried than is usually the case with boxers making ringside weight, because he is normally below 116 pounds. Some fighters have had to take long runs or even Turkish bath sweats the day before or even on the day of the fight to protect their forfeits. Others have been forced to deny themselves drink and food on the very day of the contest.

This is a case for the S. P. C. A. and should be attended to at once. All clubs, promoters and state or city commissions should establish an ironclad rule prohibiting the ringside weigh-in.

The spectator as well as the boxer is the sufferer frequently. This happened in the case of Kid Regan, who, after making low weight for Pete Herman, went so far under the figure in his effort to make good that he entered the ring weak and out of form. He boxed a miserable match and was knocked out. But for that weight making, Regan might boast clean record today and might have given spectators a far better exhibition for their $3 investment.

There were seven wrestling bouts in classes ranging from 115-pounds to the unlimited weight, and the Middies took two by falls and three on decisions for aggressiveness. Both of the falls were in the big events Gates, Navy, throwing Rosenberg in the 175-pound class, while Wilke, Navy, threw Myers in the unlimited. The score by points was Navy 22, Pennsylvania 8.

In the gymnastic events Pennsylvania was hopelessly outclassed, and the count was Navy 46, Pennsylvania 8.

Navy won six out of seven swimming matches with University of Pittsburg. The score was 45 to 14.

Princeton Is Easy Winner.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Princeton University basketball team tonight defeated Catholic University, 34 to 10.

CHICAGO BEATS ILLINI; LEAD BIG TEN RIVALS

URBANA, Ill., Feb. 14.—Chicago practically clinched its hold on the top rung of the Big Ten conference basketball ladder, tonight, when the Maroons defeated Illinois, 23 to 21.

The game was one of the hardest fought ever witnessed on an Illinois court. The score at half time was a tie, 13 to 13.

Chicago forged ahead early in the second half, securing two free throws and three baskets before the Illinoisans made a point. The Illini pepped up and, with only seven minutes to play, added eight counters and fought desperately the last two minutes to secure two more points to tie the game, but their efforts were unsuccessful.

Vollmer, Chicago center, was star for his team. Felmley of Illinois, star forward, did not play his stellar game, owing to recent illness.

Welu Wins Tenpin Match.

F. J. Welu won the tenpin sweepstakes at the Washington bowling alleys, last night, with a total of 587 pins. Joe Lacing and Gene Kohaus, with 585, were tied for second position.

The Sunlights beat the Sorekeppers in the Hamilton-Brown League, 2569 to 2456. The best total for one game was 894, the Sunlights scoring that.

24 Brownies Now Signed for 1920; Infield Complete

Earl Smith and Van Gilder Latest to Come In—Team Goes South Feb. 24.

Two more Browns have signed their 1920 contracts, bringing the total number of tossers in line up to 24. The signatures announced last night by Business Manager Bob Quinn were those of outfielder Earl Smith and pitcher G. Van Gilder, who was obtained from the Tulsa club of the Western League. Van Gilder in one of his games with the Browns last season defeated the White Sox.

Quinn also announced that the local American Leaguers had all their infielders under contract. They are as follows: Sisler, Austin, Gedeon, Gerber, Schepner, Shovlin, Thompson, Mullen, Dudley, Robertson and Strong, a total of 11.

The Browns are scheduled to depart for the spring training camp at Taylor, Tex., the night of Feb. 24, a week from next Tuesday. The tossers living east of St. Louis will come here, while those now in California and Southern points will go direct to Taylor.

RICKEY RELEASES BROWN TO JOPLIN CLUB OF W. L.

Manager Branch Rickey of the Cardinals yesterday announced that he had released First Baseman Brown, who was recalled from the Mobile club of the Southern League to Joplin of the Western League. Brown tried out with the Knot-Holers last spring. He came from Jefferson Barracks.

Sioux City is after Bottomley, another first sacker, now on the locals' roster. There also is a chance that Polly McLarry will be released. However, Rickey will have three first sackers—Jack Fournier, Fritz Mollwitz and Joe Bockskopf, a local boy—at Brownsville.

It also was announced that Clarence Mueller, a local outfielder, would be taken South.

Notices were sent to all players yesterday to report here Feb. 28 or at Brownsville, Tex., March 1. A switch also was announced in the training plans. The first week will be spent at Brownsville and the entire squad will be taken to Dallas for the exhibition games the first Saturday and Sunday the club is in the South.

PITCHER SCOTT PERRY OF MACKS REINSTATED

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—Reinstatement of Scott Perry, pitcher of the Philadelphia Americans to good standing, extensions of the personal thanks of B. B. Johnson, president of the American League, and John Heydler, head of the National League, to August Herrmann, retiring chairman of the National Baseball Commission, with whom they were associated, and final arrangements for the turning over of Herrmann's office to the new chairman of the commission, when selected, completed the work of the baseball men here today.

The meeting was called at the suggestion of Herrmann.

The question of a successor to Herrmann, as head of the National Commission, was discussed after the meeting by Johnson and Heydler, but no action was taken.

MERRILL, MINNEAPOLIS, PRESIDENT OF I. B. A.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Feb. 14.—E. C. Merrill of Minneapolis was elected president of the International Bowling Association which is holding its annual tournament here. D. A. M'KENDREE WINS FROM SOUTHERN ILLINOIS FIVE

McKendree College captured a series of two games played with Southern Illinois Normal at Lebanon, Friday and Saturday nights. The first game was won by McKendree, 33 to 20, and the second, 22 to 21. In the first game McKendree completely outplayed its opponent, but in last night's game the Normal team played a fast game and had McKendree tied, 9 to 9, at the end of the first half.

McKendree has not lost a game this year and is considered as the best bet for the championship of the Little (19) Conference. Only five games remain to be played before the tournament at Rock Island, March 15, 16 and 17.

Memphis Buys Vance.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 14.—D. (Daisey) Vance of the pitching staff last season of the Sacramento Club in the Pacific Coast Baseball League, has been sold to the Memphis Club of the Southern League, according to announcement today.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 14.—Cornell defeated Yale in an intercollegiate Basketball League game here today, 25 to 23.

Murchison Sought For Local Games

Promoters Want New York A. C. Athlete to Run in Municipal Carnival.

Efforts will be made to have Loren Murchison, the former St. Louis sprint star, who is now running under the colors of the New York A. C., come here for the third annual Municipal Athletic carnival, which will be held at the Coliseum, March 27. This was announced yesterday, when the program for the meet was arranged.

If Murchison comes he will start in the 50-yard invitation race.

The program for the carnival calls for 15 track and field events, while the usual number of exhibitions also will be scheduled.

The track and field program is as follows: 50-yard dash invitation; 50-yard high school; 50-yard municipal championship; 440-yard municipal championship; Hess 880 for high schools; 880 municipal championship; 50-yard high hurdles, high school; high jump municipal championship.

Relay races—Junior shuttle; high schools, universities, turners active, Junior turners, commercial and municipal championship.

Entries for the meet will close at Room 330 Municipal Courts Building at noon of March 17. In order to be eligible an athlete must be a member of either the Municipal or Western Division A. A. U. associations. Memberships are 25 cents for each organization.

Dr. F. W. Ewerhardt, Fred Voss and Rodowe Abeken are in charge of the arrangements.

Hoovers Play Arcades.

The Hoovers and Arcades will meet in the first game of the Olympian Soccer League, formerly the Transcity, at Ranken Field today. The Corinthians and Star Tires play in the second.

SPORT SALAD BY L C Davis

Young Grimes.

"OLD Grimes is dead, that good old man—
We ne'er shall see him more;
He used to wear a long black coat
All buttoned down before."

Old Grimes' son, who likes his nip,
Whenever he's inclined,
Now wears a pocket in his hip
All buttoned up behind.

And in that pocket is a flask
Containing mountain dew,
That Grimes had taken from a cask
Marked: "1882."

Old Grimes is dead and we were sad
To think his race was run,
Until we found his spirit had
Descended to his son.

When Grimes' only son and heir
Came into his estate,
His friends dropped in from everywhere
To help him liquidate.

When Grimes' friends upon him call
In his palatial flat,
Kind words he has for one and all
And lets it go at that.

His neighbors he did not abuse,
Was sociable and gay;
But when they came to drink his booze
He sent them on their way.

Thus undisturbed by anxious cares
His peaceful moments ran
And everybody says he was
A tight young gentleman.

Stain Your Teeth

And See the Film Which Wrecks Them

All Statements Approved by High Dental Authorities

Stain your teeth, as your dentist does, with an iodine solution. You will see dark patches, probably. And those are film. There is more film which you don't see.

Film is that viscous coat which you feel with your tongue. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. The tooth brush does not end it. The ordinary tooth paste does not dissolve it. So much of it remains and may do a ceaseless damage.

There lies the cause of most tooth troubles. That is why so many brushed teeth discolor and decay. Tooth troubles are constantly increasing, and the reason lies in film.

Their Greatest Enemy

Film is what discolors—not the teeth. It is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. Thus night and day, while you feel that teeth are kept clean, that film may be doing ceaseless, fearful damage.

These facts have long been known. Dental science has for years sought a way to fight film. But periodic cleaning in the dentist's chair seemed the only real remover.

Now science has discovered an efficient film combatant—one for daily use. Able authorities have proved it by convincing tests. Leading dentists all over America are now urging its adoption.

Now the method is embodied in a dentifrice called Pepsodent—a modern, scientific tooth paste. Its use has spread until millions of teeth show its benefits. And a 10-Day Tube, for home test, is being sent to anyone who asks.

We Apply a Digestant

Pepsodent is based on pepsin, the digestant of albumin. The film is albuminous matter. The object of Pepsodent is to dissolve it, then to day by day combat it.

Pepsin long seemed impossible. It must be activated, and the usual agent is an acid harmful to the teeth. But science has found, after years of research, a harmless activating method. And now this efficient film combatant can be every day applied.

Quick, Visible Results

The results of Pepsodent are quick and apparent. You can see them in the mirror, you can feel them with your tongue.

Millions have already made this test. Now you owe it to yourself and yours. Compare the new way with the old ways. Judge between them by the visible results. Then say which method your home should employ.

This ten-day test is a pleasant lesson which one never can forget.

MRS. CATT URGES WOMEN TO JOIN POLITICAL PARTIES

Suffragists Cannot Carry on Struggle as Auxiliaries, She Tells 2000 Delegates at Ratification Banquet.

WARNS OF DANGER OF BEING TOO TIMID

Better Never Take Up Politics Than Be Five Years Behind, Leader for 30 Years Declares.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Feb. 14.—Elected permanent convention chairman of the congress of the League of Women Voters, meeting in connection with the last annual gathering of the national American Woman Suffrage Association, Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt today outlined policies of the new organization and declared women should affiliate with political parties.

Mrs. Catt's keynote address came at the conclusion of the first session of the new league, at which organization work was begun.

Today's meetings closed with a ratification celebration banquet tonight at which prominent suffrage workers addressed the 2000 delegates.

"There seems to be some misunderstanding regarding the League of Women Voters," Mrs. Catt declared. "There is evidently opposition, largely political.

"Persons interested in enrolling members in their political parties are making rather cutting criticisms. They think the league will keep women out of politics. That must not be. For 60 years we have waited for political parties to give us the vote. No state has given it until the political parties had consented.

"Are we going to continue to petition them as we always have done? If so, what was the use of getting the vote?

"The only way to get things is from the inside of the political parties. More and more the parties have become the agencies through which things have been accomplished.

Action of Governors Questioned.

"Why have the Governors in the West acted so independently of the women voters? We expected they would call special sessions immediately after the amendment had passed. The reason is this: That the women voters have been a sort of ladies' auxiliary. There has been no common body to exert an influence.

"Women must get into the parties. Without, we should continue to be auxiliaries. We've been 60 years urging men to confide in the abilities of women. We've got to convert them. Prove your capacities in the parties. You cannot carry the struggle on from the outside.

"You have a struggle ahead. There are inner circles in the parties where you will not be wanted, but it is just there that you must go. There is a danger, too, that you will be too timid, too conservative. If you are going to trail along five years behind the parties, it would be better that you never took up politics. Be five years ahead."

Delegates were brought to their feet with a cheer when Mrs. Catt was proposed for President by Mrs. Peter Oleson, of Minnesota. Mrs. Catt waved the suggestion aside with a smile.

"I say this in all seriousness. It is time we did honor to our living leaders," said Mrs. Oleson.

"Only a start was made on constitution of the league today. Affairs of the league, it was decided, would be in charge of 10 national directors elected for a one-year term. Seven directors would represent divisions of the country and three would be elected at large.

The board would elect a chairman, vice chairman and a secretary and also the treasurer of the League of Women voters, and would meet annually in each of the seven districts. A national manager also will be chosen "as a sufficient salary to get the best available talent." The manager's term of office would be determined by satisfactory service.

Executive Council Provided For.

An executive council was provided for, to be composed of the presidents of state auxiliaries and chairmen of standing committees.

Evidence of partisan activity was given repeatedly today. Four women, although declared out of order, rose to insist that the word "nonpartisan" be kept in sight and another delegate asked that "unpartisan" be used in the permanent name of the league, yet to be chosen.

Democratic adherents, especially delegates from Southern states, complained that the conventon had been packed with Republicans.

At the afternoon session the association came to the defense of Will Hays, chairman of the Republican National Committee, who has been attacked by anti-suffragists for aid rendered to the suffrage cause, and congratulated the Republican party "for having a chairman who is astute enough to recognize the certain trend of public affairs and to attempt to lead his party in step with the inevitable march of human progress."

Democratic women then introduced a resolution thanking Homer Cummings, Democratic National Chairman, for signal service for ratification, and it too was adopted by unanimous vote.

TWO DEPARTMENTS OF FOUNDRY PLANT DESTROYED BY FIRE

Loss From Blaze Starting Outside of Kilpatrick & Son Building Covered by Insurance.

The receiving and shipping room of the A. Kilpatrick & Son Foundry Co., Carrie and Bulwer avenues, was virtually destroyed by fire last night. It was erected a year ago at a cost of $50,000. The interior, containing pig iron and castings, burned, as were the walls which were frame on a steel skeleton. The building was 80x200 feet.

Fred Walters, a watchman, who turned in the first of two alarms at 7:45 p. m., said he first saw the fire on the outside of the building, and advanced the theory that a spark from a passing locomotive had started it. He said all the foundry fires had been estinguished at the cessation of work at 6 p. m.

President Kilpatrick said last night he could not as yet estimate the total loss, but that it was fully covered by insurance. The firm manufactures iron kettles chiefly.

WELLS TO TRY TO STOP ALL SMOKING ON STREET CARS

Receiver Says State Public Service Commission Ruling Gives Him That Authority.

An effort will be made to stop all smoking on street cars, whether or not the Board of Aldermen adheres to its intention to permit smoking on three rear seats when the weather permits windows to be open. Rolla Wells, receiver, stated this intention yesterday, and gave as his authority a recent Public Service Commission ruling permitting him to stop smoking.

A motion to reconsider an amendment permitting smoking in three rear seats in open-window weather was lost in the Board of Aldermen, Friday, by 22 to 6.

During the debate Alderman Hall said that smoking was not as unhealthy as "the paint, powder and perfume we men have to endure on street cars."

A second vote on a motion to refer back to committee brought defeat again by a vote of 22 to 6.

REPAIRS TO COURTHOUSE ASKED FOR BY JUDGES

Cleaning Inside and Out and Alterations to Jury Rooms Requested.

The Judges of the Circuit Court, at a general term meeting yesterday, decided to ask the city to do some spring housecleaning and repairs at the courthouse, on Broadway. They will ask that the exterior walls be sandblasted and that the interior woodwork and walls be painted.

The Judges also will ask that several jury rooms on the third floor be remodeled so as to improve their lighting and ventilation. They also want the city to fix a leak in the roof of the dome.

The exterior of the courthouse was last painted in the spring of 1904.

The Judges declined to adopt a rule requiring attorneys who have contingent fee contracts with clients in "poor person" damage suits to deposit security for costs. Each case of this character will be treated individually, it was announced. This is contrary to a ruling recently made by Federal Judge Faris in similar cases.

WILSON ASKED ABOUT SHIP SALE AGREEMENT

Senate Resolution Inquires As To Rumored Understanding With British.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 14.—Presi-Wilson was asked in a Senate resolution adopted late today what agreement, if any, he had made with British authorities regarding the disposition of the German ships offered for sale by the Shipping Board.

The resolution was presented by Senator Brandegee, Republican, Connecticut, who told the Senate he had heard on what he considered good authority that the President had entered into an undertsanding as to final disposition of all the German vessels which came into American possession during the war and after the armistice.

Substance of Resolution.

The Senate acted virtually without debate.

"I have not the knowledge in the sense of having seen any of the documents," said Senator Brandegee, "but I have the information from a friend who I consider reliable."

The resolution requested the President to inform the Senate "whether any and if so, what agreement or understanding exists between him and officials of Great Britain concerning disposition by the United States of America of the German ships which the Shipping Board is purposing to sell or which were acquired by the United States after termination of hostilities between the United States and the Central European Teutonic Powers."

Would Prevent Sale.

A resolution directing the Shipping Board not to sell former German steamships was introduced today by Representative Sabath, Democrat, Illinois.

The Secretary of the Treasury, with the Secretary of Commerce and the chairman of the Shipping Board would be authorized under the resolution to adopt rules and regulations for selling liquor on the ships outside the three-mile zone.

Marine Hearing Continues.

Before the Senate Commerce Committee the hearing on formulation of a permanent merchant marine policy continued with A. R. Smith, representing the American Protective Tariff League, on the stand. Foreign built ships should not be admitted to American registry, he said, and urged discrimination in favor of American craft in tariff, taxes and other ways.

"This is all the old rot that we used to hear years ago," interrupted Senator Nelson. War changes and the world industrial situation, the Senator asserted, had put a trade balance in favor of the United States. This made the argument illogical, he stated.

"I believe American shipping is entitled to the same protection other industries receive," Smith said, "and I don't beleve American ships can compete in the future with foreign-owned vessels any more than they did before the war."

BULK OF GABY DESLYS' ESTATE TO GIRLS' HOSPITAL

PARIS, Feb. 14.—The bulk of Gaby Deslys' fortune, estimated at more than a million francs, will be used to endow a hospital for young girls into which the $100,000 Villa Marseille is to be transformed, according to announcement of her family. The actress also remembered nearly all of her friends and servants with jewelry and other articles of value.

The funeral was this morning from her mother's home near the Bois de Boulogne, with services in a little church near by. The body will be interred at Marseilles. Hundreds of telegrams of condolence have been pouring in from friends in all parts of the world, many being from America. Several auto loads of flowers were received. The actress' last request was for a casket covered with flowers with her body robed in white.

FLAGS RECOGNIZED BY ALLIES

PARIS, Feb. 14.—The Minister of Marine, in a note issued yesterday, describes the flags of new states recognized by the allies. These are: Letvia, red, white and red horizontal stripes; Esthonia, blue, black and white horizontal stripes; Georgia, a crimson ground with a rectangle half black and half white in the upper corner; the Kingdom of Hedjaz, black, green and white horizontal stripes.

VOTES FOR WOMEN MAY FORCE EXTRA SESSION

Registration for Primary in August Impossible Under Present Election Laws.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 14.—Keen interest has been aroused among Missouri politicians by the growing probability that the Federal suffrage amendment giving women the vote will be ratified by a sufficient number of states before the August primary in Missouri, and by the fact that Gov. Gardner has under consideration the calling of a special session of the Legislature to amend the election laws, which will be necessary if approximately 300,000 women in St. Louis, Kansas City and St. Joseph are to be permitted to vote in the primary.

If the amendment is ratified before August women in the smaller cities and towns and in the rural districts will be able to vote, but those in the larger cities will not because of the law requiring registration of voters in the cities, and the fact that under the law there can be no registration before the primary.

Amendment Only Remedy.

It is admitted by politicians that the only certain way to remedy the condition is for the Governor to call the Legislature into session and for the Legislature to amend the registration law to provide for registration in the cities before the primary.

However, there is a movement under way to act through the courts if the Governor does not call the session, the proposal being to institute a suit in the Supreme Court in an effort to have the registration law declared unconstitutional on the ground that it favors one class of citizens over another, giving women and men in the rural districts the right to vote in the primary, while denying that right to the women and many thousands of men in the cities who have had no opportunity to register.

Would Avoid Suit.

While a number of lawyers, including Glendy B. Arnold, chairman of the Board of Election Commissioners in St. Louis, have expressed the opinion that such a suit would be successful, the disposition is to avoid it because if the law should be held unconstitutional the way would be opened for extensive election frauds in the larger cities, registration being a safeguard to prevent or at least minimize illegal voting.

It is expected that the Governor will be urged to convene the Legislature to make the changes required to permit all women who desire to vote in the primary to have the privilege. Candidates of both parties are studying conditions, individual candidates trying to decide whether they would reap an advantage if the women in the cities should vote and thus determine whether to join in urging the Governor to act.

Five States Needed.

Ratification by only five more States is required to make the suffrage amendment effective and reports from the women's organizations are that they feel certain they can induce the calling of special sessions of the Legislature in at least that many States and obtain ratification within two or three months.

If the amendment is ratified there seems to be no question that women will vote in the general election in November as there will be a registration of voters in all the large cities between the time of the primary and the election.

It is estimated that there are 200,000 women eligible to registration in St. Louis, 75,000 in Kansas City and 15,000 in St. Joseph. Women's organizations in these cities already have begun to interest themselves in the movement to obtain the vote for them in the primary, and the Governor's office is expecting communications from them asking that the extra session be called.

31 Have Ratified.

So far 31 States have ratified the amendment. They are:

Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky Maine, Massachusetts Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Rhode Island South Dakota, Texas, Utah, Pennsylvania, Oregon, Wisconsin and Wyoming.

The states from which the additional five ratifying votes must come are Alabama, Connecticut, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Maryland, Mississippi, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Vermont, Virginia, Washington and West Virginia.

Some of these states, several in the extreme South have refused to ratify, but it is the belief of politicians that the Democratic National committee, recalling that it was the votes of women in Western states which elected President Wilson in 1916, will bring influence to bear on the governors of enough states to complete ratification.

SON OF FORMER GOV. BLANCHARD ENDS LIFE IN MEMPHIS HOTEL

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 14.—The top of his head blown off by a bullet from a large-caliber rifle which he purchased Friday, the body of Dr. J. A. Blanchard of Shreveport, La., son of N. C. Blanchard, former Governor of Louisiana, was found in his room at Hotel Chisca this morning. Conditions in the room clearly indicated he had shot himself, but in a letter which he left there were mysterious hints of a big business deal and warning that if anything happened to him, no matter how it looked, the two men in the deal with him would be responsible and could explain. "They either are the two finest men I ever met or they are the most unmitigated scoundrels, and if they are the latter they would not stop at murder," the letter said. It was addressed to "Gov. N. C. Blanchard," at Corpus Christi, Tex.

After an investigation, the Coroner expressed the opinion that the wound was self-inflicted.

Dr. Blanchard was said to have been in poor health when he came here, and the letter to his father was said to indicate that the business transaction it referred to had been causing him worry.

FOUR ARRESTED FOR VIOLATING DRY LAW

Two Saloons Raided and Liquor Confiscated After Informer Buys Whiskey.

Steve Stavianopolous, proprietor of a saloon at 801 Market street; G. A. Thomas, proprietor of a saloon at 825 Market street, and the latter's bartender, Sam Sandos, were arrested yesterday in raid by federal prohibition enforcement officers after they had received information that whisky was being sold in both places.

Two full quart bottles of whisky were confiscated in Stavianopolous' place and four quart bottles in Thomas'. The three men were taken to jail.

The raids were made after an informer had been sent into each place and had bought drinks for which he paid with marked dollar bills. The money paid for the drinks was not found in the cash in either place when the agents entered.

Joseph Muich, proprietor of a barroom at 1800 South Third street, was arrested at noon when a federal agent called at his place and found a large quantity of wine and other liquors in a room in the rear of the saloon.

When the agent entered the place Muich told him he had no liquors and that he rented the rear room to a boarder. When he was told to open the room he said: "Well, I guess you've got it on me." Eight gallons of claret, six gallons of blackberry brandy, a five-gallon demijohn of wine and a keg containing seven gallons of wine were confiscated.

A warrant charging Henry Dietz, a German alien, with violating the prohibition laws in selling whisky to a revenue agent and an informer in his saloon at 3113 South Broadway, Friday night, was issued yesterday.

In addition to the prosecution against Dietz in the federal court for the sale of liquor it is expected the immigration authorities will investigate his case with a view to his possible deportation. The matter has been reported to the immigration office here.

PAPE'S DIAPEPSIN FOR INDIGESTION--IT'S GREAT!

The Moment It Reaches Your Stomach all Pain, Gases, Sourness, Acidity and Heartburn Vanish.

You don't want a slow remedy when your stomach is bad—or an uncertain one—or a harmful one—your stomach is too valuable; you mustn't injure it with drastic drugs.

When your meals don't fit and you feel uncomfortable, when you belch gases, acids or sour, undigested food. When you feel lumps of indigestion pain, heartburn or headache, from acidity, just eat a tablet of Pape's Diapepsin and the stomach distress is gone.

Millions of people know the magic of Pape's Diapepsin as an antacid. They know that indigestion and disordered stomach are so needless. The relief comes quickly, no disappointment! Pape Diapepsin tastes like candy and a box of this world-famous indigestion relief costs so little at drug stores. Pape's Diapepsin helps neutralize the stomach acids so you can eat without fear.

9-STORY BUILDING FOR CORNER 16TH AND WASHINGTON

D. R. Francis, Owner of Half of Site, Buys Other Half to Construct Quarters for Leather Company.

MORTGAGE FILED ON DRUG PLANT

New Projects in Industrial District in Northwest Part St. Louis Reported Under Way.

By Berry Moore.

The wide range of real estate activities in St. Louis is discernible in plans for buildings in the central business district and in the factory centers of the city, as well as in the demand for residential properties, including sites for homes and apartments.

Arrangements have been completed by David R. Francis, Ambassador to Russia, for the erection at the northeast corner of Washington avenue and Sixteenth street of a nine-story high type mercantile building, with full basement and attic, for the James Clark Leather Co., which will occupy it under a 15-year lease.

The site has a frontage on Washington avenue of 100 feet, by a depth on Sixteenth street of 132 feet 2 inches. It was owned equally by Ambassador Francis and the Charles Clark estate, the half interest of the Clark estate having been bought yesterday by Francis for $270,000.

Building to Cost $300,000.

The building will cost, it is estimated, approximately $300,000. The plans are being drawn by Preston J. Bradshaw, architect.

Negotiations for both the lease of the building and for the purchase of the site were conducted by Isaac T. Cook, manager of the Arcade and Wright buildings, and who has been a commanding figure in realty and financial circles in St. Louis for two decades. Walter G. Battle, secretary and treasurer of the Clark Leather Co., represented the firm in both transactions.

The building to be constructed for the leather company will be on a scale with the buildings of King-Brinsmade, the Brown Shoe Co., the Central Shoe Co., the Ely-Walker Dry Goods Co., Roberts, Johnson & Rand (International Shoe Co.), the Rosenthal-Sloan Millinery Co., and other imposing structures which grace upper Washington avenue.

Mortgage on Drug Plant.

A mortgage for $1,750,000 on the four buildings, together with the site, now being constructed in northwest St. Louis by the United Drug Co., has been filed by the Mercantile Trust Co., which is financing the building project.

According to J. B. Moberly, real estate loan officer of the trust company, the buildings, including the site, comprising 14 6-10 acres at King's highway and San Francisco avenue, will cost more than $3,000,000, and will constitute a magnificent example of their type. It is in the new industrial district of this part of the city, extending from King's highway to Goodfellow avenue, and which will include a vast array of other important industries, including notably the $5,000,000 plant under construction for the General Motors Co.

Both the United Drug Co. and the General Motors Co. were induced to erect major units in St. Louis as a result of the initiative of the Mercantile Trust Co. In the instance of the United Drug Co., Festus J. Wade, president of the Mercantile Trust Co., made several trips to Boston.

New Project Reported.

It is understood that arrangements have been made with the Mercantile Trust Co. for financing another extensive building project in St. Louis, but details as yet are not available.

According to F. L. Cornwell, its local counsel, the Famous Players-Lasky company will perfect its plans for construction of a skyscraper at the northwest corner of Seventh and Locust streets, as soon as a building permit is forthcoming for it. An option to purchase the site for $1,250,000 was obtained by Cornwell for the picture producing corporation a fortnight ago. The site is owned by the First National Bank.

The building, which is to rise above the Railway Exchange Building, diagonally opposite, has been conceived as an advertisement of the Famous Players-Lasky Co. The proposed structure will be adjacent to the quarters of the Mercantile Trust Co., which occupies the entire west half of this block, and the value of which will be enhanced immeasurably as a result of the new tide of pedestrian traffic incident to the new building project, which contemplates a combination theater and office building.

ENLARGED REALTY CAPACITY SHOWN BY RAPID SALES

Speedy Absorption of Subdivision Offerings in Various Parts of City Marks New Growth in Market.

MANY WORKERS TO COME TO ST. LOUIS

Tracts in West End and Near New Industrial District in Northwest Part of City Prove Especially Popular.

Enlarged capacity of the St. Louis realty market, is indicated by the rapidity with which subdivision holdings are being sold in all parts of the city, and even in St. Louis county. This is particularly true in the West End and in Northwest St. Louis.

Del-Mar, a new subdivision comprising what was formerly known as Delmar Garden and divided into 200 lots, has been absorbed with the exception of eighteen lots. This addition was placed on the market only three weeks ago by the Broadway Savings Trust Co., as agent for the owners, in connection with the Beck Realty Development Co. This is a record without parallel in St. Louis real estate history, according to veterans of the local real estae field. It is expected that today will mark the closing out of this subdivision.

The Del-Mar lots have been acquired for speculation as well as for buildings, the tract being well situated for apartment buildings for which it has been laid out. Construction of ten apartment houses is to be started without delay, according to Charles DeLarg, real estate officer of the Trust Co.

George Georges, president of the Standard Catering Co., was among the buyers of Del-Mar lots yesterday. He paid $19,000 for a site on which he will erect an apartment building at an estimated cost of $100,000. Another purchaser was D. E. and A. S. Caskill, who invested $32,000. Other purchasers were David Reckell, John Wescott, J. Kehler Carr and Lewis Bartfield.

Another Division Nearly Gone.

Homesites, at the northwest corner of Natural Bridge Road and Goodfellow avenue, a subdivision of 600 lots, has been sold to the extent of 580 lots. This tract was placed on sale only recently by the Olive Street Terrace Realty Co., of which Wheaton C. Ferris is president. It overlooks the new industrial district of which the United Drug and General Motors plants, promoted by the Mercantile Trust Co., will be the predominant feature from the west side of Goodfellow avenue.

General Motors Park at the southwest corner of Natural Bridge road and Goodfellow avenue, placed on the market only a week ago, is being absorbed with a rapidity rivaling that of Homesites on the opposite side of Natural Bridge road.

General Motors Park is subdivided into 200 lots and is owned by A. R. Schollmeyer, a former president of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange. It is being marketed by Thomas A. Knobloch and Harry E. Prettyman, subdivision experts, who say they have sold more than 500 lots in northwest St. Louis during the last four months. The tract occupies a highly commanding situation in connection with the new industrial district.

Prettyman, in discussing the local realty situation, and this section of the City in particular, was thoroughly optimistic as to the outlook.

Large Movement Beginning.

"A real estate movement of broad proportions is fast developing in St. Louis," said Prettyman who came here from Detroit where he conducted large subdivision operations.

"By spring the movement will be at its crest." We are receiving hundreds of inquiries from wage earners in industrial centers all over the country, who contemplate removing to St. Louis. The influx into St. Louis incident to the big plants to be launched in the Natural Bridge road district, will bring to St. Louis not less than 100,000 residents within the next two years.

"The people of St. Louis are not awake to its future. They do not realize the extent of the movement developing here. As the geographical center of the United States, St. Louis is destined to be its foremost interior city.

Bennett Home From Hot Springs.

Tom W. Bennett, president of the Mortgage Trust Co., has returned, after 10 days at Hot Springs, Ark.

The S. & L. Tire Co. of Chicago, has leased, through the George F. Bergfeld Real Estate Co., a store at 3332 Olive street.

NATIONAL REALTY BODY GOES TO KANSAS CITY

St. Louis Promises to Send Record-Breaking Delegation to Convention in June.

Kansas City will be host this year to the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges, the convention opening date being June 2. Col. H. R. Ennis, president of the Real Estate Board of that city, was in St. Louis last week and conferred with J. H. Farish, president of the local board, who suggested to James P. Blake, chairman of the convention committee, to call that body together on Thursday to hear plans being arranged by the Kansas City board for entertainment of the delegates. That board has several committees at work and promises the best convention ever held by the National Association.

Blake has announced his committee of 10 as follows: Barney Dickmann, John J. Dowling, Joseph M. Ebeling, James M. Franciscus, J. W. Hannauer, Robert D. Kaime, C. M. McDonald, James M. Rohan, A. R. Shollmeyer, J. Philo Young. Blake has assured the Kansas City board that St. Louis will send to the convention the largest delegation ever representing any city at any national convention, and hotel reservations have already been made to that end.

CHOUTEAU AVENUE SITE FOR INDUSTRIAL PLANT

As a site of an extensive plant the Lehman Machine Co. has bought 247x230 feet of ground on the south side of Chouteau avenue, 50 feet east of Grand avenue. It was acquired from the Tiffany heirs, represented by Will K. Roth.

The building, designed by Gustave P. Wuest, will be of monitor type construction, with concrete foundations, steel posts and girders. The exterior will be faced with terra cotta trimmings.

The Lehman company began business about 15 years ago, having occupied its present quarters, 606 South Broadway, for the past ten years.

Maryland Terrace HOMES For Sale

See these artistic, wonderful homes today. With each home goes a beautiful yard, plenty of room.

And your neighbors in Maryland Terrace have spacious yards, for every lot is 190 to 220 feet deep, facing wide boulevards.

There can never be any crowding or congestion in this 100-acre residence park.

Adjoining Washington University Campus, forever protected from any undesirable encroachments, Maryland Terrace with its wide drives, its deep lots, its wide lots, its deep building lines, holding the houses well back from the streets, with its 5000 shade trees, its stucco and brick residences intermingled — MARYLAND TERRACE offers you and your family the most inviting environment of any residence park in the city.

See Maryland Today

Buy one of these homes, or buy your homesite on which you can later build. Bring your family to this park and let them enjoy St. Louis' out-of-doors weather.

Every Maryland lot is advancing in price. Lots will advance $2500 to $3000 immediately, so scarce is this type of property in St. Louis and so great is the demand, and the demand on the part of well-to-do people for homesites is just starting. Where will St. Louis builds its homes.

Invest your surplus money here. Let St. Louis make money for you. Drive to Pennsylvania av., the west boundary of the Campus, and then west on either Maryland or Westmoreland Drives. University car direct to the property.

FARMS FOR SALE

FLORIDA

FLORIDA—We will build your home on productive farm land near Jacksonville at $10 per month. Write Jax Heights Co., Jacksonville, Fla. (59)

OWN your own orange grove in Fruitland Park, Florida's finest lake-jeweled highland section, way above sea level; a few dollars a month will buy it; plant peaches, a quick-money crop, with oranges, and the peaches may be made to pay not only for your land and orange grove but yield a profit besides. We can produce you a better orange grove for less money than anyone in the State and in Florida's greatest section; Fruitland Park is best, we can prove it. Write for a book of actual photographs, the interesting story of a Fruitland Park farm and why peaches may pay for it. Lake County Land Owners' Association, 62 Palm av., Fruitland Park, Lake County, Florida. (c99)

THE TRUTH ABOUT FLORIDA

Know what folks are doing in Florida. Why some succeed, others fail; about soil, crops, opportunities, pleasures; pitfalls to avoid; where to go, what to see; how to select land, etc. These and many other questions answered in the big Mid-Winter edition of Florida's great journal. Send 25c for three months' trial subscription, including this big feature number. Address THE FLORIDA GROWER, Tampa, Fla.

IS THIS YOUR IDEA OF FLORIDA?

A little place of land near the water, a boat, a garden, some strawberry plants and perhaps a few chickens; a vine-covered cottage among your own orange and grapefruit trees; fish and oysters in abundance; plenty of quail and game—a simple, natural, wholesome life in the open the year round—home, health and contentment. All this is within your reach at modest outlay in this beautiful land of sunshine and roses. We are on the gulf and a navigable river, also on the Dixie highway, and we are only two hours by auto jitney from Tampa and St. Petersburg, and only eight miles from Tarpon Springs. Here we have the freedom, comfort and economy of country life, yet are within easy access of the big cities and resort centers. Our community is new and prices have not gone sky-high; living expenses are moderate. Over 100 Northern families already here. They like it—perhaps you will. May we send complete information? BOARD OF TRADE, Box 534, New Port Richey, Fla.

BIG MONEY IN EARLY TABLE GRAPES
SMALL INVESTMENT—HEAVY YIELDS
HIGH PRICES—QUICK RETURNS.

At Santa Rosa, Florida, they are raising some of the finest Early Table Grapes in the world—big, rich, luscious grapes of exceptional flavor. They are ripe and ready for market before similar grapes raised in California, therefore, they command top notch prices. In 1919 the same kind of grapes sold for 20c per pound wholesale. It is conservatively estimated that a fully developed vineyard such as are grown at Santa Rosa will yield more than 8000 pounds of grapes per acre, which at 20c per pound amounts to $1600. These grapes begin to bear the second year and will last practically a lifetime. Demand unlimited. Prohibition will not affect this industry. No special skill or experience required. Grape failures very rare. Safest, most secure and profitable investment we know of.

Santa Rosa is an ideal place to live. Finest all-the-year-round climate in United States. Salt water on two sides. Sunstrokes unknown. Very healthful spot. Good, pure drinking water. Best soil in Florida. Two and three crops per year. Plenty of rainfall. Irrigation unnecessary. Good schools, churches, stores, hotel and northern people—no negroes. Superb boating, bathing, fishing and hunting. Lumber at wholesale prices. Land prices still low and good 10-acre tracts available for those who act quick. Beautiful illustrated literature, maps, etc., sent free.

Also 40-acre tracts and up for General Farming, Stock Raising, etc., and Beautiful Winter Home Lots with Water Frontage. Address Santa Rosa Plantation Co., 1067, 537 S. Dearborn st., Chicago. (c99)

8000 ACRES
Southeast Missouri Drainage Lands
Pemiscott County and Dunklin County

All cutover cypress and tupelo gum lands, black sandy loam soil; no better corn or wheat lands in the United States; equally good for all other crops, such as clover, alfalfa, etc.

All in the Little River drainage district; well drained and good location to towns and markets.

No money needed to buy these lands to speak of; I am offering it in any size tracts from 40 acres up at $5 per acre cash payment, the balance on long time.

Here is an opportunity for every man whose means are limited to purchase the best soil that it is possible to find on terms so easy that he can afford to buy this land. It will make you independent in a very few years' time when in cultivation. By all means you should see this land without delay, or some of our improved lands in this section of the State.

If you are interested in the above lands write me just when you can come and look it over. Any further information will be mailed on request.

BUSINESS CHANCES

TEXAS AMALAGAMATED, 1000 shares or less, at $1 per share. Box D-90, P.-D.

OIL STOCKS ARE SPECULATIVE.
And while they offer large returns, do not speculate unless you can afford to take a loss. The recent discovered oil fields are bringing wealth to a great many people. Profit by first-hand information. Many millions will be made, as this year promises to be the biggest in the history of the petroleum industry. If you are holding oil stocks in companies operating in the Mid-Continent, Texas and Burkburnett fields, or interested, you should read the Oil Press and get the real facts; each issue brimful of valuable data and interesting news about the oil industry, and the recent successes. More than 200,000 readers a month. Thousands have made money by its advice. A late issue, together with the "Markets," containing quotations on listed and unlisted oil stocks and colored map of the Kansas and Oklahoma oil fields, free on request. Address Oil Press, 1505 Republic Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

THE NEW BAKE-RITE "CHAIN STORE" SYSTEM BAKERY FOR ST. LOUIS.
We offer you the opportunity, if you act now, to go into business for yourself, and to own one or more of this famous nation-wide chain of quality—sanitary bakeries—the best of the new method systems and the only permanent one—a clean, substantial, direct-to-the-consumer, staple, every-day line netting a profit of as high as 200 per cent annually in many places. The equipment costs from $3850 to $5000. Write for full information. N. B.—If you have a good store location, notify us at once. Bake-Rite Corporation, Main Office, 6th floor, City Hall Square Bldg., Chicago. East office, 6th floor, Grand Central Palace, New York.

"TOO LATE HAVE I KNOWN THEE"
—Cardinal Newman.

To the hardy minded come the inspirations to do and dare. There is nothing mysterious about the huge gains realized by the doers. Such were Rockefeller, Frick, Schwab, Morgan and Hill. An opportunity to invest, to develop, to create beckoned these men. They profited. But they organized. Think you their biographies would not disclose discouragements overcome by persistent effort, obstacles surmounted by ingenuity, or handicaps offset by resourcefulness? You can obtain a measure of the same success. Our Government does not beg for, but it encourages oil production.

Yes, we have worked hard the past year; we feel we have chosen and chosen wisely. In Louisiana thousands of acres. Yet other thousands in Texas, and in New Mexico, the super field, hundreds of thousands. All geolized and favored by 20 scientists; geolized and favored by twenty scientists; all in our very own control, and each are fraught with the same possibilities that gave Sarah Rector a seventeen-year-old girl a royalty of $35,000 monthly; Henry Page, a railroad brakeman $100,000 monthly, a Michigan printer a $100,000 clearance on a $200 investment. Yes, eight and one-half million dollars of net earnings by one oil corporation in eleven months.

But much may be said. Much more truth. For, "an ill-won penny will cast down a pound."

The first of this shall go to the general public—not that our altruism is the more in prospect, but its a prime feature of a big plan. Briefly, it is the adoption of unionism. We know the power of "the butcher, the baker the candlestick maker." We have aplenty for the big ones, and they are keen for it. They respect our experience of thirty years in oil production.

The geology of the Brewster, Terrell-Crockett counties of Texas indicating the related cross-flexures to those of New Mexico and to Old Mexico make apparent the wisdom of early selections midst some several hundred derrick rigs here. These may be had just now in any small tracts or large at this starting "come-in" in Brewster county, at worthy prices and at terms within reach. And bear in mind, with proper documentary evidence of lessorship.

There was once a wail of regret,
"And I was afraid, and went and hid thy talent in the earth; lo, there thou hast that is thine."

Ask us for a succinct statement of the oil industry. Box D-66, Post-Dispatch.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

MRS. T. A. JOHNSON.—It is illegal to give such information.

MRS. M. B.—The 50c piece dated 1827 is worth from 50c to 55c.

C. GERGEN.—It is impossible to alter the natural taste and smell of things.

A WITNESS.—See the Clerk of the Circuit Court, about your witness fees.

O. B.—You can get busines addresses out of the city directory and the telephone book.

MRS. AVRIE.—If your neighbors' chickens destroy your garden report matter to the police.

COUPONS.—Any store that handles the goods would be able to tell you about the coupons.

I. O. U.—Yes, anyone is allowed to attend a court hearing. They are held every day in the Municipal Courts Building.

C. J. S.—If you want a position apply to the railroad officials. The general office of the Terminal Railroad is in the Terminal Station.

JANE WRIGHT.—If you know of people who are keeping a rooming house without paying a license, tell the License Collector at the City Hall.

CURLY.—If you would get a position as apprentice in a sign shop you could learn the trade. There are no sign painting schools in St. Louis.

P. D. Q.—The flower girl stands to the left and a little behind the bridal party at the altar. You can have as many bridesmaids as you care to.

R. L. S.—The cost of drilling an oil well varies. It may cost as much as $50,000. If your trade dollar is a proof coin of the year 1877 it is worth 75c.

C. F.—If they own the land severally (that is, individually) C can tear his room off the house. If they own it jointly or as tenants in common he cannot.

MR. O. E.—If you know the city to which he has gone you might advertise in the papers. Also write to the Chief of Police or the Postmaster of the town.

A CONSTANT READER.—We do not know the address of the clinic in Amsterdam. Perhaps if you will address a letter to Amsterdam it will reach its destination.

W. S. P. L.—We have never heard the word before. It is probably a slang word of their own makeup. If you do not want your little boy to use it, forbid him to do so.

C. A. H.—If you did not have a divorce from your first husband you were not legally married to your second and third husbands. You cannot share in the third man's property.

A MASON.—The election for Mayor does not come at the same time as the presidential election. That for Sheriff is at the same time. The primaries are held in August.

A WIDOW.—Write to the Commissioner of General Land Office, Interior Department, Washington, D. C., in regard to the homestead rights of a widow of a Civil War soldier.

VALHALLA.—There is no law governing the conditions, and he can sell the lot to a desirable person unless he agreed at the time he purchased it, to sell only to the association.

A READER.—The directors of the company will necessarily advise you of the disposal of the property, and if the settlement is not satisfactory you can go into the courts with the matter.

D. A. B.—The guardian will probably receive 5 per cent of the amount distributed when the minor becomes of age. The sum should have been invested so as to obtain an interest return.

A. F.—Piano tuning must be studied and cannot be picked up satisfactorily. You can probably get books on the subject at the Public Library. You do not need a license for that kind of work.

ANXIOUS.—If we understand your question correctly, you can enter college in any state, with a correspondence high school course, and study law. You will probably have to take an entrance examination.

PERPLEXED.—A common law marriage is legal and the woman always uses her husband's name. So if she is going to be remarried she should ues her deceased husband's name when signing the marriage license.

IN NEED.—The attorney's fee would depend upon the amount of work he had to do as well as on the value of the ring. If you cannot afford a lawyer ask the Legal Aid Bureau, Municipal Courts Building, to help you.

A READER.—At a morning church wedding the groom should wear formal morning dress. Dark cutaway coat, light trousers, etc. Georgette would probably be more suitable for the bridesmaid. The groom pays for the flowers.

EX-DOUGHBOY.—She can come to the United States. You do not have to go and get her. She must either bring $200 with her or you must agree to marry her as soon as she is admitted. Ask the Red Cross to help you to arrange the matter.

D. D. D.—When a man is found killed and there is no evidence, the Coroner's jury gives an open verdict. If they are holding some suspects they are held to grand jury. If the suspects are proved innocent the verdict is an acquittal. No, a post mortem examination is not made on all bodies taken to the morgue.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(The answers given under this heading are prepared by a physician of standing, who for ethical reasons does not permit the use of his name, but who is willing to make this contribution to public health.)

GRACE X.—If you will send in a stamped addressed envelope we will mail you the answer to your question.

J. D. S.—Persons vary in the length of sleep required. Eight hours a night is a good average. Eleven would do no harm.

ANXIOUS.—Write to J. E. Bauman, secretary of the Ohio State Board of Health, Columbus, O., in regard to the sanitarium you speak of.

PAUL KING.—The Althenheim on Jefferson and Dayton, and the Little Sisters of the Poor are two old folks homes that charge a small fee for admission.

H. M. S.—Your face becomes shiny because the glands are very active and make it oily. Bathing with 50-per-cent alcohol, or sponging with it might help keep down the surface oil. You can do nothing to correct the other condition you describe.

A POST-DISPATCH READER.—Enuresis does not affect your health or growth. Take the following capsule, morning, noon and night, and an additional one at bedtime if necessary: Extract rhus aromatica, 2 grains; extract nux vomicae, ¼ grain to each capsule. Refrain from taking any fluid after 6 p. m.

F. T.—If your hair is falling out brush it briskly every night, massage thoroughly and rub in vaseline. For blackheads, pimples and a sallow complexion, steam the face over boiling water, covering the head with a towel. After that massage thoroughly and rub in a good quality cold cream. Your complexion and skin lesions, no doubt, reflect a body out of order. Flush the bowels, take plenty of outdoor exercise and get plenty of sleep. Eat only plain, wholesome foods.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my dear son, Fred Jordan, who departed this life Feb. 19, 1919. Sadly missed by his LOVING MOTHER.

In sad and loving memory of Addie Emde, who departed this life Feb. 14, 1916. Sadly missed by GRANDMA, AUNT, UNCLE AND COUSIN.

In sad but loving memory of our hero, son and brother, Thomas Riley Berkley, who departed this life two years ago, Feb. 16, 1918. Sadly missed by PARENTS, SISTERS AND BROTHER.

In loving memory of Florence Novine Callahan, who died Feb. 17, 1919. Anniversary mass at St. Vincent's Church, Tuesday, at 8 o'clock. Month's mind mass for Brother Francis Callahan, S. M., Thursday, at St. Vincent's Church at 8 o'clock.

In loving remembrance of my dear husband and father, Louis Mehrhoff, who entered into rest Feb. 17, 1915:
Rest in peace, thy cares are ended;
Rest in peace, thy work is done.
Thou art gone where those who loved you
Soon are coming, one by one.
Sadly missed by
WIFE AND CHILDREN.

In loving memory of Mary Catherine Shaw, who departed this life one year ago, Feb. 15, 1919.
One year has passed, our hearts still sore,
As time goes on we miss you more;
Your loving smile, your loving face,
None can fill your vacant place.
Sadly missed by
HUSBAND, JOHN SHAW, AND DAUGHTER, ESTELLA.

In loving memory of Elsie Leonard, who departed this life one year ago, Feb. 13, 1919.
One year has passed; our hearts still sore;
As time goes on we miss you more.
Your loving smile, your loving face—
None can fill your vacant place.
Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHER. (c)

In memory of Lieut. Robert C. Clifford, who died one year ago, Feb. 15, 1919, in France.
At rest in peace—
An American soldier true,
Buried beneath the Red, White and Blue,
Although far away his remains are laid,
From me his memory shall never fade.
A FRIEND.

In loving memory of our beloved baby, Dorothy L. Buehrer, who died one year ago Feb. 13, 1919, at the age of 6 months.
Another little lamb has gone
To dwell with Him who gave;
Another little darling babe
Is sheltered in a grave.
Gone but not forgotten.
Sadly missed by
ALL WHO LOVED HER. (c)

In fondest memory of my dear godfather, who departed this life Feb. 16, 1918. May the name of Thomas R. Berkley and memories of his beautiful young life be engraved upon the hearts of those who loved him.
Two years ago since you left us;
How we miss you, Thomas dear;
You are gone but those who love you
Soon are coming one by one.
Your godchild. BESS HOLZWARTH. (c)

IN MEMORIAM.

In memory of our dear father, John A. Sundmacher, who died one year ago, Feb. 14, 1919. Gone but not forgotten. Sadly missed by his children and grandchildren. (c)

In loving memory of our dear daughter and wife, mother and sister, Louisa Ryan (nee Ehredt), who departed this life Feb. 16, 1918:
Two years have passed since that sad day,
One whom we loved has passed away.
God took her home—it was His will—
But in our hearts we love her still.
Sadly missed by Chas. J. Ehredt, father; Joseph Ryan, husband; Helen Ryan, daughter; Anna Ehredt, sister; Mrs. Marie McKay, sister; Mrs. Margaret Todd, sister; Chas. F. J. Ehredt Jr., brother; sisters-in-law and brothers-in-law.

In loving memory of our darling son, Arthur Pahl, who departed this life two years ago, Feb. 14, 1918.
February again is here, to me it is the saddest of the year.
O, how we miss you, Arthur, dear:
Surrounded by friends we are lonesome,
In the midst of our pleasure we are sad;
A smile on our faces, still a heartache,
Aching and longing for you.
Home is not what it used to be, since you are not there, dear Arthur.
Sadly missed by
FATHER AND MOTHER AND MANY FRIENDS.

In memory of my darling wife, Minnie Stahl, who departed this life one year ago, Feb. 17, 1919:
In her lonely grave she's sleeping,
As the shadows onward fall,
And her lonely heart is weeping;
No more her presence I can call.
Do not ask us if we miss her;
Oh, there's such a vacant place.
Oft I think I hear her footsteps
Or I see her smiling face.
Not gone from memory, not gone from love,
But gone to a fatherly home above.
Sadly missed by husband and relatives.
JOHN STAHL.

In loving memory of our dear son, Edward Jasinski, who departed this life two years ago, Feb. 16, 1918:
Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Tears in silence often flow;
Love shall always keep you near us,
Though you died two years ago.
Never shall you be forgotten,
Never from our memory fade;
Loving hearts will always linger
Around the grave where you are laid.
Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER, SISTER AND BROTHERS. JASINSKI FAMILY. (c)

In loving remembrance of our dear mother, Mrs. Anna Senka, who died three years ago, Feb. 14, 1917.
Sleep on, sleep on, dear mother;
Oh, how sweet to breathe your name.
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
We often sit and think of you
When we are all alone,
For memory is the only thing
That grief can call its own.
Sadly missed by
HER CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

In loving memory of John Bardol, who died Feb. 14, 1918:
Two years have gone since you passed away.
We saw you suffer, heard your sighs,
With aching hearts and weeping eyes;
We saw you sinking hour by hour,
Yet could not stay Death's awful power,
But now he calmly sleeps at last,
All pains, all aches, all suffering past.
Sadly missed by son, John Bardol Jr., and sister, Minnie Tesson (nee Bardol).

In loving memory of our darling baby, Freddy Butler, whom the Lord called home one year ago, Feb. 12, 1919, aged 2 years 6 months:
A bud the great Gardener gave us,
A pure and loving child
He gave to our keeping,
To cherish undefiled.
Just as the bud was opened
To the glory of the day,
Down came our Heavenly Father
And took our darling away.
Sadly missed by
PARENTS AND BROTHER.

In memory of my beloved daughter, Malinda Schaumann and beloved mother of Viola Schaller and sister of Christ Jr., Theodore and George Schaumann, who departed Feb. 15, 1919:
A precious one from us has gone,
A voice we loved is stilled.
A place is vacant in our home,
Which never can be filled.
A loving daughter, true and kind,
No friend like her on earth we'll find.
God called her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she lingers still.
By all of us she did her best;
May God grant her eternal rest.
Sadly missed by mother, father, daughter, brothers, sweetheart and many friends.

In loving memory of our dear father, W. G. Willard, who departed this life one year ago, Feb. 12, 1919.
In the graveyard softly sleeping,
Where the flowers gently wave,
Lies the one we loved so dearly
In his silent, lonely grave.
Peaceful be your sleep, dear father;
It is sweet to breathe your name;
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we do the same.
Just one year ago you left us,
How we miss you, father, dear,
And remember all your kindness
As we drop a silent tear.
You shall never be forgotten,
Never from our memory fade;
Loving hearts will always linger
Round the grave where you are laid.
Sadly missed by
WIFE, CHILDREN AND GRANDCHILDREN.

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, Corp. Clarence Engelbach, 138th Missouri Infantry, Thirty-fifth Division, Supply Company, who died in France Feb. 12, 1918, where he bravely died for his country.
Dearest Clarence, how we miss you,
Days of sadness come over us.
Tears of silence often flow.
Our memories will be always lingering in No Man's Land
Where you are laid in a soldier's grave;
But we will meet again some day in God's land
And all will be sunshine when the clouds are rolled away.
Sadly missed by
FATHER, MOTHER, BROTHERS AND SISTERS.

In sad memory of our darling mother, Anna Zimmermann, who departed this life one year ago, Feb. 16, 1919:
We have lost our darling mother;
She has bid us all adieu;
She has gone to live in heaven,
A place is vacant in our home.
Oh, that dear one, how we miss her,
Oh, how hard to give her up.
God took her home, it was His will,
But in our hearts she lingers still.
Friends may think the wound is healed,
Little knowing of the silent tear.
Lonely hearts will ever linger
Where our darling mother sleeps.
Sleep in Jesus, peaceful rest,
Whose waking is supremely blest.
No fear, no woe shall dim that hour,
That manifests the Savior's power.
Sadly missed by father, husband, daughters, sisters, brothers, grandchildren and relatives.

ATTENTION, BELT USERS

We bought the entire stock of "Wyoga" rubber belting from the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., as they have discontinued making that brand. Goodyear's "Wyoga" is known all over the United States.

A few sizes we received:
850 feet of 8-inch, 4-ply.
1000 feet of 9-inch, 4-ply.
600 feet of 10-inch, 4-ply.
1500 feet of 11-inch, 4-ply.
400 feet of 6-inch, 4-ply.
1200 feet of 8-inch, 5-ply.
500 feet of 10-inch, 5-ply.
750 feet of 6-inch, 6-ply.
3000 feet of 8-inch, 6-ply.
500 feet of 10-inch, 6-ply.
3200 feet of 12-inch, 6-ply.
And more than 50,000 feet of other widths and plies from 1-inch to 17-inch.

Our prices are much lower than even cheap belting, and remember, you are getting "Wyoga." We invite inquiries from all interested.

Packard USED VEHICLE DEPARTMENT

TRUCK SECTION

A short time ago we talked about "Quality" in Used Motor Trucks.

The Result

We sold nearly every rebuilt truck we had on hand.

Why?

Because the experienced truck man knew that we had told the truth, and if he was in the market for a truck he came in, looked at our line and in most cases bought one of our fine Rebuilt Trucks.

Today we have only one (1) of those Rebuilt jobs left; it is a 3½-ton Packard, worm drive, guaranteed like a new truck, for $3250.

We also have a few other makes, as follows:

6-ton Sauer.
5-ton Denby.
3½-ton Federal.
2-ton Dorris.
1-ton Int. Harvester.
¾-ton Commerce.

Most of these trucks have bodies on them and are in first-class running condition.

PASSENGER CAR SECTION

No one's fault but his own.

Salesman—

"Sorry, sir, but we sold that car yesterday."

Customer—

"Too bad, I wanted that car."

The above is an almost every day's conversation between a prospective customer and one of our Used Car salesmen.

Don't let the "other fellow" beat you to it and get the car that you had made up your mind to purchase.

He made up his mind and acted quickly. Why don't you? No finer line of high-grade Used Cars have ever been offered for sale in this city.

Remember
"A High-Grade Car Is ALWAYS a High-Grade Car."

Come in tomorrow and look over our line and pick out the car you like, take a ride in it, then place a deposit and we will hold it for you, free of storage.

A partial list of our cars: Packard Twin-Six Cars, 7-Passenger, from $1500 up to $4250—every one in fine appearance and in first-class mechanical condition; also a few other beautiful cars as follows:

Dealers!

Did you ever hear of anyone losing money selling "seconds"?

No, and you never will. Seconds are bought and sold for cash. They actually sell themselves.

You cannot fail to make large profits if you buy from us.

Nearly all live tire dealers are buying their seconds and cut-rate "Firsts" from us.

Write today for our price list, as tire prices are predicted to advance very shortly.

PLAY the "Short Bank Roll" against the "long green." You might have "short-comings," but oh, boy, on that "long-goings" if you are "short on the bank roll." We are long on clothes-goings. Dress up. Look the part. Buy our uncalled-for clothes; suit that will "dress you up." There is no time in life that you get so "down and out" that you can't get into the "Land of Beginning Again." "Start anew:" we "are calling you" with our 5 large stores, 120 feet filled with "bargains galore." If we don't get your money for clothes here, you don't spend your "dough" right. What you "save when you spend your dough is your profit." "Install" the "Abrams System" of clothes buying, and save. For 10 years we have saved thousands of dollars for the clothes-buying public. Be "awake" to the "fact," your personal appearance "must count." We have in "store" for you high-class suits; you can afford to wear two or three suits a season for the price of the customary one by purchasing our uncalled-for garments from our cleaning department; garments are tailor made and from the best manufacturers, $10 to $20. Can you wear 34, 36, 38, 43, 40, 46 to 50 sizes? Also English and plain models. Vests, 50c. Pants, $2 to $3.95. Coats, $3 to $6.50. Uncalled for Stetson hats, 95c. Open Sundays until 6 p. m. Abrams Cleaners and Dyers, 926 S. Vandeventer, near Chouteau. Mail orders filled. Both phones. Liberty Bonds accepted. (c)

ARMY SALVAGE WAREHOUSE CO.,
The Largest House of Its Kind on Earth.
Greenville, S. C.

WE "claim" that the "upkeep" is what "keeps" a man "down." Spend your money here. We give 100 per cent for your "dollar." We can "keep down" your "upkeep" 20 to 40 per cent. Just released 150 new spring sample suits. That certainly means something to you. Out of high-rent district, no expensive habits, no "heavy overhead expenses," but solid values. "More than your money's worth" on high-class suits and overcoats. "Adopt our close-to-the-shore profit system." "What the Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop means to you." These fine garments are made by the manufacturers for display or modeling purposes for traveling salesmen; they are made much better than the regular goods; after they show them off we buy them at a big discount; we give you the benefit of our immense buying capacity, this policy enables us to save you $5 to $7.50. We're "lowering" the "high" cost of "living;" we claim with our "5 big stores" eliminating all unnecessary expenses. You save the difference. Never in the "history" of these "United States" will you "see prices" as "high" as now. Don't "tread the old beaten path," paying for the high rents "which don't get you anywhere." Play the "new game." All we ask you to "go shopping around" first and come here last, and we will certainly get your "dough;" $85 blue, green, brown flannel suits at $24.98, $27.98 and $34.98. Don't spend "a dollar for clothes" unless you see our "fall line." "Pay less, buy more." To the "Drummers' Sample Clothes Shop." Five big stores in one. Vandeventer, Market, Sarah, Manchester, Chouteau and all other lines transfer to our door. "Sample Suits," $24.98, $29.98. Sample pants, $2.58, $3.46, $4.98; tailor-made suits cost up to $35; our price $26.75. Mackinaw coats, $7.98, $9.98 and $12.48. We again announce our "Trade-in Sale" Department. We will make you a liberal allowance on your old clothes for new ones. "The place to buy clothes," 926 S. Vandeventer av., near Chouteau. Liberty Bonds accepted. (c)

Free Proof that I Can Raise Your Pay

No matter how much you are earning now, I can show you how to increase it. I have even taken failures and shown them how to make $100—$200, and in one case as high as $2000 weekly. I am willing to prove this entirely at my risk and expense.

LET'S have a little chat about getting ahead—you and I. My name is Pelton. Lots of people call me "The Man Who Makes Men Rich." I don't deny it. I've done it for thousands of people—lifted them up from poverty to riches.

I'm no genius—far from it. I'm just a plain, everyday, unassuming sort of man. I know what poverty is. I've looked black despair in the eye—had failure stalk me around and hoodoo everything I did. I've known the bitterest kind of want.

But today all is different. I have money and all of the things that money will buy. I am rich also in the things that money won't buy—health, happiness and friendship. Few people have more of the blessings of the world than I.

IT was a simple thing that jumped me up from poverty to riches. As I've said, I am no genius. But I had the good fortune to know a genius. One day this man told me a "secret." It had to do with getting ahead and growing rich. He had used it himself with remarkable results. He said that every wealthy man knew this "secret"—that is why he was rich.

I used the "secret." It surely had a good test. At that time I was flat broke. Worse than that, for I was several thousand dollars in the hole. I had about given up hope when I put the "secret" to work.

At first I couldn't believe my sudden change in fortune. Money actually flowed in on me. I was thrilled with a new sense of power. Things I couldn't do before became as easy for me to do as opening a door. My business boomed and continued to leap ahead at a rate that startled me. Prosperity became my partner. Since that day I've never known what it is to want for money, friendship, happiness, health or any of the good things of life.

That "secret" surely made me rich in every sense of the word.

MY sudden rise to riches naturally surprised others. One by one people came to me and asked me how I did it. I told them. And it worked for them as well as it did for me.

Some of the things this "secret" has done for people are astounding. I would hardly believe them if I hadn't seen them with my own eyes. Adding ten, twenty, thirty or forty dollars a week to a man's income is a mere nothing. That's merely playing at it. In one case I took a rank failure and in a few weeks had him earning as high as $2000.00 a week. Listen to this:

A young man in the East had an article for which there was a nation-wide demand. For twelve years he "puttered around" with it—barely eking out a living. Today this young man is worth $200,000. He is building a $25,000 home—and paying cash for it. He has three automobiles. His children go to private schools. He goes hunting, fishing, traveling, whenever the mood strikes him. His income is over a thousand dollars a week.

A Few Examples

Personal Experiences

Among over 400,000 users of "Power of Will" are such men as Judge Ben B. Lindsey; Supreme Court Justice Parker; Wu Ting Fang, Ex. U. S. Chinese Ambassador; Assistant Postmaster General Britt; Gov. McKelvie of Nebraska; General Manager Christeson of Wells-Fargo Express Co.; E. St. Elmo Lewis, former Vice Pres. Art Metal Construction Co.; Gov. Ferris of Michigan, and many others of equal prominence.

$300 Profit From One Day's Reading

"The result from one day's study netted me $300 cash. I think it a great book and would not be without it for ten times the cost."—A. W. Wilkie, Faulkton, S. Dak.

Worth $15,000 and More

"The book has been worth more than $15,000 to me."—Oscar B. Sheppard.

Would Be Worth $100,000

"If I had only had it when I was 20 years old, I would be worth $100,000 today. It is worth a hundred times the price."—S. W. Taylor, The Santa Fe Ry., Milans, Tex.

Salary Jumped From $150 to $800

"Since I read Power of Will my salary has jumped from $150 to $800 a month."—J. F. Gibson, San Diego, Cal.

From $100 to $3000 a Month

"One of our boys who read Power of Will before he came over here jumped from $100 a month to $3000 the first month, and won a $250 prize for the best salesmanship in the State."—Private Leslie A. Still, A. E. F., France.

In a little town in New York lives a man who, two years ago, was pitied by all who knew him. From the time he was 14 he had worked and slaved—and at 60 he was looked upon as a failure. Without work, in debt to his charitable friends, with an invalid son to support, the outlook was pitch-black.

Then he learned the "secret." In two weeks he was in business for himself. In three months his plant was working night and day to fill orders. During 1916 the profits were $20,000. During 1917 the profits ran close to $40,000. And this genial 64-year-young man is enjoying pleasures and comforts he little dreamed would ever be his.

I COULD tell you thousands of similar instances. But there's no need to do this, as I'm willing to tell you the "secret" itself. Then you can put it to work and see what it will do for you. I don't claim I can make you rich over night. Maybe I can—maybe I can't. Sometimes I have failures—everyone has. But I do claim that I can help 90 out of every 100 people if they will let me.

The point of it all, my friend, is that you are using only about one-tenth of that wonderful brain of yours. That's why you haven't won greater success. Throw the unused nine-tenths of your brain into action and you'll be amazed at the almost instantaneous results.

The Will is the motive power of the brain. Without a highly trained, inflexible will, a man has about as much chance of attaining success in life as a railway engine has of crossing the continent without steam. The biggest ideas have no value without will power to "put them over." Yet the will, although heretofore entirely neglected, can be trained into wonderful power like the brain or memory and by the very same method—intelligent exercise and use.

If you held your arm in a sling for two years, it would become powerless to lift a feather, from lack of use. The same is true of the Will—it becomes useless from lack of practice. Because we don't use our Wills—because we continually bow to circumstance—we become unable to assert ourselves. What our wills need is practice.

Develop your will-power and money will flow in on you. Rich opportunities will open up for you. Driving energy you never dreamed you had will manifest itself. You will thrill with a new power—a power that nothing can resist. You'll have an influence over people that you never thought possible. Success—in whatever form you want it—will come as easy as failure came before. And those are only a few of the things the "secret" will do for you. The "secret" is fully explained in the wonderful book "Power of Will."

How You Can Prove This at My Expense

I KNOW you'll think that I've claimed a lot. Perhaps you think there must be a catch somewhere. But here is my offer. You can easily make thousands—you can't lose a penny.

Send no money—no, not a cent. Merely clip the coupon and mail it to me. By return mail you'll receive, not a pamphlet, but the whole "secret" told in this wonderful book, "POWER OF WILL."

Keep it five days. Look it over in your home. Apply some of its simple teachings. If it doesn't show you how you can increase your income many times over—just as it has for thousands of others—mail the book back. You will be out nothing.

But if you do feel that "POWER OF WILL" will do for you what it has done for over four-hundred thousand others—if you feel as they do that it's the next greatest book to the Bible—send me only $3.50 and you and I'll be square.

If you pass this offer by, I'll be out only the small profit on a three and a half-dollar sale. But you—you may easily be out the difference between what you're making now and an income several times as great. So you see you've a lot—a whole lot—more to lose than I.

Mail the coupon or write a letter now—you may never read this offer again.

Madam Butterfly Was Some Insect

By RING W. LARDNER

TO THE EDITOR:

A wile ago I read in the N. Y. papers a write up of a show they put on down to the opera house name Zaza that was so warm that Geraldine Farrar took off her coat and vest and everything in the 1st. act and she was going to do it again Thursday so I give up $7.70 per each for some tickets but when we got there they announced that a tenor name Creamy that had been on the stage when she done it the 1st, time was still in bed yet with a high fever and they wasn't no other tenor in the Co. that would stand around in such a exposure so they was going to put on Madam Butterfly instead with Geraldine playing the insect. Well when you've brought a couple of gals you don't feel like saying let's get our money back and go home, a specially when you have just rode in 28 miles on the N.Y.N.H. and H. and had to set up all the way. So we stuck for Madam Butterfly and maybe some of you hasn't seen the show so I will explain it.

Well for about a hr. after we got in all that happened was the orchestra makeing different squaks till finely a bird stepped up in front of them that everybody claped, so I ast the gals who he was and they said it was Robert Moranzoni the conductor.

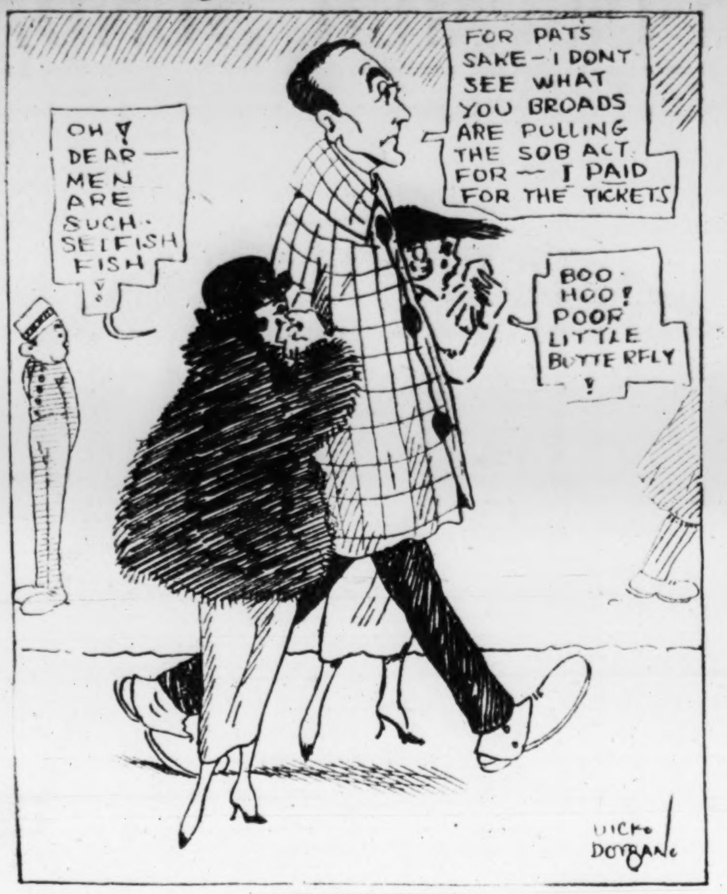
"Oh yes" I said "I use to know him when he was a brakeman and his name was Bob Moran."

Pretty soon the curtains floped open and we begin to get the plot. It seems like married life in Japan, where this show comes off, is a good deal like amongst the movie actors over here. You can call it off by giving 2 wks, notice. Well they was a detective name B. F. Pinkerton that was in the U. S. navy intelligents burro and they had sent him to Japan to try and find out who give Sims them orders and wile he was there he seen Geraldine. So he ast her if she would make 1 of them Hollywood marriages and she said yes, or they wouldn't of been no show.

Well Pink has rented a honeymoon cottage way up on top of a hill and when the play opens him and his friends the American consul is up there waiting for Butterfly to show up for the ceremony. The consul was played by a bird named Scotti but his name in the show was Sharpless so they had to write all his songs on the white keys.

Wile they are waiting Pink sings "Would you like a highball" and Scotti answers yes and when they drink it the orchestra plays part of the star Spangle banner, deuce knows why.

Well finely Geraldine come in and she hit a couple of cracked tones in her first song and Pink says to her "Are you trying to make us believe what the libretto says about you being 15 yrs. old and pretending like your voice is changeing." So she says back "Who and the he'll wouldn't sing a couple of sour notes after climbing a hill like that?" So Pink says "If you was a real Butterfly you'd of flew up the hill." "Yes," she says, "but I was a caterpillar when I started."



OH ! DEAR — MEN ARE SUCH · SELFISH FISH !
FOR PATS SAKE — I DONT SEE WHAT YOU BROADS ARE PULLING THE SOB ACT FOR — I PAID FOR THE TICKETS
BOO · HOO ! POOR LITTLE BUTTERFLY !

"When the show was over the ladys with me was weeping."

She had broughten a lot of other bugs with her that she said was relatives and a justice of the peace and they put on a wedding that was a worlds record for speed probably because Pink's initials was B. F. so Butterfly didn't half to change hers. They was a good alto singer from Chicago name Frances Ingram visiting the bride and if I had of been Pink I would of hesitated a long wile before I picked Gerry instead of she.

Well Act 2 is 3 yrs. later and its broughten out that a little wife after the wedding, Pink had found out that his wife smoked a pipe so he had snuck back to the U. S. and secretly married a cigarette fiend. Mean wile Madam Butterfly has a little son witch she has named Larva Pinkerton and they are waiting for his dad to come back and see him. Finely Mr. Sharpless shows up and trys to tell the Madam in naturals that he has had a letter from Pink and Pink is married again and for her to forget him, but she won't listen and she brings Larva and tells Mr. S. to write back to Pink and tell him he's got a kid. After Sharpless goes, Frances, who seems to be makeing quite a visit, looks out on the bay and sees a U. S. war ship and its the same ship that brought Pink the last time, and they figure he must be on it, so they set up all night thinking he will come and call, but he don't come. In the morning Frances says to Gerry, you better go upstairs and take a nap. "No" says the Madam. "I'm a Pinkerton. I never sleep."

But Frances makes her go up and dureing her absents, sure enough in comes Sharpless and Pink and the new Mrs. Pink. It seems like Pink was on the ship after all and he has seen Sharpless and Sharpless told him about Larva and he has come to claim him. So they ask Frances to ask Madam Butterfly to give Larva up and she says she will and Pinkerton remembers that he has left some of his disguises in a unlocked suit case down at the Tokio House, so he blows and then Madam comes downstairs and Mr. Sharpless introduces the new Mrs. Pink and tells Madam that Pink is in town and wants his kid, so Madam says he can have him if he will come alone and get him himself.

But just before he comes, Madam says to herself "So he has got a harem has he" so she commits harem scarum with a Japanese pie knife and when Pink gets there all he has got left is 1 wife and Larva.

Well when the show was over the ladys with me was weeping though I was the bird that had spent the $23.10. So I says "What do you go to a show for, to sniffle?" So 1 of them said "What do you go for?" So I said I go to learn something. So they ast me what I had learnt and I says I had learnt that the way for a Jap that didn't understand English and an American that didn't understand Jap to carry on a conversation was for both of them to sing to each other in Italiano.

Building a Motor Boat

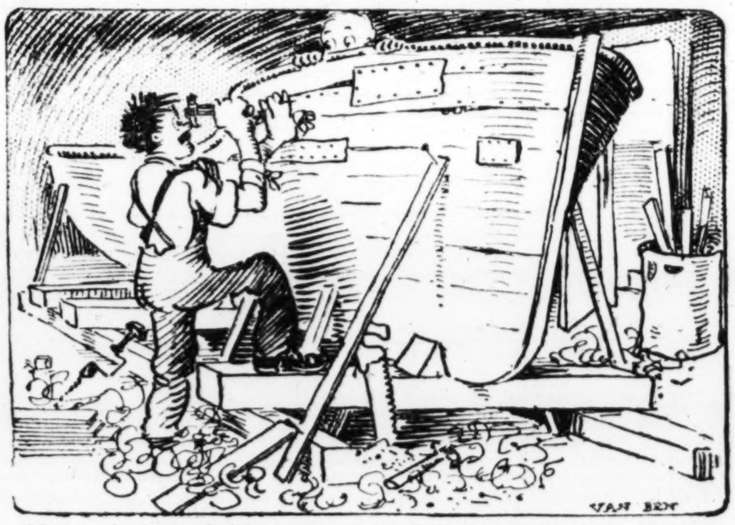
By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

THERE was nothing to do after the man gave me a motor boat engine but to build a motor boat. He was leaving town, and he didn't want the engine, which he had bought, hoping to use it himself.

He was a quick-tempered man. The offer he got for it when he put it on the market insulted him. So, rather than live in a continual state of fury at the parsimony of prospective customers he gave it to me.

The thought of having a motor boat of my own thrilled me. What could be pleasanter than gliding over the waves, the salt spray dashing in your face, and knowing every plank of the trusty craft that bore you as you knew your own house?

I borrowed a set of patterns from a man who had started to build his own boat, but got tired of the job. How he could weary of such a delightful task I could not understand. I knew that once I got started, I should finish the job. I was right about that. I did finish it.



Most of the neighbors thought I was building a cellar to hold a stock I had purchased on the quiet.

I did a little shopping at the lumber yard and the hardware store, and for several days wagons kept backing up to the front gate and unloading lumber.

It was astonishing how much lumber seemed to be required for one small motor boat. Most of my friends thought I was going to build an addition to the house, and when I told them the stuff was for a boat they asked if I was one of those nuts who was going to circumnavigate the globe in my own craft.

Hardware, tools, paint and varnish cost more than I expected. Indeed, they cost more than I expected a steam yacht would cost. But I didn't know much about boats then, so I arranged to pay for them on instalments, and fell cheerfully to work.

The first requisite in building a boat is a steam box. A steam box is a long, square contrivance, connected with a boiler, which, in turn, is heated by a specially designed stove. It costs too much to buy, so I rented one from a boat yard for about the rental of an average seven-room house.

Into the steam box you put the oak lumber for the ribs, steep it for a few days in steam, and take it out so limber theoretically you can ties knots in it.

But there was either something the matter with my oak or with my steam box. When I took out the embryo ribs they were but little more plastic than when I put them in.

I could, it is true, bend some of them over the molds I had made, but if I let go of them suddenly they would fly back like catapults and hit me vindictively on my chest, face or any other part of my person that happened to be in their trajectory.

Moreover, most of them broke or split, and I had to send for more rib materials two or three times. But after three weeks I could go into the cellar, where I had set up my shipyard, and view with pride a beautifully curved skeleton boat, much resembling all that is left of a whale when you arrive at the summer resort where it washed ashore the previous winter.

The next thing to do was to put on the planks. This was easy at first. I began with the garboards, which are the planks next the keel. When I had got a plank clamped to the frame, I bored it with holes, and fastened it on with rivets. I hammered the rivets from below, while a small member of the family held a hammer against them on the inside.

It was a noisy operation. Most of the neighbors thought I was building a cellar to hold a stock I had purchased on the quiet.

They came to the house in considerable numbers in the evenings, sitting around and eyeing me hopefully, and talking about their stupid negligence in not getting any of their own, and their suffering from the deprivation prohibition had imposed on them.

When I said I was in the same fix they first looked incredulous, then sore. And usually when they went out they slammed the door.

Not only was the riveting noisy, but it was bad for the house. Plaster began to jar loose from the ceiling of the kitchen and ran into the cooking. During a busy riveting session the house would rock like a ship in a

"Ja, but when I seen his long face, right away I said rather by myself I would sit than look at it. Between him and my daughter, what runs up mountains and then gives me heart failure when she nearly misses the ship, and then on top always finds out the lonesome places like this—between the two of them I got a lonesome enough time of it myself, just let me tell you."

"But, mamma, dear, you've got the nice ladies you've met on the boat, Mrs. Kron and Mrs. Lipp and all of them."

"With the right kind of a young man not one word would I say to all the good time you want. But with such a nix who leaves you alone by yourself every night by 9 o'clock and who has got in his head eyes what I wouldn't trust so far as from here to"——

"Eyes! That just shows, mamma, how little you know about things. If there's one thing he has got, it's eyes, grand, black eyes anybody would notice."

"Always, Esther, a person's eyes are like looking glasses what tell the truth about him. Right through the eyes of a nix I can see just like in a mirror, grand eyes or not so grand."

"You've just got to quit calling him a nix like that, mamma. Who is it, I'd like to know, but papa drags him downstairs every night, I'd like to know. Who is it? Who?"

"Tonight, Esther, your papa didn't"——

"Tonight maybe not, but every other night. It just shows Danziger's got honor though. He's not going to get off this boat without giving them all every chance to win back. He's got honor, that's why he went down."

"I tell you, Esther, how much I think of him. So much, that I even don't want to hear his name. Gott sei dank, tomorrow we land, and that's the last we see of him with your papa's good money, what I helped to save, in his pocket."

"Well, then, you—you quit running him down, ma. He's a prince, if you want to know it. You—well I—I could tell you something if I wanted to; but I—I won't right now—I—I won't. But you got to quit picking on him, ma. You've just got to. It's papa"——

"Always like I used to say to your brother, Michie, when he was yet in short pants: 'Cards is spades that dig the gamblers' graves.'"

"Such silly sayings! Honest, mamma, you mustn't say them in front of people. Anyway, he don't gamble, he"——

"How excited right away she gets, like it makes any difference. For my part he gambles or don't. Tomorrow we don't see him any more is all I ask. Him with your papa's hard-earned four hundred and"——

"Mamma, if you keep rubbing that in, if I've got to listen to it another time, I—I'll just die."

"I don't want to hear about him, Esther, no more as you do."

"Well, then, let's talk about something else. I just can't stand the way you nag and nag, mamma, when you once get started."

"Come sit down quiet by mamma, Esther."

"Yes, mamma!"

"But for why, Esther, just to please me, don't you first go down and bring up that grand new leather portfolio that Abe brought you down to the pier."

"Now, mamma"——

"Ach, go on, Esther, bring it up and write to him a letter on a sheet of that pretty pink writing paper that's in it. See, right up here by the moonshine you can see to write and I add a line, eh?"

"Mamma, please don't nag."

"Here right in my handbag, Esther, is the little silver key on the little silver ring to the case it came in. Not once have you asked for it. So thoughtful a boy, Esther; he knows such a careless girl you are and on a silver ring with your name on, he has yet the silver key put on."

"The way you keep talking about that portfolio, mamma, like it was made of gold."

"I only say, Esther, what a grand thing it would be if Abe would meet us when we get to Paris. Like he says, Esther, all what he waits for is the word from you that he should come. Right to me on the pier, saying good-by, he said those words."

"No wonder, the way you stuck next to him, mamma."

"Think, Esther, a smart boy like Abe what is always so thoughtful of everybody to help us around in Paris, where you got to be so careful they say, you don't get cheated, eh? Next to Michie himself, nothing could give papa so much pleasure either as Abe should be there with us. Here, baby, right here is the silver ring. Run down once and underneath your berth out of the case get the portfolio and write to him on the pink writing paper, eh?"

"Oh, mamma, you—you get me so mad. Honest, I—oh I could just cry, the way you keep at me. Please, mamma, let—let my affairs alone.'

"All right, Esther, I let them alone. Your old mother only wishes you the worst. She wishes you to forget a grand honest boy, like Abe, for a dressed-up nix what you meet on the boat. I'll let you alone. I'll let you alone. Right back in my bag goes the silver key ring. I'll let you alone."

"That's what I want you to do."

"I tell you, Esther, this pain what I got over my heart yesterday and today ain't for nothing. I tell you the excitement when you nearly missed the boat this afternoon, and for a mother to see all of a sudden her baby begin nonsense with a nix from Chicago what nobody don't know nothing about, except what he brags himself, is enough to give heart failure. Better we had stayed right at home in"——

"Oh, mamma, I just got to bite my tongue to hold in. That's how mad you and your old fogie ideas make me. What do you know about—about things that go on in the—the real world; about an up-to-date fellow like him that's been around the world three times and knows things? You and your old fogy ideas don't count, mamma."

"Esther!"

"They don't. They—they just don't. I—I'm sick of you always picking on him when you don't know. I—oh—oh—oh!"

She was off into the rearward gloom of the deck cramming her handkerchief against her lips, inarticulate sobs escaping from its lacy edge; down two flights, in and out, skirting the edge of deckspread groups, skirting their laughter and the froth of conversation, and in a deserted corner of the oak balcony, a generous ledge elaborated to a writing room and overlooking the luxurious, bright-lighted lounge room, she found refuge; and trying to quiet the thumping heart of her, curled herself in the great embrace of a brown velvet divan, her hot cheeks to its nap in the hot tears stinging against her closed lids. Dance music floated up to her light and remotely, and the foam of lighter laughter.

A galaxy of incandescents burned through crystal prisms upon the informal leather chairs of the great room; upon full-length mirrors in gilt frames; upon imitations of a famous pair of 53-inch Mandarin jars and half a dozen small walnut tables with carved tassels at their four corners; chessboards here and there, a king or pawn left standing. The paraphernalia of idleness was everywhere about; a periodical face downward; a woman's workbag. Finally and beneath the left balcony, a group of eight sitting silent about a round table. The quiet rattle of bone chips; an occasional spoken word, but low and staccato.

From her balcony, sitting there a small huddle of squandered emotions and bankrupt vitality, her hair fallen awry and the red rims fresh about her eyes, Esther Lefkovitch caught sight of that table, though directly beneath her balcony, through one of the long mirrors opposite. She leaned forward, then farther, her lips opening. A tear dried and left a vitrified glistening on her cheek.

Through the mirror and the gray air of cigar smoke, shirt-sleeved and hunched over a flare of five cards lifted close before his eyes, she beheld her father. And around the table, above open collars and vari-colored, vari-sized stacks of chips, a circle of men's faces, unrelaxed and as if carved from cherry stones.

First in the foreground the cool, collared vision of Mr. Danziger, drawing unto himself from the center of the table a great mass of the vari-colored chips. In silhouette she could see her parent shuffling a fresh deck of cards, dealing them five times around with quoitlike motion, across the table top. Then her gaze returned and lingered upon the figure beside him, in godlike calm opening the fan of his cards ever so slightly, discarding, tossing his offering of chips lightly to the center of the table, and every so often and with great frequency scooping in the center loot of them.

Watching that vaudeville of sight without sound, the imperturbable breadth of his back, the imperturbable line of his profile, the muscles which rose in the backs of his hands with each scooping in, lights flickered for a moment in Miss Lefkovitch's eyes, then burned quietly in their depths like altar candles.

Suddenly, as she watched, chin cupped in palm, head dropped into the hunch of her shoulders, she leaned forward, gripping the edge of the divan, leaned closer, her quick breath too light to flutter a leaf, coming through her open lips. Passed a quarter-hour, a half, an hour, and still she sat there immobile, her hypnotized eyes on the mirror. Two spots of color came out round and burning on either cheek and one heat wave raced another through her body.

With the great effort of pulling her strength together, she rose finally, but trembled and grasped at the balcony rail for support. Then, after a last interval, she tiptoed down a brief carpeted staircase to the near door of the lounge, lifted a fold of heavy brown portiere and slipped into it; stood there an additional quarter-hour, her hand at her throat.

Reaching out from that fold, she might have brushed her father's sleeve. A waiter pussyfooted through the doorway, almost touching her. At that moment, and with a deerlike bound that landed her even farther than her gauge, Miss Lefkovitch lit beside the card table, her small tight fingers closing over Mr. Danziger's relaxed wrist. The white face of a playing card flashed upward for a second and, wrenching it from his surprised fingers, she danced backward from him, waving it.

"I got you! Got you! I saw him, pa. Saw him work it five times. Saw him, pa! Saw him every time." She leaped toward her father, waving the card higher above her head, the tremolo of hysteria in her voice.

"Always under his cuff he worked it—the far side. Look for yourselves and see what else he's got there. Here's the ace, pa. I don't want it. Take it! Take it! Take it!"

In the sudden upheaval of chairs scraping backward and a great tangle of arms flung across the table for the wrist she had released, Mr. Danziger tugged free for the moment, made a side lunge from the table, his under jaw shot forward and his cuff wrenched open.

"She-devil!" he cried. "She-devil—a lie!" Lunged again, but a sudden group closed about him, muffling out his speech, and with the soft thud of grappling bodies in her ears, breathy oaths, feet scraping against soft carpets, chairs overturning, gurglings, she fled trembling up the two decks, sobs tumbling one over the other from her dry lips.

In the identical quiet of the topdeck, moon-washed Gibraltar rising closer and blacker and hunch-backed in the pale night, Mrs. Lefkovitch lay muffled in sleep and a steamer rug, her mouth open to the taste of salt and her hand across her heart, as if a hurt lay there.

Beside the steamer chair in a huddle, Miss Lefkovitch buried her head deep into the sag of her mother's skirt.

Mrs. Lefkovitch woke with a start. Sleepy, her perceptions rose and fell.

"Who—who's that? Aaron?"

"N-no, mamma."

"Esther—that you? Is that you come back?"

"Yes, mamma."

"What's the matter, baby; why, child, you look"——

"No, no, mamma, nothing! Don't get excited."

"But Esther, what"——

"Nothing, mamma, nothing! I forgot and come back"——

"Forgot?"

"The keyring, mamma; the silver keyring. Give me!"

The Acid Test for Death

DR. ICARD of Marseilles publishes a new test for death. This is based upon the fact that the body fluids are alkaline in life, but are acid three-quarters of an hour after death. Therefore he compresses a fold of skin with a forceps and expresses a drop or two of serum. Ordinary test paper will show after five or ten minutes whether this is alkaline or acid.

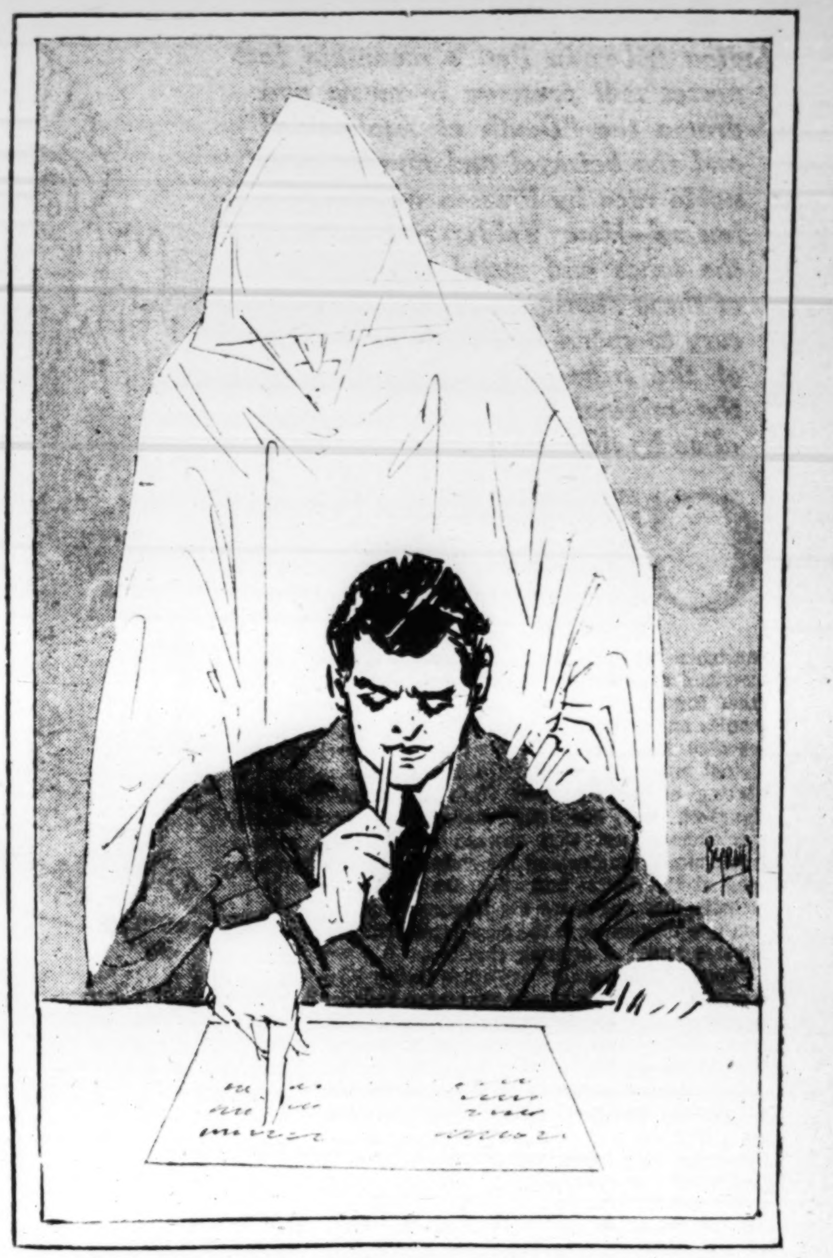
La-may Face Powder is now used by over a million American women!

A specialist has perfected a pure face powder guaranteed harmless to the most delicate baby skin. It beautifies wonderfully, because it helps to clear and lighten the skin and protect the complexion from blemishes. And it really stays on better than any other face powder. Of course, every one knows the famous La-may Powder (French, Poudre L'Ame). This is the powder that does not contain starchy rice powder or dangerous white lead to make it adhere. Five thousand dollars reward will be given any chemist who finds that La-may contains any white lead or rice powder. All dealers carry the large sixty-cent box, and many dealers also carry the generous thirty-cent size. When you use this harmless powder and see how beautifully it improves your complexion you will understand why La-may so quickly became the most popular beauty powder sold in New York. We will give you five thousand dollars if you can buy a better face powder anywhere at any price. Herbert Roystone, 16 East 18th St. New York. Save this notice.

David Bispham Tells of Tests in Spiritualism - How Psychic Influences Made Him a Singer -

Quaker parentage and boyhood training of famous baritone compelled him to be skeptical, but he followed advice given through "automatic writing" and in the sequel gained fame in grand opera—Crystal ball healed injury to his throat and gave revelation—Remarkable London seance described :: :: :. :: ::



—Yet it soon wrote in large letters, "Opera, by all means.

THE career of David Bispham, the renowned operatic and concert baritone, was strangely affected by experiences of a psychic sort. Messages of advice came to him from the outer areas of ether, wherein are supposed to hover spirits of those who have gone on from this existence, which caused him to make momentous decisions. He was healed of serious illness, which for a time threatened to deprive him permanently of his voice, by a mysterious force applied through the concrete agency of a crystal globe.

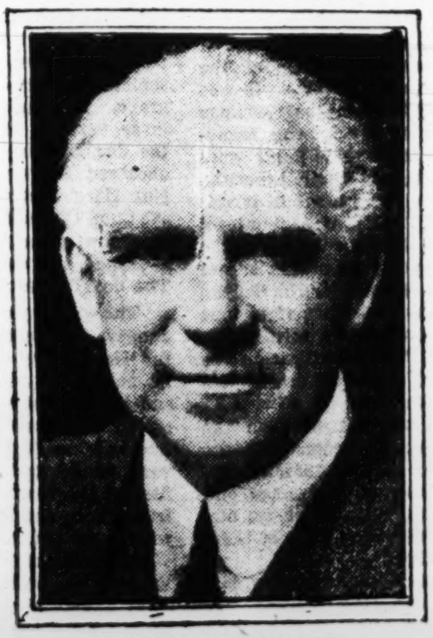
A more matter of fact and unemotional man than Bispham could not be found in a day's journey. His antecedents were not of the variety which make proselytes to new cults. He was born in stolid old Philadelphia, and his parents and ancestors were of the most orthodox type of Quakers, and his head, according to his own assertion, was "screwed on tightly" by these forbears. Withal there came to him experiences astonishing and incomprehensible, which he relates in his autobiography, entitled "A Quaker Singer's Recollections."

The first of the unusual events came when he was a struggling student in foreign lands. One day in Florence he was walking on the Lung' Arno and carelessly running his walking stick along the top of a stone wall bordering the river, when the cane struck an obstacle, slipped through his hand and the head struck violently against his larynx, that most important organ of a singer, which in common parlance is known as the Adam's apple. The bruise rendered him voiceless and for a time it seemed as though he would never sing another note.

Many physicians on the Continent and in England were visited, but none could effect a cure, and worry and apprehension brought intense mental depression. In this state he presented his case to a Dr. Tuckey in London and placed himself under the care of this practitioner for hypnotic treatment. For weeks Bispham had suffered from sleeplessness, which nothing could remedy and which augmented his illness. One day Dr. Tuckey gave into his hand a crystal ball and said: "Hold this over your eyes yourself." He did so and his eyes closed in a refreshing sleep, from which he awoke virtually a well man, and soon thereafter his restoration to perfect health was complete.

Through Dr. Tuckey and his friends, Bispham was invited to attend meetings of the Society for Psychical Research, held at Westminster Town Hall, where he heard papers read by Prof. F. W. Myers, Sidgwick, Crooks, Mr. Gurney, Sir Oliver Lodge and their associates in the movement, then in its initial stage. This was in the very early '90s. He comments on the earnestness of these distinguished men of science, and speaks of meeting Mme. Blavatsky and Mrs. Annie Besant, the last of whom almost converted him with her cleverness and great beauty.

"I went," says Bispham, "with my friend, Francis James, the artist, who had known Hume (the celebrated English medium), to my first spiritualistic seance. On the way there James told me he did not believe in Hume, and yet that in broad daylight he and others assembled in a London drawing room saw performed the act of levitation. Hume, by some agency, was lifted six or eight inches from the floor, carried through a long, open window out to the balcony, along the whole length of the balcony and in at the open window at the end, where he was deposited again upon the drawing room floor.



DAVID BISPHAM.

"When we arrived at the house of the medium and the gas was turned out, strange noises began, the rattling of maps and pictures hanging on the wall, knockings upon the table and doors leading into the passage and into the front drawing room. I felt hands touching me, heard a voice speaking to me through a cardboard tube such as is used to carry music through the mails. Before the lights were turned out I had noticed a zither, which presently arose of its own accord, could be seen to move about the room over our heads as we sat, its position being indicated by a spot of luminous paint on its under side, playing as it went a jingling tune.

"As the eye followed it down the room it reached the door and disappeared with a thud and through the folded doors could be heard playing, seemingly in the front room. The sound began getting louder as it again approached the dividing doors; another thud and suddenly the bright spot reappeared in the back room. I uttered an exclamation of astonishment and incredulity, when, to my amazement, the instrument settled down on top of my head and played 'Yankee Doodle'! I came away mystified but not in the least converted and to me the whole thing was hocus-pocus. My judgment is that whatever there is 'in it' goes to the alleged spiritists. Nevertheless, sometimes the spirits, or whatever they are, hit off something so startlingly true it makes one thoughtful."

Bispham says he used to visit a country house near London where the daughter of the hostess, a woman socially distinguished, was one of the most remarkable psychic subjects ever known. The brothers were members of the Life Guards, and they, with everyone in the household, would have frowned on anything savoring of chicanery. Yet not one could explain, and all stood in awe of the manifestations through the hand of this girl. Though not normally an artist, she would on a sudden paint remarkable pictures, write in foreign languages with which she was unacquainted, or compose poetry of much grandeur. In one instance the poem thus produced proved to be a translation of a papyrus found upon the body of an Egyptian mummy in the British Museum.

"This lady," says Bispham, "who knew nothing of my private affairs, once seated herself in the great hall chair of her house and took in her hand a large crystal ball. As she looked into it she began to say the names of a number of letters. These were recorded by members of the family. Presently the sensitive ceased speaking, and after comparing notes and deciphering the message, every word of which was spelled backward, the recorders presented me with a paper, which I read in amazement. Let me say I had been puzzled by the nonarrival of a sum of money due me through the hands of an American agent, whose honesty had been questioned. The message from the crystal gazer read as follows:

"'You must not be concerned that you have not heard from your agent. He has been ill and unable to attend to your business, about which you need have no fear whatever.'

"This was on Sunday afternoon. Upon returning to my home in London, the first letter I opened in the mail Monday morning was from this man, inclosing the expected draft and apologizing for the delay, which was due to his ill-health."

In 1892 Bispham entertained among other guests at a luncheon, Baron Kaleen, a Swede, interested in psychic phenomena. He brought with him the toy called Planchette, by means of which "automatic writing" is assisted. Shortly after the singer dined with Waleen and his friend, Baron Rudbeck, who was known to have manifested curious psychic powers. After dinner Planchette was brought forth, and under Rudbeck's hand began at once to write rapidly and distinctly. Bispham was not touching the machine, nor had he asked any questions; yet it soon wrote in large letters, "Opera, by all means."

"Neither of my companions knew to what this referred," writes Bispham, "or saw any connection in it with anything that had gone before, until I explained it was an answer to a question I was about to ask, whether I should continue in concert or make further endeavor toward opera. Here was a direct answer to my unspoken thought. Rudbeck's right hand was resting upon Planchette, his left covering his eyes, which he opened only when the instrument stopped writing. My first spoken question was, 'What operas shall I study?' Planchette replied, 'The operas of Verdi and Wagner.' My next question was as to which particular operas I should study and the answer was '"Aida," "Tannhauser," "Tristan and Isolde" and "Die Meistersinger."' We sat amazed, and to my next query as to what parts I should study, the response was 'Amonasro, Wolfram, Kurwenal and Beckmesser.'"

Bispham heeded the mysterious advice and devoted several months to intensive study of the indicated roles, and it happened that shortly after he received a note from the manager of Covent Garden, the great English home of opera, asking him if he knew the part of Beckmesser, and if he did to come and rehearse it for performance with Jean de Reszke, Mme. Albani and Jean Lassalle, the baritone.

At the close of one of the rehearsals Bispham was accosted by Sir Augustus Harris, impresario of Covent Garden, who asked if he knew the role of Kurwenal. "Tristan and Isolde" was to be given next evening, and the German singer engaged could not appear because of illness. Bispham mastered his astonishment sufficiently to reply that he had learned the part, and he sang it next evening with noted success. The performance resulted in his being engaged regularly among the Covent Garden forces, where, singularly enough, within an incredibly short period he was required to appear in the other operas and identical roles predicted by Planchette.

"I have long intended to write to persons of standing in the investigation of such matters," says Bispham, "relating this occurrence, which seems to have been beyond the possibility of mere chance. By some they are set down in the class with the "miracles" of Lourdes; by others attributed to the phenomena of science; by Sir Oliver Lodge they may be attributed to spiritistic influence, and anyone who has read Maeterlinck's marvelous story of "The Elberfeld Horses" may readily imagine that the power that enabled them instantly to solve abstruse mathematical problems is the same 'psychic flash' that illuminated for me the unborn future and showed me the path I should follow. But if you ask me my honest opinion I am content to accept the facts as I found them, realizing that 'there are more things in heaven and earth than are dreamt of in our philosophy.' " storm. The plumbing came apart in several places. Dust from the attic, which fancied it had found eternal rest, hopped off the floor, swept down the stairs and filled the house with an impenetrable fog.

The garboards went on all right, and so did the next planks, but they began to fit worse and worse as I worked up toward the gunwales. You can calk a seam a quarter of an inch wide, but a seam a foot in width, even if stuffed with an enormous amount of cotton and putty, would probably not be water tight, especially if the boat was laboring in a rough sea.

Try as I would, I could not make the edges of those planks meet at more than two or three places. At last I was compelled to shape patches to fit into the interstices. These didn't look workmanlike, but I figured that paint and putty would hide them from critical eyes.

By the middle of January the boat was ready to launch. Puttied and painted, she was not so bad. True, she was not exactly sylphlike, but she looked as if she would float, and even show a little speed.

I sent for the neighbors who had acted so queerly about the lack of booze and proudly exhibited my handiwork.

They admired it with restraint. One of them said:

"She's a fair job for an amateur, but she's five feet in the beam and your doors are two and a half feet wide. Furthermore, you'll have to take her to pieces to get her up the cellar stairs. Where you going to sail her down here?"

I hadn't thought of that. I don't want to pull the house down and I don't like to take the boat apart again. I have given the problem a lot of thought, but somehow or other there doesn't appear to be any solution.

The Middle West's Largest Farm

brought the largest return for the amount expended.

The same system is followed with the hog and cattle pens. A certain number of hogs are put into a pen and charged to this pen. The feed, water and time required to handle the pen are charged against it each day, and when the animals are ready for market the deal on that pen is closed with the receipt of the cash. Then the profit and loss account of the pen is figured and put on the permanent books. Anyone can tell at a glance just what any pen or field has been doing for the past 20 years.

At headquarters there is a two-story office building. On the lower floor are the offices and a fireproof vault, where records are kept. The second floor is a storeroom for supplies. Everything not produced on the ranch is bought in car lots. All meats consumed are butchered at headquarters and distributed. One butcher and several helpers are employed throughout the winter and from two to three hundred hogs are killed and packed for summer consumption.

On the ranch are seven school districts and four schoolhouses, to which the children living on the property go. There are four voting precincts, two of which are used exclusively by the ranch workers.

The cause for breaking up the big ranch is the labor problem. It has been so hard to get competent farmhands in sufficient numbers in the last few years to handle the work that it has been decided to sell the entire property in farms of 80 to 160 acres, which one man can handle, usually, with some additional help during the harvest season.

Cured His RUPTURE

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of something that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, although I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell, but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 149F Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life or at least stop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation.

Most of your thinking is done in words. It is impossible to think in words which you do not possess. Your thought must suffer for the words you lack. A limited vocabulary means limited thought, limited authority, and limited power.

The idea, plan, or proposal which COMPELS attention is expressed in precise, convincing language—language persuasive, forceful and gleaming with just the suggestion you're trying to "drive home."

The average man of today can add largely to his efficiency, influence, and income if he will give a few minutes each day to Grenville Kleiser's fascinating Mail Course in Practical English.

BOOTH TARKINGTON, Distinguished Novelist: "Your course is almost painfully needed by many professional writers and speakers. A student who intelligently follows your course will know what he is talking about when he talks or when he writes. His audience will certainly know, because he will talk well, no matter what his subject."

IRVIN S. COBB, War Correspondent, Novelist, Lecturer: "Any man who helps English-speaking people to a better knowledge of practical English deserves praise and has mine."

JOHN BURROUGHS, Famous Naturalist and Writer: "I see valuable and helpful hints in these lessons. Any young man or woman who has an undeveloped literary talent ought to profit greatly by this Course."

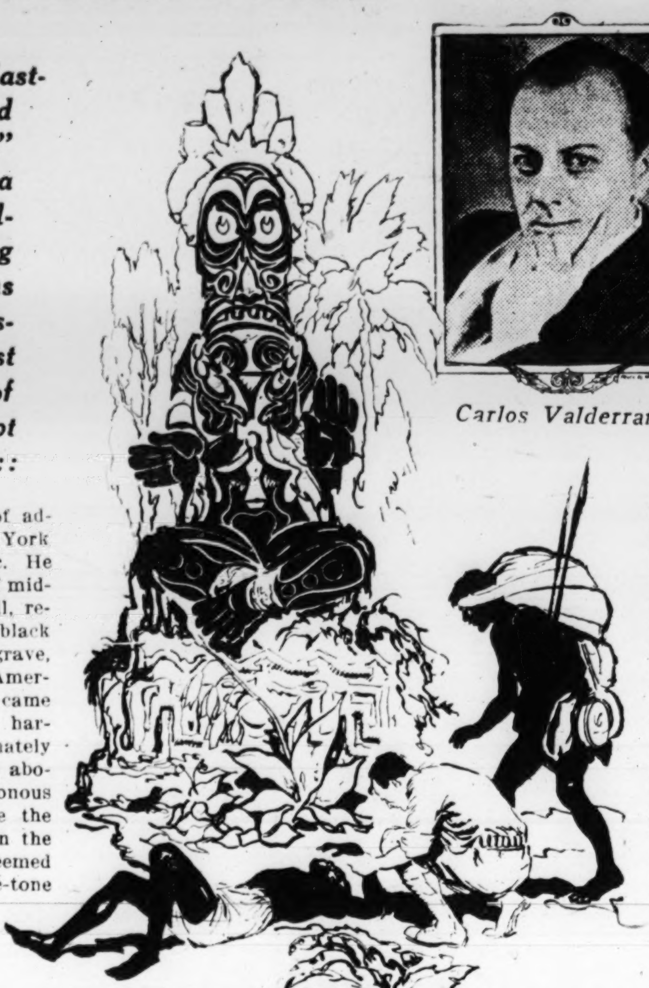
VENTURESOME MUSICIAN BRINGS BACK ANCIENT MELODIES OF THE INCAS

Indian tribes in Peru's mountain fastnesses still preserve in music and drama the "Death of Atahualpa" and the betrayal and murder of a noble race by Pizzaro and his followers—How Valderrama seeking the tones and weird compositions of these aboriginals found it necessary to spend two years as a guest of the tribe—Strange customs of the original sun-worshipers kept alive by their successors :: ::



Ignorant of the customs of the tribe, he had partaken of the fruits placed to propitiate the idol and death from a poisoned arrow was the awful penalty.

Carlos Valderrama.

CARLOS VALDERRAMA, musician of adventure, sat at the piano in a New York studio and discoursed strange music. He is a substantially built young man, of middle height, broad, serious face, small, refined features, expansive forehead, black hair combed straight back, and a grave, courteous bearing—in all appearance a South American and a musician. A soft, mournful melody came from the piano. It was supported with minor harmonies and with an old acquaintance—the obstinately repeated bass note characteristic of American aboriginal music, the pianistic version of the montonous beating of the tom-tom. Into the mind came the figure of, "heap big Injun" stamping the earth in the war dance. But this strange tribal music seemed much more complex and far richer than the five-tone song of the Sioux and the Comanche; its melodic line was more ingratiating; and the tom-tom drumming in the bass developed complicated and foot-stirring rhythms.

"Music of the Incas!" explained Carlos Vanderrama. Barbaric hymns that once sounded in the Temple of the Sun. Symphonies that rang through the throne halls of Atahualpa. Festive songs that floated over the golden maize fields of a wondrous vanished empire! All in true and just transcription, the musician went on. He had studied the music of the Incas with exceeding great care, and he told a story to emphasize the point.

One morning several years ago Carlos Vanderrama set out from his native town of Truxillo, which is on the Peruvian coast, in quest of the music of the Incas. He took with him two Indian guides and two burros laden with extensive supplies, for his route lay across the wildest Andes. His project was to live a while among the Campas and the Chunchas, who are tribes, so old tradition recounts, descended from the Incas' gilded nobles who fled before the steel of the conqueror Spaniard into the trans-Andean jungle. They were reputed to be subtle tropical savages, these Campas and Chunchas, and of no ordinary fierceness, and Valderrama felt his difficulties only begun when he and his two Indians had safely made the arduous passage of the mountains, and were approaching the jungle haunts of the Incamen. But the first of the Campas he met greeted him with wonder and seeming friendliness, and at the first village the local cacique hospitality placed a hut along the trail at the stranger's disposal. With much relief of spirit Valderrama and his two men laid themselves down to sleep that night.

In the early morning Valderrama awakened and saw one of his Indians still asleep, but no evidence of the other. He aroused the sleeping Indian, who could give no account of his mate. They went out into the open, and saw nothing save the tropical green surrounding them like an irregular wall and above it the Andean heights that overhung the vegetation-choked valley. Shouting brought no more response than the cries of birds and monkeys. They went searching along the trail that wound through the thicket, and in a clearing came upon a large wooden idol that stared fiercely into the dusk of the jungle. At the foot of the idol sprawled the figure of a man, motionless, and in the posture of terrible death, with no wound save a small laceration on the wrist. It was the mark of a poisoned arrow.

Valderrama felt himself as good as dead. The Campas had turned against the intruding strangers, he reasoned hopelessly. He was a day's march deep in their country already, and there was no warding off the poison-tipped darts that might come at any minute from the thicket. He turned in the boldness of desperation to the cacique who had entertained him. Why had his follower been arrowed? Was that Inca hospitality? The gaudily feathered cacique stood at the door of his hut, the principal one in the village, and made a reply that reassured the adventurous musician.

The idol in the thicket was the harvest god of the Campas, and a divinity that demanded a gift of mangoes and guavas each evening. Valderrama's Indian had witnessed the fruit giving ceremony of the previous day, and awaking hungry at daybreak, had gone out and made a matutinal repast of the harvest god's mangoes. An arrowman of the Campas had come upon the sacrilegious pilferer and had instantly winged him with a poisoned dart.

"The cacique told me," relates Valderrama, "that the descendants of the Incas were accustomed to kill any man who made the slightest infraction of their ancient traditions, and that it would not be wise for me to approach the customs of the Campas and the Chunchas in a spirit of levity, as my unfortunate follower had done. It was, then, in a serious and even reverential frame of mind that I observed the strange things that are enacted among the wild Incamen of today. I studied closely the laws and manners, the violations of which brought poisoned arrows. It was well to be accurate about everything in that perilous region, about Inca music, for instance; the trans-Andean musicians of whom I became a pupil were sticklers for the exact following of their inherited musical traditions. Still, who could have sat in trivial mood and witnessed the annual 'Death of Atahualpa?'

"Back before Pizzaro's days, dynastic wars in the Inca's empire drove a defeated party of nobles across the Andes into a jungle refuge. Then later the Toledo blades of the Conquistadores drove the once victorious party to join them. And there, united in misfortune, they have remained to this day. Their civilization has decayed under the pressure of the wilderness. No more the great edifices of old Peru. The art of winging a flying bird with a poisoned arrow has taken the place of the marshalling of barbaric hosts. But the memory of their former grandeur persists among them, and constantly they play, keeping up the stage and music tradition of their ancestors, episodes of the history of their fallen empire. The Passion Play of these dramas is the 'Death of Atahualpa.'

"On the grass-covered floor of a large clearing several thousand gaudily, though scantily, dressed people are gathered to watch a theatrical performance. They wear gay-colored feathers in their hair, bold tatoo designs on their coppery skins, and not much else. On a throne apart from the throng sits the last of the Incas, garbed in what splendor the southern wood affords. Before him a score of wailing women lie prostrate on their faces. Atahualpa keeps the noble bearing of an Indian in misfortune.

"Near by an orchestra of a dozen musicians discourses a mournful symphony on a variety of soft-voiced instruments, all of the flute species, and on drums that sound odd rhythms. The music is in full harmony; the pentatonic scale alternates with the complete minor. The dulcet consecutive thirds, familiar in Italian music, are present, as are the consecutive empty fourths of modern French atmospheric harmony.

"For three months the successive acts of the tragedy are played daily. Atahualpa receives the homage of his chieftains. He holds court among his wives. He worships on the summit of the Temple of the Sun. The terrible white-faced strangers come. With unheard-of weapons they strike the Inca's men. Atahualpa is captured. He is put in prison. He bids his wives farewell. And scores of other scenes are shown until the somber climax is reached. The captive Incas are garroted and a wild lamentation arises from the clustered spectators and sounds through the mazes of the southern wood and rises even to the cold summits of the Andes.

"They treated me kindly," Valderrama tells, "though they are more shy of white men than hostile to them. I lived like an Indian, participating in the poisoned arrow mode of hunting, and in the harvesting of maize and the gathering of fruits. Then, after two years of sojourn among them, I bade the Incamen farewell and returned across the mountains to my own native Peruvian coast, where I arranged the piano transcriptions of Inca music that I am presenting to New York."

But it is not merely Inca music that Carlos Vanderrama has brought from the other side of the Andes. He tells an ancient Inca dog story, which is played by the Campa and Chuncha actors as an episode that occurred in the great times of the old Peruvian empire.

"There was a lady named Cori-Huayta, or Golden Flower, appropriately, for she was beautiful," he relates. "She had two dogs, Manang and Sanang she called them—curiously, for Manang signifies 'He is Here,' and Sanang 'He is Not Here.' Golden Flower's husband thought this nomenclature a feminine whim, but in shameful fact there was a secret. She had a lover who at night would come to the door of the house and scratch—simulating the practice of the dogs, who slept outside. If her husband were home Golden Flower would cry angrily, 'He Is Here.' The husband would fancy she was scolding the dog of that name; the lover would interpret more correctly. But if she were alone, Golden Flower would call in a pleasant voice, 'He is Not Here.'

"After a time the husband grew suspicious, and one night he stationed himself on the roof of the squat stone house and kept his bow and arrow ready. And when he saw a man approaching his door he loosed a shaft—a misdirected shaft. The arrow missed the lover and killed 'He is Not Here.'

"But the perfidious Golden Flower contrived with subtle womanlike words to dispel suspicion; she contrived to see her lover still; and they killed the husband and buried his body in the garden.

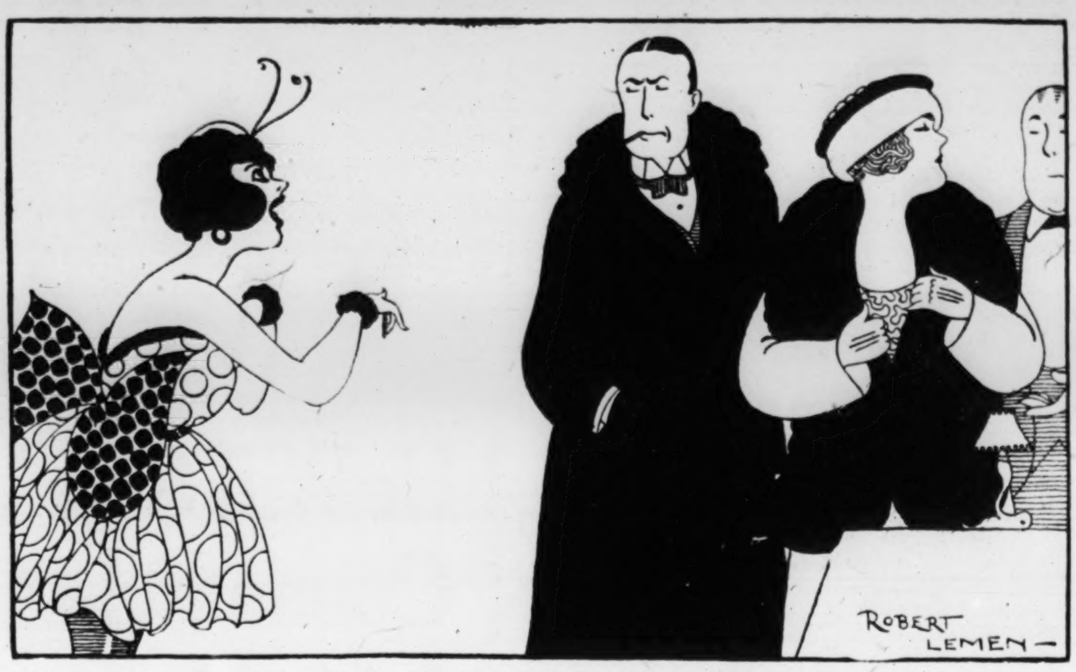
"'He is Here,' bereft first of his friend, 'He is Not Here,' and now of his master, grew infinitely lonesome, and he passed his days sniffing at his master's grave. Fearing that this would arouse suspicion, the lover went on the roof one day and shot an arrow at the dog sniffing at the grave. But 'He is Here' had observed the unhappy fate that had befallen 'He is Not Here' and had formed the habit of keeping an eye upon the roof from which the fatal arrow had come. And now, when he saw his new master bend his bow, he leaped, and received the arrow through his haunches. The dog limped yelling into the bush.

"The guilty pair fancied themselves delivered of all danger. But each night the crippled, but ever faithful 'He is Here' dragged himself from the wood where he had taken refuge and went to his master's grave and sniffed mournfully. Finally this was observed, suspicion was aroused and the body of Golden Flower's husband was dug up. The false wife and her companion were condemned by the Inca, and burned to death. And at the Inca's command 'He is Here' was borne in triumph to the Temple of the Sun and was crowned with a golden crown."

During his stay in the land of the Inca descendants, Valderrama embraced every opportunity offered to study the language, romances and customs of the Indians, and after having obtained their confidence he was treated with every hospitable consideration.

THE BOOM IN MARRIAGE

By HELEN ROWLAND



A man will be able to see a girl as she really is.

"I PREDICT," said the Widow, looking as wise as a person with an impertinent retrousse nose can look, "that there is going to be a wonderful boom in the marriage market!"

"No!" exclaimed the bachelor, with a glance of alarm. "Why? Has the crop of leapyear engagements been so phenomenal?"

The Widow nodded affirmatively.

"And, besides," she remarked, "a man has to have SOMEWHERE to go evenings!"

"There is still the club," suggested the Bachelor, with faint hope.

"A little oasis that will pass out of existence as soon as the lockers are all emptied," the Widow prophesied, heartlessly. Just now the stolen joys of the 'reserve stock' may add a spice and piquancy to your club; but even a bachelor's prescience must tell him that it won't last forever"——

"And that the waters of prohibition will soon wash our one haven nice and clean and 'dry'!" groaned the Bachelor, with a wry face. "Oh, well, there is still the quiet little game of pool—and the poker party, and the cabaret. And all the theaters are still running. And there are still lots and lots of nice girls to call on and flirt with and"——

"That's just what I mean," burst in the Widow with a malicious gurgle of delight. "Lots and lots of nice girls will find prohibition a miraculous boon—a blessing in disguise—a first aid to matrimony! Lots and lots of nice girls who used to sit at home doing tatting and wondering if Prince Charming ever would come riding by, will suddenly find themselves floating on a wave of popularity, completely surrounded by Princes Charming, or walking up the white-ribboned aisle"——

"What on earth are you talking about?" interrupted the Bachelor impatiently.

"I hate to shatter your last hope," cooed the Widow.

"But DO you really think men will enjoy sitting up all night losing money at pool or poker, without—without the 'fortifications' and—and—libations which once sustained them? Poof!" and she snapped her glittering fingers. "Those silly old games were only a sort of excuse anyhow!"

"An 'excuse'—for what?" demanded the Bachelor, in blank amazement.

"Oh, for staying out late, and taking too much to—too much stimulant, and acquiring headache and going to the office next morning feeling like—like"——

"Like twins!" sighed the Bachelor reminiscently. "But the cabarets!" he pleaded. "Please leave us the lovely cabarets."

The Widow shook her head and laughed.

"Do you suppose," she replied, "that the 'cabaret beauties' will really seem beautiful and fascinating to a man, when he isn't looking at them through a rosy haze and the bottom of a wine glass? Men will at last be able to SEE straight, when they look at women! That's the lovely thing about prohibition!"

"What's 'LOVELY'—about prohibition?" protested the Bachelor bitterly.

"The fact that a man will be able to see a girl as she really is—and that a girl will, at last, be able to see a man as he really ought to be!"

"Ye gods!" exclaimed the Bachelor. "You don't imagine that will be a 'first-aid to matrimony,' do you? It's not what a man knows about a woman, but what he doesn't know, that fascinates him!"

"A man won't talk so much sweet sentimental nonsense as he used to," sighed the Widow a little regretfully. "But, at least, a girl will know that he means fully half of what he DOES say—and that it's love or dalliance or sentiment, and NOT wine, that is making 'the world go round.' And she'll know just how much of his brilliancy is real wit—and how much of it was stimulant, and how much of his extravagance is generosity and how much is folly"——

"And how much of his income was real money—and how much was 'brag' and imagination," groaned the Bachelor.

"And SOME day," pursued the Widow insistently, "after you have spent one dull evening at the club without a highball, and a stupid night at cards, without winning a cent, a flat evening looking at the cabaret 'beauties,' without getting a single thrill, you will go and call on a 'nice girl,' whom you have been neglecting for months and months'"——

"Oh, my prophetic soul!" murmured the Bachelor.

"And then you'll call on another," went on the Widow implacably, "and another, and another—until you'll finally find one who makes you comfortable and amuses you and lets you smoke and put your feet on the divan and throw your ashes on the floor, and feeds you solid food and flatters you and sympathizes with you"——

"Stop! Stop!" cried the Bachelor.

"And you'll go home and feel sorry for yourself," the Widow persisted relentlessly, "and sorrier and sorrier, and lonesomer and lonesomer and duller and duller"——

"For the love of humanity, stop!" pleaded the Bachelor, stuffing his fingers in his ears.

"And some nice, moonlight night you'll break through all the thick layers of resistance and barbed-wire intrenchments, that now surround what you call your heart—and find yourself PROPOSING to her!" finished the Widow triumphantly.

The Bachelor groaned.

"I know it!" he muttered. "I know it! Who started all this prohibition thing, anyhow? I'll bet it was a woman!"

"Oh, it will be the best thing in the world for you!" the Widow assured him cheeringly. "It will make you think twice before you marry once! Men won't pick out a wife as lightly and carelessly as they choose a dance partner. They won't expect to spend all their lives pursuing one kind of girl and then to marry the other kind. Marriage will be much safer and saner and happier—and divorce will probably become obsolete!"

"And engagements will grow on Christmas trees and fortunes will drop drown from airplanes and marriage certificates will be given away with each cup of tea, and it will rain kisses and weddings rings and lollipops! The woman's idea of the milennium!" scoffed the Bachelor bitterly.

"Yes!" bubbled the Widow. "Prohibition is the knell of that cynical soul, 'the confirmed bachelor,' who thought he could pass up love and drown his memories in a wine glass! There's going to be a wonderful boom in the marriage market—and Hymen will get YOU, if you don't watch out!"

WIDOW-CISMS.

In the game of love every girl would like to qualify for the amateur championship.

Every lover is a sentimental profiteer—a builder of aircastles, a promoter of dreams, an inventor of fairy tales and a magnate of imagination.

A man can no longer "mix" his libations; but he will go right on mixing his flirtations, and wondering why they produce such painful reactions.

Every Jack has his Jill—and every Ananias some day meets his Sapphira, and each fondly believes all the glittering fancies the other paints for him.

A woman will wear anything, from an ankle watch to a nose ring, if it happens to be fashionable; but when the tailors predict "radical changes" in men's styles, it merely means the men may consent to let them put an extra button on the coat sleeve—perhaps.

Through a Glass Darkly

"Him and mamma don't show it, maybe, but they're just pure gold, they are. They—they're just pure gold."

His hand lay over hers, quiescent. A waiter hovered in the distance. The gabble and laughter of tourists was suddenly remote.

"If the old gentleman only won't stir up a game tonight, Esther, we'll make a last evening of it on board, alrighty."

"I just told papa he—he couldn't drag you down there tonight, Gibraltar coming in sight and you knowing so much to describe about the places."

"I sure want to stick with you tonight, Esther. I—fact is, I just want to stick with you all of the time."

Her hand flew to her breast.

"Joe!"

"My little dearie—girlie—I want to steal you."

"Oh, Joe—you—you mustn't."

But he was on his feet suddenly and grasping his hat from the table.

"Gad," he cried, "there's the boat whistling three times. We got to do some tall sprinting, girlie. Look, the rest of them have all started down already."

"Oh, Joe! Mamma! Let's run. Lets."

Hand in hand and with the Hellenic swing of youth, they scuttled across the green turf. From the harbor, full of warning, came another blast.

* * * * * * * *

The quicksilver of madness runs through the veins of a moonlit night. Poets chew their pen ends and grope for meter. The Blessed Damosel leans out. Harlequin laughs in his tight sleeve and kicks up his heels in kinship with the world. As many maidens as there are in the world scent the perfumed garments of Romance as she rustles through the corridors of the night and sigh for or with their lovers.

Esther Lefkovitch sighed, too, but faintly, as if she would not break the spell. Before the approach of the Roumania the moon unrolled a strip of light, just as a pathway of carpet is unrolled before the feet of a bride. A hump of black, like the great silhouette of a kneeling camel, rose against the sky. Here and there at its knuckles lights twinkled. Along the silent deck couples crept out from corners, whispering, pointing in pantomime. A star shot down and died in its flight. Esther Lefkovitch followed it with eyes that were mellow to moistness.

"Esther, that you, child?"

"Mamma, how you scared me, sneaking up behind me so soft!"

"Always in a lonesome place like this on top deck I find you, Esther. Twice over this boat I've been, bringing you your heavy coat for the dampness. Here, put it on."

She slid into the garment, fastening it across the smooth V of her bared throat.

"For why, Esther, you should stay up here in the dark all alone, when downstairs the young folks got dancing and everybody is out on the lit-up decks, I don't know."

"I—I've just been alone a minute, mamma."

"Ja, because now the game begins. I guess, Esther, you think it's so nice on a big boat like this, the way you let that nix from Chicago come up here with you to such a lonesome spot."

"We came up to watch the Gibraltar, mamma. See, how plain it's getting out there already—that black thing. See!"

"I tell you between my husband, who leaves me alone every night to play cards, and"——

"He promised tonight he wouldn't, mamma."

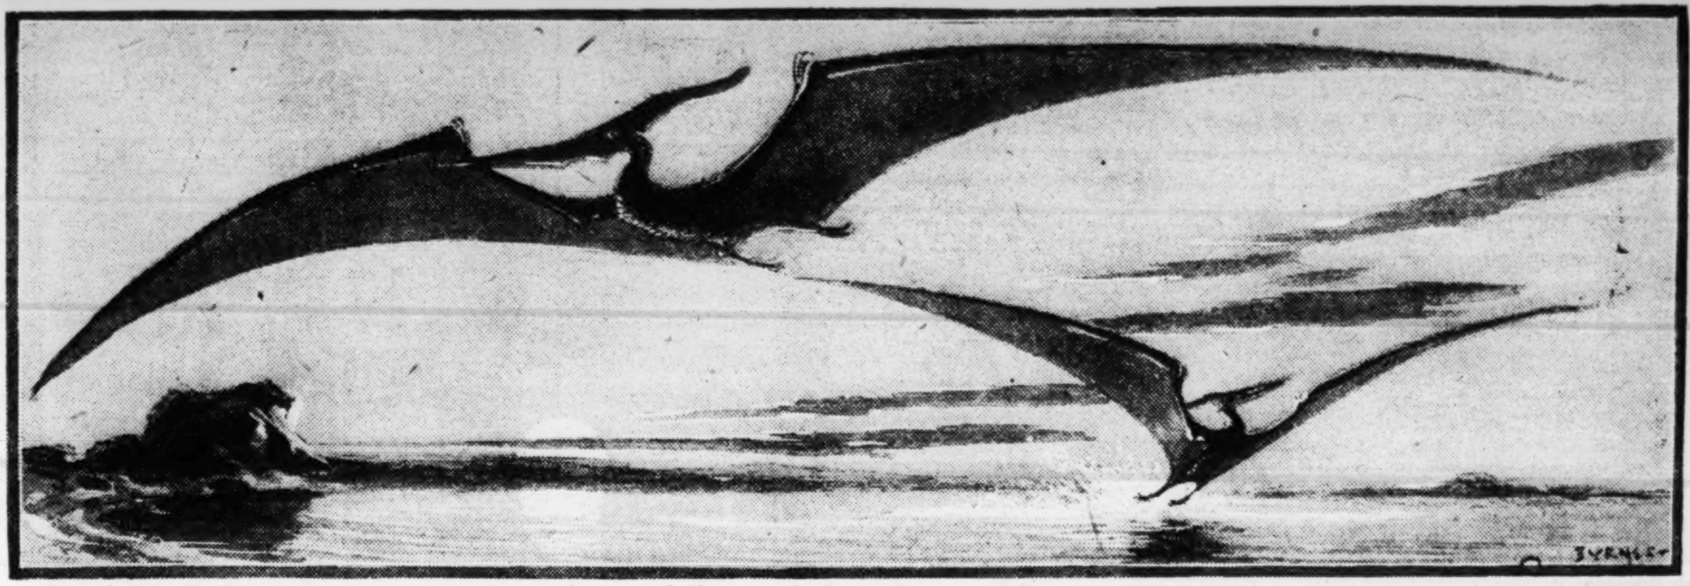
Chalk Beds of Kansas Yield Bones of Greatest Flying Reptile Ever Discovered



"Over the surface of the great inland sea, deep and clear and abounding in marine life, the mighty winged bird must have ranged." Drawing constructed from sketch supplied by Prof. Handel T. Martin, of the University of Kansas, discoverer of fossil remains of the strange pterodactyl.

Pteranodon, an extinct creature of the class known as pterodactyls, soared over great inland sea which 20,000,000 years ago covered Middle Western prairie states — Had wing stretch of twenty feet and its flying mechanism more closely resembled airplanes than that of any living bird—Head was of enormous size and jaws devoid of teeth — Body incredibly small :: ::

SEVERAL millions of years ago, approximately 20,000,000, to be relatively more exact, there winged through the air over what is now the flat, fertile grain fields of Western Missouri and Kansas, an extraordinary creature resembling a bat, but many, many times larger. It had a wing spread of full 20 feet and marvelous lifting powers and facilities for rapid flight, but possessed a body of incredibly small size, only about 10 to 12 inches in diameter. According to our ideas of form and shape, this reptile was ugly and repulsive, in a greater degree even than the hideous vampire bat. Still, according to certain scientists, the pteranodon, for such is the name of the reptile, was one of our ancestors.

In those remote days the Western prairie states were covered by a great inland sea, extending from the Gulf of Mexico through to the northern borders of the Dakotas, and further. The water was clear and teemed with marine life of infinite variety. That was many thousands of years before the Rocky Mountains had emerged from the earth's mass and projected themselves into the atmosphere. The world was comparatively young and living creatures had only shortly before commenced to come forth from the water and muck to dwell on land and in the air.

Denizens of the inland sea, which might be termed the Createaceous Ocean, because of the great chalk deposits it left behind, were among the most interesting of prehistoric ages. There were strange, wingless birds, great divers with long sharp teeth, standing five feet in height; huge saurians, similar in build and general outline to an alligator, that attained the length of 35 to 40 feet; monstrous sharks, giant turtles and numberless fish of stupendous dimensions. Hovering above all this turmoil of terrifying antediluvian life like an airplane over a field of carnage, was the wonderful flying reptile, pterodactyl.

The beds of chalk which remained when the vast inland sea receded, together with other rock formations, form the volumes containing the only surviving records of those interesting times. Today the scientist digs into the chalk and brings to light fossils and fragments from which he can reconstruct individual members of the community of primitive animal life. These fossil fields in the Middle West are the most fruitful in the world of data bearing on early dwellers on our planet. They have yielded more splendid specimens for museums than any other single part of the globe, and their hidden secrets have only begun to be told.

Among the recent fossil seekers in Kansas was Prof Handel T. Martin, curator of the Geological Museum of Kansas University. His work was systematically carried on, and with much labor. This effort aroused considerable amusement among farmers and other inhabitants of the Smoky River bottoms, who failed to see what profit could come from such delving. It would be much better, they thought, to dig in the soil and raise crops. For even if petrified bones were found, what good were they? Wheat and corn are of real value.

Nothing daunted, Prof. Martin continued his excavations, and lately was rewarded by finding the fossil remains of the pterodactyl. The skeleton of this great toothless flying reptile has been placed on exhibit in the American Museum of Natural History in New York and is doubtless the finest specimen of the kind thus far discovered. While the skeleton is incomplete, the missing parts, which science is familiar with through other discovered fragments, have been painted in realistic colors on the background against which the specimen is mounted. There is no other such skeleton in American museums, though the British Museum possesses one found by Prof. Martin several years ago.

In this strange flying reptile the little finger of man is first represented by the longest element of the great wing finger, while, singularly enough, all there is to show for the thumb and other fingers are rudimentary elements with claws attached for hanging from the ancient cliffs. The longest single bone of the wing, several specimens of which are in the Kansas University museum, measured 24 inches, exactly the length of the slender, scissor-like toothless under jaw, while the total length of the whole skull measures about 30 inches.

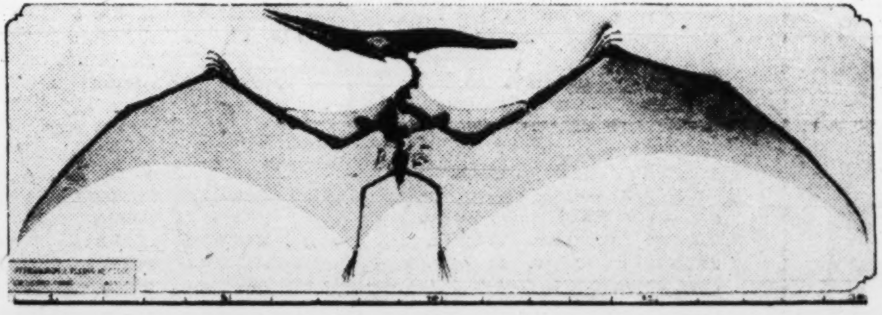
One of the most surprising features noted in looking over the skeleton of this highly specialized flying reptile is the remarkable development of the head and wings, as contrasted with the rest of the body. While the wings had a stretch of approximately 20 feet, it is doubtful if the body, from the shoulder to the root of the tail, measured more than 16 inches, with a diameter of perhaps 10 inches. This insignificant body would not have weighed more than 15 to 20 pounds. Think of it, a bird whose carcass was no larger than that of a turkey, having a wing extension of 30 feet. A man weighing 150 pounds, with arms as long in proportion to his weight of body as this creature's wings, would have arms each 150 feet long, from shoulder to finger tips. Carrying the comparison further, your 150-pound man would possess a head almost as large as a cathedral dome.

The heavy-appearing articulations at the end of each finger bone, were in reality light and thin-walled, built up internally with delicately constructed air cells, while the walls of the main shaft of each section were as thin as a single sheet of brown paper. These delicately built wing bones were probably connected with the breathing apparatus of the animal, thus forming of each section a veritable pneumatic, air-filled tube, giving great buoyancy in the water and lightness in the air to this strongly constructed framework of the gigantic airplane of the old createaceous period of millions of years ago. It is even possible that the creature could inflate this wind bag with a gas manufactured in its own lungs, which would enable it to float about in the atmosphere like a blimp.

In structure and general appearance the pterodactyl more closely resembled the common bat of today than any other living animal. Several interesting species of these reptiles are found in the Kansas chalk cliffs, ranging in size from the smallest nyctodactylus, with a stretch of wing of about four feet, to this gigantic one, the largest of the group, representatives of which are probably the greatest creatures ever carried by wings through the earth's atmosphere.

With the vast cataclysms of nature which resulted in the uplift of the Rocky Mountains and adjacent table land to the east, the consequent drainage of this inland sea left there countless thousands of animals and fishes stranded in the thick, oozy mud that has now turned into the chalk beds of Western Kansas, where the fossil hunter of today patiently searches out, and with infinite care collects, the material, bit by bit, finally to be assembled together for study in the great museums.

The wings were long and narrow and composed of thin, leathery membrane, like that of bats, but they were stretched along the extended fourth finger only. The pinions were doubtless adapted to soaring flight, like that of the albatross. In fact, the creature was so specialized along these lines that it must have been singularly awkward and ungainly on the earth Yet it must have come to land at times for egg-laying purposes. It is fairly well settled that none of these reptiles were mammals, all reproducing their species with eggs.



Photograph of assembled skeleton of flying reptile, probably 20,000,000 years old, in Museum of Natural History, New York.

How the pteranodon obtained its food is something of a problem, and one full of interest for the investigator and speculator. It was evidently a wide-ranging ocean flyer, for the skeletons are found in chalk and other marine formations, deposited in the open sea, often far from land. Over the surface of the great inland sea, deep and clear and abounding in marine life, the mighty-winged bird must have ranged, resorting to the far-distant shores as a base. It is possible that it was in some way equipped for diving and rising easily to the surface of the ocean. It is difficult, however, to you if I had known what goes on in a town like this, right on the boat where a young girl don't need to be ashamed where she looks, you would have stayed."

"Mamma, this isn't"——

"I don't think it is so nice, Mr. Danziger, since you been here before, you didn't first tell my daughter they go around in this place worse as in bathing suits at stylish summer resorts at home in America."

Mr. Lefkovitch cast a thoughtful squint after the group.

"I tell you, Danziger, there's a gold mine in this kind of a town for a smart fellow with a few dollars to invest."

"Wouldn't be surprised."

"If I was a young fellow like my son, Michie, right away in a town like this in a furnishing goods business I could make money."

"Wouldn't be surprised."

"Cheap rents and low expense! To sell pants to men who don't know anything about them ain't so hard as to sell them to men who know too much about them. I bet you, Danziger, with a few thousand dollars, two young fellows like you and my son, Michie, or his friend, Abe Katz, could make big money in a town like this."

"For your son, let me tell you, Aaron, right in New York, where you built up for yourself your own business, is good enough for him, too."

"Oh, look, mamma, please look! See the oxen teams pulling the sledges uphill."

"Ach, and Esther, see over there the embroidery shops. A whole string of them, like Mrs. Kron said there would be."

"No, no, mamma, please don't cross over there. We're all going up the mountainside in a little train, mamma, to see the scenery. Aren't we, Mr. Danziger?"

"You won't have time for shopping this time, Mrs. Lefkovitch, if you want to take that trip up the mountain and be back on the boat by 3."

"For scenery, Mr. Danziger, I got time when I got nothing else what is more important. I guess, Aaron, if I can buy linens here half so cheap as at home, you want yet I should go up on the mountain to look at scenery?"

"But, mamma, everybody goes up. See, they're all going toward the funicular. We didn't come all this distance to look at linens. Honest, if you're going to start that way, I—I just wish I hadn't come."

"Ach, come, Bertha; if the child wants we should look at the scenery, what's the difference if you got to pay a little more for such linens back in America?"

"You always, Aaron, in front of company got big ways. I tell you when a man loses to cards four hundred and"——

"Mamma!"

——"eighty dollars, his wife has got to save it somewhere. I just want you should look across there, Aaron. I see plenty of the ladies from the boat already over there buying linens what ain't got time for scenery."

"But, mamma"——

"Don't worry your mamma no more to go up there, Esther. All right, Bertha; me and you will stay down off the mountain by the embroideries. Esther, you and Danziger go up the funicular and look around. I tell you I'm ready for those fellows over there in the shops. Before I came away from home, in every language I learned the money. I just want that one of them fellows should try to get me mixed up. You and Esther go on up, Danziger."

"Good. I'll show her the sights alrighty."

"Please take care, Mr. Danziger, that you you get her back on the boat in plenty time. Me and her papa ain't looking for worries."

"I'll bring her back with bells on, Mrs. Lefkovitch."

"Come, Aaron. See that second store over there with the centerpiece hung in front; first I want to try in there. If they ask you $5 for it, you should offer them 75 cents, Simon, Mrs. Kron says"——

Toward the straggling line of tourists and the cobbled street that wound languidly upward to the funicular station, Miss Esther Lefkovitch turned her shining face, linked her arm in Mr. Danziger's proffered one, smiled and could not still the tremolo of her heart.

Where motor cars and the rubber heels of civilization fear to tread, the European cafe has no fear.

Two thousand feet above the harbor, the township reduced by distance to the proportions of a man's palm, atop an untamed mountain, whose shaggy sides were matted with patriarchal growth, the Cosmopolitan Cafe, English speaking, marble-topped, awninged, waitered and in wait for tourists, rose like an observatory.

En tete-a-tete, at one of the marble-topped tables, well away from the gabble of the Roumania's passenger list, the thousand scents of a thousand gardens in their nostrils, Mr. Joe Danziger and Miss Esther Lefkovitch breathed deep and leaned each to the other, as if Maderia were a desert and the gardens bloomed each within the other's eyes.

"I just never thought anything could be so perfect as being up here. For a girl like me that's never traveled anywhere before, it—it's just too perfect."

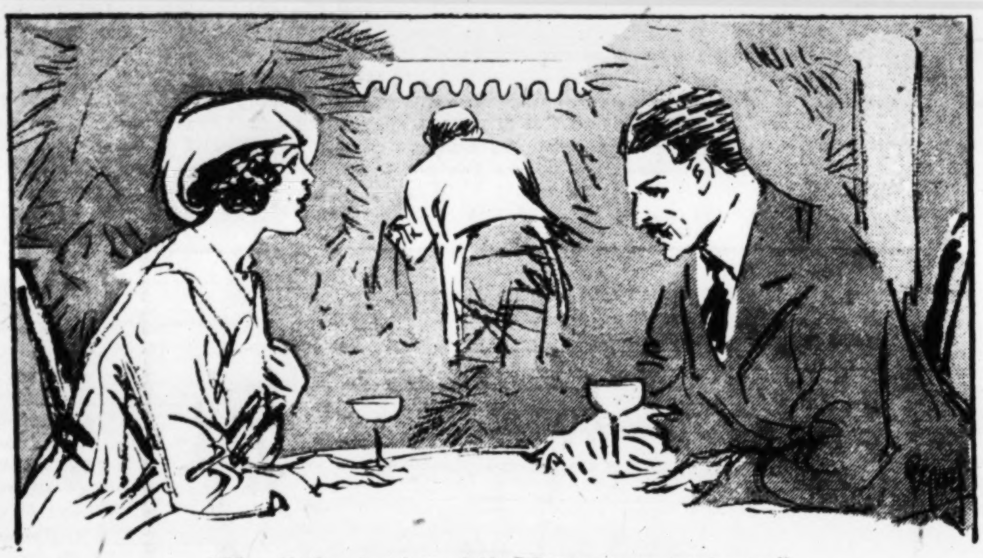
"Didn't I tell you! Just you wait, girlie, till we get further along on this trip. I'm going to open those pretty black eyes of yours."

"And that ride up the mountain straight through the clouds—wasn't it just—well, I don't know, but just wasn't it?"

"I was too busy looking at you and your cute little, tan little face and your big eyes and your red little lips to have any time for scenery—Esther."

"Oh, Mr. Danz"——

"No, now; what did you promise me?"



"My little dearie—girlie—I want to steal you."

"Joe," she said, shyly, the word floating like a petal off her lips.

"That's better," he said, so sententiously that she closed her eyes. "That's better, girlie. But just you wait, Esther, until I steer you through the Italian lakes, if you think this is scenery."

"Oh, Mr. Danz—Joe, really are you going to change your ticket and go with us?"

Stars came out in her eyes, addling her glance.

He drained his glass of dark Spanish wine.

"Girlie," he said, with a new sotto quality in his voice, "if you was going all the way to hold a post mortem over the Dead Sea, I'd go with you."

Crimson was her face.

"Now you're talking just like the boys at home do, Joe. And ever since I came on this trip and met you—and all, it just seems to me like I'm somebody else in a dream or something. All the boys in my crowd at home are—are just regular fellows, and you—you're different, Joe. You mustn't jolly me."

"Look," he said, reaching for her wrist, holding it and sending into her dark glance the dark intensity of his own, "do I look like a fellow who's jollying, Esther?"

"Oh, Joe!"

Beneath the black, close-clipped hedge of mustache his lips quivered, then settled into a straight line.

"Do I?"

"N-no, Joe."

"I—I'm just afraid to let myself go for fear it's you who's doing the jollying, Esther. What about this fellow back in New York that owns the haberdasher store? From what the old folks say, he's head over heels himself, ain't he, girl?"

"Abe Katz? Ow, he—he's just a good friend, Joe. Like I always say, I—I want to travel first and meet a new crowd. I—aw, he's nothing but a good friend, Joe. Him and my brother, they"——

"Then you ain't stringing me along, girlie?"

"Oh, Joe, I—no—you"——

"A fellow that's knocked about like I have, girlie, and seen as many of them as I have in every country on the globe, don't make a mistake about it when he does finally get hit. That first day I seen you on deck, girlie, with your hair blowing loose like that, I knew I was hit."

She looked down the mountainside and into the riot of tree tops.

"You—you're the greatest fellow, Joe."

"And you're the greatest girl."

All the nerves of her were singing.

"Oh, Joe—oh—let go my hand. Joe, you you mustn't. You—you hurt. Quit!"

"Gad, where did you get that strength in your fingers, girl?"

"See, how strong! My brother Michie is always teaching me tomboy tricks like that at home."

"You're all right, Esther."

"You—you think so?"

"I know so. You're the alrightest I ever knew, and that's saying some."

"Oh, Joe!"

"Queen of this here mountain, that's what you are."

This was the chrism of love anointing her. She bowed her head.

"I just wish mamma could have heard you say that, Joe. It was beautiful."

"Your mamma, Esther, I'm afraid she is down on me."

"Oh, you mustn't mind her, Joe, or papa either. He"——

"Why, the old gentleman is just the finest sport I ever met. And don't think, little girl, that I don't understand a lady like your mamma. Sure I do. She is a great old lady, she is. Give me the plain-speaking ones every time."

"She doesn't mean a word she says, Joe. You mustn't feel hard toward her; that's just her way."

"She's a fine old lady, all right, but she's got me dead wrong. Why, honest to God, Esther, as I sit here, if it wasn't that I'd like to see your old gentleman win back them few bones, I wouldn't have touched another card after the first game."

"I know that, Joe. That's just what I keep telling mamma."

"You sweet little thing, you—taking up for me like that."

"I just keep telling her that."

"She's got me down wrong for a sport. Why, true as I sit here, girlie, if my business didn't carry me like this all over the world, I could settle down in a good commercial town with a boy like that brother of yours that your father is trying to find a partner for, make a go of the business and live quiet the rest of my days. That's the kind of a hairpin I am."

"Oh, Joe, you—you will just love Michie when you see him. One great boy, if there ever was one, and business like papa to his finger tips. You and him in a little business together, say, wouldn't that be great! Just look at papa—how—how little he started, way down on the East Side and—and look at his store now—so big and all."

"I'm not much of a fellow to boost myself, Esther, but with a young fellow like that to help me push a business, I could make a go of almost anything. I'm the kind of fellow that has made easy all my life and spends just as easy. A dollar doesn't look as big to me as a dime to lots of fellows. Get me?"

"Yes."

"Just like I can win at cards easy, I can make easy money on any business proposition I put my mind to. Say, right now I'm making three times what any fellow in my line is making. But I'm getting sick of this country-to-country business, Esther. There's money in it, but I'm just about ready to get me a good partner, settle down and get me a little—get me a home! Get me, Esther? A home is what I want."

"Yes, Joe."

"Get me a partner and settle down."

"A fellow like you would just be the making of a boy like my brother Michie. He's such a kid yet, and two years older than me, too. But he's been under papa's thumb in the business too long. A boy like him, that never would go to school, gets into business early. What he needs now is to get out and hustle for himself in a business that isn't already made. That's what I always say—papa ought to set Michie up for himself."

"Sure thing! Say, I guess a man like your papa could set his son up in business with twenty or thirty thousand and not feel it, eh?"

"That's what Michie says, but pa's slow about it."

"Your brother's got the right idea, all right; why, I bet if your papa had three sons he could set them up in business and not feel it, eh? I know a thing or two about the money that's been made in the men's clothing business the last 15 years."

"Pa—pa is right rich, I guess."

"And a grand old man if there ever was one."

"He sure is, and self-made, too. Honest, it's just like a story, the way he started—struggling and making his way peddling, and then when he married mamma, right from the East Side, too, the two of them starting the little store together, the two of them pushing through all the dirt of the East Side and coming out of it so fine and all. Shows how goodness can grow out of all that filth down there, don't it, Joe?"

"It's grand, Esther."

When Wifie Hears About the Income Tax

Some conversations in homes of differing degrees of wealth which are not as imaginary as they appear—But no one ever did love to pay taxes, anyway :: :: ::

IN ONE of the finest of West End homes, lately, a war and peace profiteer sat at the library table with wrinkled brows. Across from him was his wife.

"There's nothing for me to do," said the man, "but go to the bank and make a loan. I've got to pay this infernal income tax by the first of March, and I simply haven't got the cash—that's the truth of the matter."

"How much is it?" languidly asked the wife.

"Don't faint—it's $227,754.92," was the answer.

"What!" almost shrieked the woman. "Say it again!"

The sum was repeated.

"That's simply outrageous—for the Government to take all that money from one family! That shows how wasteful you Democrats have been. But you've made lots of money this last year. Where's it all gone?"

"We've been living up pretty close to our income, I guess. You know what it cost to buy and furnish this home, and all that platinum and diamond stuff you bought at the jeweler's came rather high. Counting your new fur coat, I'll bet you haven't spent less than $20,000 on clothes this last year. There was Palm Beach last winter and in summer that place we had on Long Island dug pretty deep into the bank roll—what with all the entertaining we did. We spent it, all right, I guess."

"Of course—and I suppose you would like to have me get along without anything to wear, and never go any place, or see anyone, just so you could hand over your income to those grafters in Washington. One would think, from the tax you have to pay, that we had an income of two million a year."

"The man with two million a year," responded the husband, "pays a bigger tax, in proportion, than I do."

"That's all right," said the wife, "give us the two million a year and we'll pay the tax, too—and without any kicking."

Coming home from the concert, in an almost new limousine of the most expensive make, was the man who did a phenomenal business in square bolts during the war. His wife was almost asleep when he remarked:

"Josie, you better let me have one of those $10,000 Liberty Bonds tomorrow so I can arrange to pay my income tax before the first of March. It figures up bigger than I thought."

"One of my bonds—how's that?"

"Our bank balance is rather low, just now. My lawyer made up my income return this afternoon, and it comes to $22,673.24. One of your bonds will just"——

"But where's all the money gone?"

"Dunno, exactly, but this car cost over ten thousand. Then we did quite a bit of traveling last summer, you remember; you've spent an awful lot on the girls to make them popular, and you would buy those Oriental rugs—remember that? The money goes, that's all."

"Of course—and I suppose you would like to have me and the girls get along without anything to wear, and never go any place, or see anyone, just so you could hand over your income to those grafters in Washington. One would think, from the tax you have to pay, that we had an income of five hundred thousand a year."

"The man with five hundred thousand a year," responded the husband, "pays a bigger tax in proportion than I do."

"That's all right," said the wife, "give us the five hundred thousand and we'll pay the tax, too—and without any kicking."

The jury had just brought in a verdict for the defendant, and his attorney, one of the rising, successful lawyers of St. Louis, hurried home to tell his wife.

"That means an extra thousand dollar fee," he jubilantly explained. "Wish I had the money right now. It would help pay our income tax. By the way, do you suppose your father would help us out a bit so we can settle with Uncle Sam on the first of March? That's when it is due."

"How much is the tax?" the wife inquired.

"A little over $3000," came the response.

"Good heavens! Why?" inquired the wife.

"That is what it figures up, according to the schedule. You know I have had an unusually good year's business."

"But where's all the money gone?"

"Well, you know, to get law business I had to join some expensive clubs. Really an investment, you know. Then we had to entertain a lot, 'cause that helps business, too. I don't like to mention it, but your clothes, and that trip to California, and that stuff you bought for the dining room—well, it amounts to a good deal," was the explanation.

"Of course—and I suppose you would like to have me get along without anything to wear, and never go any place, or see anyone, just so you could hand over your income to those grafters in Washington. One would think, from the tax you have to pay, that we had an income of a hundred thousand a year."

"The man with a hundred thousand," responded the husband, "pays a bigger tax, in proportion, than I do."

"That's all right," said the wife. "Give us the hundred-thousand-dollar income and we will pay the tax, too—and without any kicking."

* * *

He was young to be the general manager of a branch factory, but even his mother-in-law admitted he had ability. At his age a salary of $10,000 a year was indeed something to be proud of. This evening he was not exactly happy.

"You've got a little money in the savings bank, haven't you?" he inquired of his wife.

"Not now," came the answer. "I knew you couldn't afford that beaded handbag I need, so today I took the $200 out of the Mississippi Valley and bought it. Why?"

"Thought I'd like to borrow it for a couple of weeks or so," answered the husband. "Got to pay the income tax next week, you know."

"How much is that?"

"A little under six hundred," was the answer.

"Six hundred dollars! What an outrage! But why are you so short? You earn a big salary."

"Well, I do, that's the truth. But it seems to cost us an awful lot to live. You wanted this apartment, however, because it is new and has elevator service. The rent, you must admit, is just highway robbery. You like nice clothes, too, and those bridge parties of yours, in the course of a year, amount to a pretty penny. I'll admit I don't need that motor boat on the river, and I might play golf just as well in Forest Park as at that expensive club out on the Clayton road. And I suppose we might have taken a cheaper vacation than going up into the Canadian Rockies and spending $50 a day on hotels, auto rides, guides and railroads. However, the money's gone. Next year"——

"Of course—and I suppose you would like to have me get along without anything to wear, and never go any place, or see anyone, just so you could hand over your income to those grafters in Washington. One would think, from the tax you have to pay, that we had an income of $25,000 a year."

"The man with $25,000 a year," responded the husband, "pays a bigger tax, in proportion, than I do."

"That's all right," said the wife; "give us the twenty-five thousand a year and we will pay the tax, too—and without any kicking."

* * *

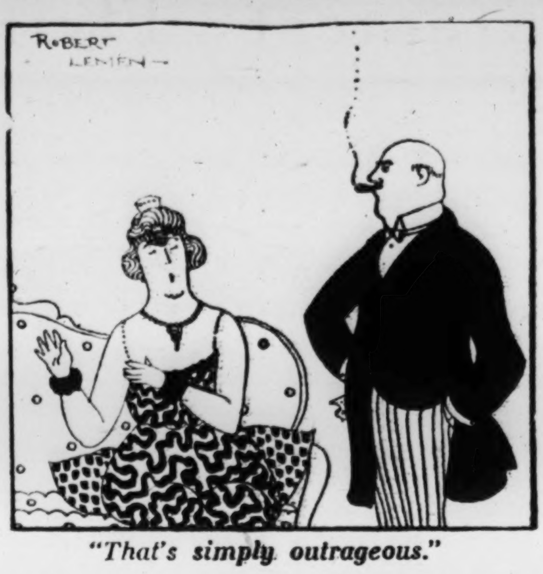
"The best draftsman in the engineer's division" of the L., K. & C. Railroad came home to his wife and children a trifle late for supper.

"Had to remain and fill out my income tax blank," he said, after hanging up his hat and coat.

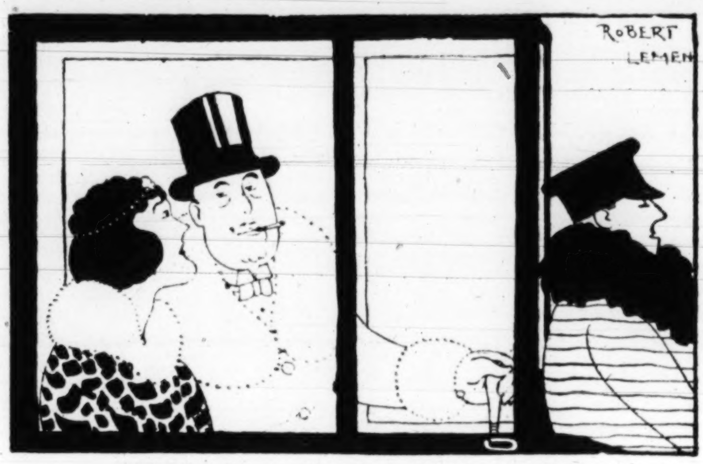
"Is it much?" inquired his wife.

"Well, it's a-plenty," he remarked. "By the way, its got to be paid by the first of March. Would you mind waiting a week or two for that new waist? I know its costs you a lot to run the house, and you deserve a whole new wardrobe, but I'd like to get that tax off my mind first. Would you mind?"

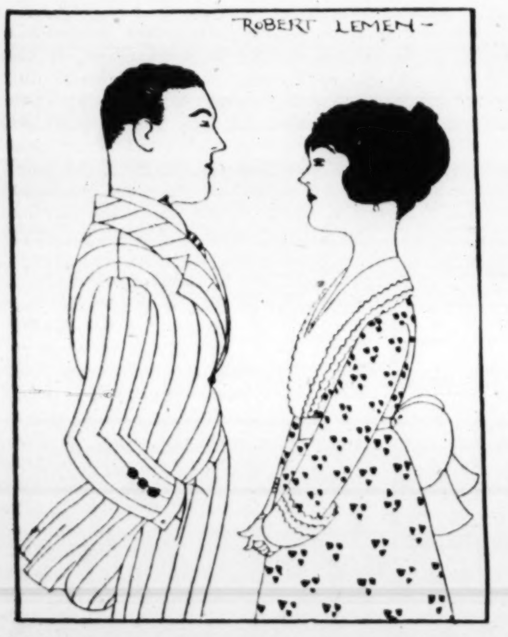
"That's all right," was the quiet answer. "If that's our share of paying for the war, go ahead and square up. I can wait."



"That's simply outrageous."



"One of my bonds—how's that?"



"If that's our share of paying for the war go ahead and square up."

see how the mechanics of its construction would allow it to perform so readily, and it may have simply patrolled the air, snapping at such animals as might rise to the surface or leap above it, into reach, without actually coming down into the water.

The latter theory is given color by the long, pointed outline of the head. There may have been a beak, similar to that of the crane or pelican, with which to seize its prey. Such guesses as these are the best that can be given until the mechanics of the creature's flight have been more thoroughly worked out by the scientists. Certain it was, however, that none of the animals of the past which depended upon flight for protection, had better equipment than this one. One can conceive its circling the globe, or taking one-day jaunts which would put to shame the lengthiest flights of modern airmen.

A careful investigation of the mechanical arrangements of the pteranodon in the light of modern aeronautical knowledge would yield most interesting results, and in turn, it seems altogether probable that such a research would throw some light on the more practical problems of aeronautics, for this pterodactyl, so far as it can be judged, approached much nearer to the airplane in structure and principles of flight than any of the birds. So it may happen that one of the oldest obtainable bits of knowledge may apply aptly to the newest science, and furnish the clew which will stabilize aerial navigation. Such a development might make the Kansas farmers, who scorned Prof. Martin's digging into the clay cliffs for fossils, change their views entirely regarding "those worthless stones."

morrow and I get you an Eyetalian policeman to tell your troubles to."

"I'd like to see once Abe Katz do to you tricks like that, Esther. There's a young man for you—I always say could learn the whole world manners."

"Come, Danziger, I play you for no stakes, just a little game of freezeout, eh? No stakes, eh?"

"But, papa, Mr. Danziger and I were going up on top deck this morning and watch Madeira till we land."

"Ach, no, Esther; like a good girl you stay and watch it by mamma a little, eh? See, out there already, how big the land gets. Stay by mamma and in half an hour we be up again, eh, Danziger? A little freeze out! No stakes, Bertha; no stakes!"

"Don't make out of me a fool, Aaron; it only makes me madder."

"See, Danziger, what a henpecker of a little wife I got."

Mr. Danziger placed a pat affectionately between the older man's shoulder blades.

"Your old gentleman here is surely a card, Mrs. Lefkovitch. Hope to die if in the 17 times I've crossed I've struck a character that can match up to him."

"For you, Mr. Danziger, two cards I guess he is with 480"——

"Mamma!"

"See, Mrs. Lefkovitch, how your daughter takes up for me."

"Come, Danziger! Esther, you stay here by mamma a little."

"Don't be so considerate of me all of a sudden, Aaron. Enough by myself I've sat on this boat."

"Come, Danziger."

"Aw, papa!"

"Never mind, Miss Esther; when we land I'm going to take you riding up the funicular at Funchal and show you the scenery of your life. They're nifty little islands, the Madeiras. I've been right through them clear to the Canaries."

"Come, Danziger, and no stakes."

"Now, Mrs. Lefkovitch, you just wait and see if he don't win the spades right off the cards. Coming, Lefkovitch, coming."

And they were off arm in arm down the well-washed, luxuriously wide deck, past the lines of steamer chairs pointed together with an endless chain of gossip, occupants tilted backward until the soles stood upright and the mind reclined.

Left there and standing beside her recumbent parent, Miss Lefkovitch cast down upon her a glance that wavered with tears.

"Honest, mamma, you—you're just the limit."

"The limit I am, am I, because a nix of a young man nobody knows who he is, can't come along and pull the wool over my eyes like he can over my daughter's and her papa's."

"He's one of the swellest fellows on this boat, that's what he is, if you want to know it. Everybody knows that he knows all the swells of Chicago, the Bambergers and all of them."

"Such talk don't go with me. So do I know all the swells of New York, the Felsenthals and Schimms, when I see them ride on Fifth avenue in their automobiles and see in the newspapers the Van Rippens' pictures."

"You and you old fogy ideas don't—don't understand, mamma."

"I tell you, Esther, sometimes I'm glad I am an old fogy, when I see where all your fine ideas gets us. You wanted to come to Europe and we came. Since papa can afford to do what he likes and your brother Michie is old enough to watch the business, I don't want I should deprive my daughter of anything what she wants, but I tell you, Esther, if I was a young girl with a young man like Abe"——

"Mamma, please!"

"I mean what I say. You thought on this trip to Europe such fine new people you could meet. But not one boy on this boat have I seen what can stand up for a minute by Abe Katz. I tell you, Esther, even in the night when I lay down in that hot bunk of mine, how that boy's face comes right in front of me the way he looked at you from the pier when this boat sailed off. I tell you, just with his whole face he was in love."

"Oh, I'm—I'm not saying anything against Abe, am I, mamma? What—what do you keep bringing him up for?"

"Because I got eyes what see. Because I got eyes what see if you go the whole world over, another boy like Abe you won't find. A fine young business man that would treat you like a queen. I tell you, Esther, the quicker you get such nonsense as meeting the swells on a trip to Europe out of your head, the better. Abe maybe ain't so swell, but all I ever heard you could say against him was his big ears and"——

"Mamma, please don't keep harping on—on him."

"I ain't, Esther, I ain't. Like your pap says, I should be the last one ever to force my children to get married. But take my word, Esther; the best thing what can happen to you on this trip is you should write him to meet us in Paris like he wants you should. I tell you, Esther, if you can make up your mind to want him bad enough to ask him to meet us in Paris, that, I say, is the best thing what can happen on this trip."

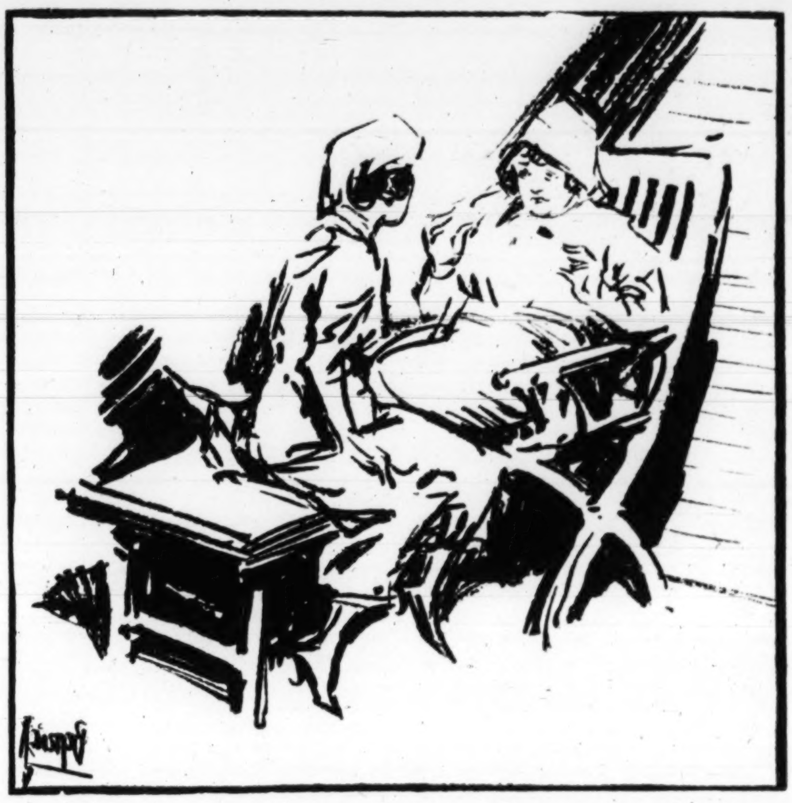
"Oh, mamma, you—you make me so mad. If I—if I want to write to Abe to meet us in Europe, I—I don't need you to always keep telling me about it. I—I came away to—to get away from that crowd of boys at home. I"——

"To pick up with such sporty kind of men like this Danziger from Chicago, I guess. I tell you, Esther, I think"——

"I can't help what you think, mamma. Papa and I like him alrighty. He's been all over. He knows more about the world than you and papa and Abe and me put together. He's going to show us Switzerland and the Riviera if he can change his ticket."

"I"——

"And if you want to know it, I—I like him. I like him whether you like him or not. Maybe if you and papa would—would leave me alone with him for a minute, he—he might get to like me, too. I—I like him—so there! I just do."



"If you want to know it, I—I like him—so there!"

Her voice slipped upward and she sat down hard and suddenly on the extension of the mother's steamer chair, her lips quivering as if wounded and her eyes with a hint of tears in them turned away from the mirth of the promenade deck.

"If you want to know it, I—I like him—so there!"

Under the eaves of the steamer hood Mrs. Lefkovitch's face crumpled into incredulity.

"Esther, you! A little sporty nix like him, what travels more as he attends to business. That's what I need yet, my daughter what could have a man like Abe"——

"You got to quit calling him a nix, mamma. He's just a prince, that's what he is. Papa says he spends more money in one day on this boat than all the other cheap skate fellows put together. Papa saw him with his own eyes give away a $5 gold piece to a poor sick fellow in the steerage."

"Ja, I know, I know. But I never in my life thought much"——

"He'd let cards alone pretty quick, let me tell you, mamma, if all the cheap skates on this boat who lost their few dollars that first night wouldn't always be after him trying to win them back."

"Four hundred and eighty"——

"Look, mamma, look! Oh, mamma, we—we—we've been missing it. Oh! Oh!"

In sudden proximity, green as sward and as if a volcanic shudder had spewed it up through the sea, the Isle of Madeira, lipped by waves and under the luscious kiss of a southern sun, lay with its fertile flanks to seaward. Villages, toy size, perched on the slopes in the attitude of slipping off. Vineyards and geometric truck gardens lay to the sun. In the background a mountain lost its head in mist.

"Oh, mamma, isn't it—isn't it gorgeous?"

"Ja. And you say, Esther, in Madeira is where we get the hand embroidery so cheap?"

"Yes, yes; and see, mamma, that darling little white town."

"Ach, how I wish my boy Michie could see it with me. I tell you a mother ain't got much pleasure if"——

"See, mamma, see the beautiful way the ocean sends the waves running up on the banks."

"I tell you, Esther, and please God some day you'll need them, such a relief it would be to me if I could get you sheets and pillow cases here already made up. That Mrs. Kron from Milwaukee, who is on this boat, says she got all her daughter's trousseau right here on"——

"Oh, mamma, mamma, see that town around the bend—look how big! I bet that's Funchal. Look, mamma, just around those beautiful hills."

"Sheets and pillow cases already"——

But her daughter was off toward the captain's bridge, a stiff breeze lashing her skirts back against her body, chin tilted, hat clutched and lithesome limbs outlined. A cloud of flying fish rose off the water, piloting the boat landward. Beyond the bestirred deck, its chatter and observations mingling, and far and beyond the approaching city which nestled in the curving arm of the harbor, the purple mountain faded into cloud.

Out in the harbor the white ship Roumania cast anchor for want of a quay, and sent rowboats of sight-seeing cargoes cutting across the quiet water, natives naked and diving for pennies in their wake. Then a more or less difficult landing at the foot of a steep-sided dock, up a perpendicular ladder of stone steps and into the sun-and-shadow pocked streets of Funchal.

Mrs. Lefkovitch grasped her husband's coat sleeve, steadying herself with some difficulty. Past her streamed the Roumania's passenger list, Baedekered, sun-goggled and loving the land.

"Aaron, like my legs would wobble right off, that's how I feel."

"Now, now, Bertha, I ain't so steady myself, if you hang on me like that."

"No, but them three rough days when we first started, you could hang on me, I tell you. When my legs wasn't even so steady as they are now."

Trees closed over them, cacti and the heavy fronds of palms.

"Mamma—papa! Just see. Isn't it just perfect? Oh, Mr. Danziger, no wonder you raved and raved about Madeira."

"Just wait if you think this is going some, Miss Esther. Wait until we go up the mountainside on the funicular and come down on sledges."

"Whew, give me my fan out of your pocket, Aaron. I don't want to say nothing right in the start, but I tell you I ain't stuck on the smells here. Mrs. Kron and her husband was right to stay on the ship if"——

"Mamma!"

"Oh, come now, Mrs. Lefkovitch, the smell isn't so bad."

"There's nobody, Mr. Danziger, can tell me better as my own nose what I smell."

"Mamma!"

"There's no use talking, Miss Esther; your mother don't think much of us Chicago boys. She's all to the New York."

"It ain't Chicago I don't think so much of, Mr. Danziger; I never blame the jug for what comes out of it."

"Ouch! Take that one with you," cried Mr. Danziger, dodging an imaginary blow.

"And maybe, Mr. Danziger, since you say it, we got right in New York as fine boys as"——

"Ach, Danziger, my old lady likes to have her little fuss with everybody. I'm glad enough for a while it should be you instead of me. Like my son, Michie, back home in New York, says, her bite is worse than her bark. I got a fine boy back home, Danziger. But always when he wants to tease his mamma a little, that's what he says to her."

Laughter, two large dimples and the crow's feet of amiability crept into Mr. Danziger's face, and he flung one arm along Mr. Lefkovitch's stooped shoulders.

"You got a mighty fine lady for a wife just the same, Lefkovitch—a mighty fine lady."

"See, see, mamma, there go some of the Portuguese who live here, right past you."

A group of native riff-raff, bare limbed and their backs still glistening from the dive, scuttled past.

"Don't look, Esther; I feel ashamed enough. I tell

Plowing and harrowing forty-five acres a day on the Sherman farm.

The Middle West's Largest Farm, 40 Square Miles, Succumbs to the "Hired Help" Problem

Great Kansas property conducted with efficiency of modern department store — Thousands of hogs and cattle produced and fattened for market annually — Equipment includes private telephone exchange, electric lighting and power plant and hot and cold baths :: ::

THE last of the big Kansas ranches and one of the largest single bodies of land under one ownership in all the country east of the Rockies, is to be broken up. It is to be sold in small tracts for individual farmers. With its passing goes the last of the "cowpunchers" of Kansas.

There are many large grazing bodies of land in Texas, and a few in Western Oklahoma, still intact, but few, if any, of these are highly cultivated, as was the big Sherman ranch in Ellsworth County, Kan. This property was brought to as high a state of cultivation as any farm land in the West. It comprises a little more than 25,000 acres, some of it as rich land as lies out of doors. It is the largest body of cultivated land under one continuous line of fence in the United States.

The property lies in almost a square in the southwest corner of Ellsworth County. It contains slightly more than 40 square miles. Its greatest length is 11 miles and its extreme width is seven miles. The Smoky Hill River, one of the streams which form the Kaw at Junction City, rises just west of the ranch and traverses it from east to west. There are five streams of continuous flow emptying into the Smoky Hill within the ranch. There is a constant water supply and a large amount of timber. Some of the streams come from springs on the ranch, flow 12 or 15 miles by reason of the crooked courses, and empty into the larger river, all within the estate's confines.

For purposes of administration the ranch is separated into eight divisions. From headquarters, near Crawford, there is a private telephone system connecting all divisions and with a private line to Geneseo, 10 miles away, where it links up with the telephone world. One may talk from the ranch stations to New York, and there are frequent long-distance conversations between M. M. Sherman, manager and part owner, with the partners living in the East. The owners are John P. Lapham and Lewis H. Lapham of New York, F. H. Rockwell of Warren, Pa., and Mr. Sherman.

Until the Mexican revolution broke out he was also manager of a ranch of more than a million acres of grazing land in Mexico, from which came most of the cattle fed on the Kansas ranch. Since the downfall of Diaz the syndicate does not know whether it has a ranch in Mexico or not and the members feel quite certain that none of the 100,000 head of cattle on the Mexican property remains.

The Kansas ranch was started in the early nineties because the owners felt that to make the most profit from the Mexican cattle they should produce the feed needed to put them into condition for the market. The beginning of the ranch was 300 acres of rented land and in 1897 the purchase of the property, now combined, was begun and carried on for about two years. There is something over 8000 acres of alfalfa alone on the ranch. Other crops are corn, wheat, oats, kaffir and cane and some prairie hay. The rough areas are maintained for grazing, but nearly all the land is in high state of cultivation.

Until a few years ago the ranch maintained horse and mule barns to accommodate the 1000 animals needed for handling work on the big farm. Now the work animals are comparatively few, most of the heavy work being done by tractors and motor cars, trucks being used for transportation. From two to three hundred men are required to carry on the farm work, and 200 are kept on the payroll throughout the year. During the summer 100 additional hands are added for general farm operations and several hundred more are put on temporarily for the wheat harvest and hay cutting.

There are many men with families on the ranch. The women help cook and look after the living quarters of the men. While the general workmen do not have rooms to themselves, they have large reading rooms, big dormitories and bathrooms with tub and shower baths. Hot and cold running water is supplied every evening and all day on Sunday. Power laundries are provided for the clothing of the men.

In recent years the ranch has devoted a great deal of attention to raising hogs, since its supply of cheap cattle was cut off. Porkers are produced by the thousand and many hundreds more are purchased to fatten on the feeds grown. One important discovery in the feeding of stock is credited to M. M. Sherman. He invented and built the first kaffir mill in the country. Kaffir is a sorghum, growing something like corn, with a heavy stalk and leaves. Mr. Sherman noticed that the hogs and cattle readily ate the leaves and the grain tops of the kaffir, but would leave the heavy stalks on the ground. This seemed to be a waste and he began a series of experiments which later developed into a kaffir mill which tears the stalks of the plant to pieces, grinds them exceedingly fine—to about the texture and consistency of bran. This is fed with alfalfa hay and cottonseed meal and sometimes with corn and is the entire fattening ration of the hogs shipped from the ranch. It is not infrequent that the Sherman ranch hogs top the market at the Kansas City stockyards.

Home of the manager of forty square miles of farm land, all under fence.

The ranch is run like a department store. Each division has a superintendent. During the winter months these superintendents meet with the manager at headquarters and plans for the crop year are laid out. The detailed program is written out and a copy filed at general headquarters and at each division. These plans show what is to be done with every field; the number of acres in each field; the kind of soil; what was planted the year before and the amount of the harvest.

The superintendent assigns his men to the work each morning. At night he makes a detailed report of the activities of each man during the day and mails the report to the general headquarters, where the books are kept. A man may spend a certain number of hours chopping wood for the kitchen stove. His wages are known and a certain part of the day's pay is charged against the woodpile and the woodpile is credited with a certain amount of wood. The exact number of hours spent in each field, the work done, the machinery used and the teams required are all charged against that field, as is also the seed. At the end of the crop season, when the harvest is known, the field is credited with what is produced.

In this way it has been possible to raise the efficiency of the ranch from a production standpoint. Every field has been tried out with the different crops grown and it is possible to determine what any particular field is best suited to by a complete record of its production and cost. The tests have been carried on for years, until every field was producing the crop the soil was most congenial to and which

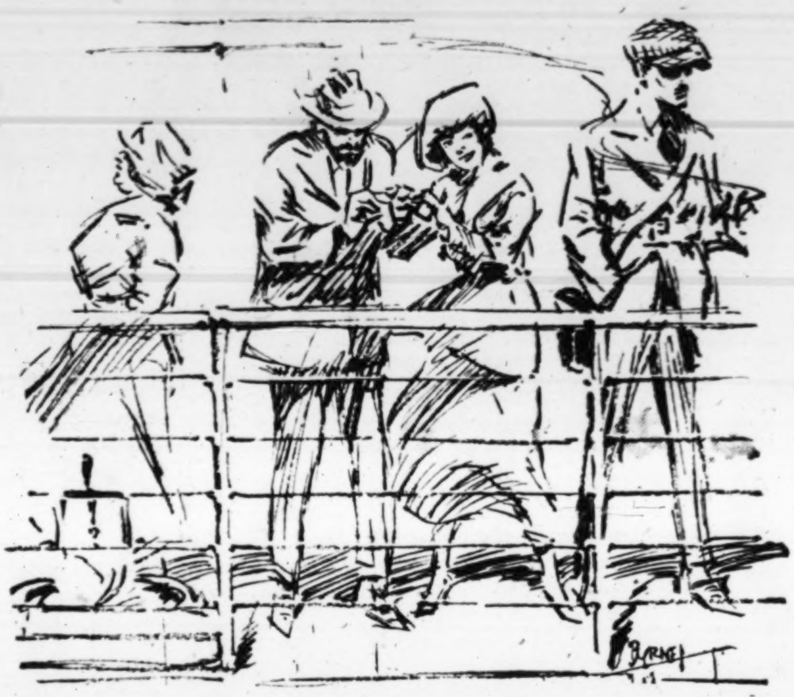
By FANNIE HURST



"See, papa! Land! Land! Here, look through Mr. Danziger's field glasses."

CONSIDERABLY after the European invasions of the Huns and Goths came the no less considerable invasions of American-made shoes, American-made millionaires and tourists. Essential enough to down-at-the-heels baronial estates and countless counts the first two, but what of the resilient-necked genus tourist out of Chillicothe and Altoona, Keokuk and Bloody Gulch, who spend an annual million of American dollars on picture postcards of the Leaning and Eiffel towers and the doves of St. Mark's; another annual million up the Matterhorn, down the catacombs and on the Lion of Lucerne; still another miscellaneous million or so on French kid gloves and filet lace; Roman pearls and Anderson seconds; Swiss chalet boxes and Mosaic breastpins; Chianti; Carlsbad and bad corals; Moulin Rouge; the Coliseum by moonlight and gondolas by the hours?

There are quicksands in the tourist's hour glass. Life is short and art was long until Cooks lassoed the world with a lariat-shaped excursionist's ticket and Baedeker compressed the thousand halls of the Louvre into 90 homoepathic pages; catalogued the universe and asterisked the American plan and running-water of two continents.

On board the Roumania, under a southern sky so blue that it quivered on the verge of sea-green, half a thousand first-class tourists crowded to the lee railing of the promenade deck, edging, jamming and leveling field glasses at a remote line against the blue, so thin that a school of porpoises might have been slicing the water with their fins.

Miss Esther Lefkovitch, tiptoeing, quivering, and her quick eyes framed in a fringe of blowing curls and a pongee tourist's cap, grasped her left neighbor's level field glasses and thrust them into her father's hand.

"See, papa! Land! Land! Here, look through Mr. Danziger's field glasses."

"Humph! Humph! So, Bertha, such a speck should be land."

"See, mamma! Here, you look, too. See, we're coming to Madeira. Funchal is the name of the town where the boat stops for two hours, isn't it, Mr. Danziger? Try to remember that, mamma—Funchal, where they make the hand embroidery."

"Funchal?"

"No, no, mamma; you've got them upside down. See, like this. Anybody could tell, Mr. Danziger, by the way we hold our field glasses, that this is our first trip to Europe."

"If anybody should ask you, Esther, your papa and me crossed to America when we was both little enough to be carried in arms and not on such a grand boat like this, neither, let me tell you."

Miss Lefkovitch smiled through a quick flush.

"I—I didn't mean that kind of a trip. Here, you see, you hold them like this, mamma, just like this."

Mrs. Lefkovitch leaned her ample figure forward, focused, leaned farther to the leeward, her lips wry with effort and as if she tasted quincy.

"Where?"

"There, mamma, right ahead."

"Here, Mrs. Lefkovitch, let me adjust the lenses for you."

"No, no, Mr. Danziger, for myself I can see. Go away!"

"Mamma! And Mr. Danziger trying to be polite to you."

"Such expensive politeness as Mr. Danziger's I can get cheaper."

"Mamma!"

"Just what I say I mean."

Mr. Danziger plunged his hands into his Scotch tweed pockets and beneath the visor of his Scotch tweed traveler's cap smiled down at Miss Lefkovitch blushing there beside her mother the rich raspberry red of shame.

"Your mamma's right, Miss Esther. She isn't going to let any of the fellows on this boat get too fresh with her, are you, Mrs. Lefkovitch?"

She would venture no reply, but passed the field glasses, via her daughter, back to him.

"I tell you, Aaron, Gott sei dank, if that black line what we see out there is land under our feet. Just see how far away it looks."

Mr. Lefkovitch thrust forward a face covered with a stubble of black and gray beard. A smile broke through it like the white grin of a faun showing through bracken.

"Humph!" he said. "Mamma, I tell you but that is a sight for you."

Bent were his shoulders, as if across his back lay a pack filled with years. Four decades previous there had been a pack there—a literal pack of the small goods a housewife buys at her stoop. Time and the inch-for-inch doggedness that had stooped his shoulders had metamorphosed that pack on the back into a plate-glass emporium with mahogany inners, occupying 25 leased feet of the most expensive Broadway frontage in the world.

But even Atlas relieved of his vault would, for sheer physiological reasons, have to face the world stoop-shouldered. So Aaron Lefkovitch, with his latter years light, still let his head rest like a ball in the valley between his shoulders.

"That such a piece of string out there, Bertha, should be land!"

"I tell you, it ain't none too soon for me. Enough of sea I've got. Never so long until I die can I forget them three rough days, Aaron. Like my own feelings wasn't enough, I had to have you yet on my neck and crying like a baby I should lay down by you to die."

"Ach, now, Bertha, never in my life did I ask such a thing."

"Enough of sea is enough, let me tell you. Like I say 10 times a day, if not for you wanting Europe and to meet new people, Esther, your papa and me would 10 times over rather be home in our comfortable flat in New York. Ain't it, Aaron? Ten times more as this? Ain't it, Aaron?"

"Ja, Bertha, but—enough of your life you've lived on land not to be so restless on sea a few days."

"On land, Aaron, many things can't happen what happens on sea."

The tail end of her glance, pointed and dartingly quick, was for Mr. Danziger and his arm, which lay along her daughter's in an approach to a caress.

Mr. Fefkovitch turned from the railing and the white froth of water kicking out from the quiet swish-swash of a quiet sea, and quirked his left eye with lightning-quick and vulpine slyness toward Mr. Danziger.

"Tonight, Danziger, Officer Childs says we can have our last little game up in the loungle room, so through the windows we can see the Gibraltar when she comes in sight."

"Aaron, I"——

"Ach, now, Bertha; tomorrow don't we land in Naples for good? I ask you, the last night does it make any difference a little game more or less?"

"I wish already this minute it was time to get off the boat in Naples."

"Ach, now, Bertha, my last night on the boat! What you bet when I got up today I put on my winning clothes, Danziger, to beat you if you are 10 times so lucky like always."

"That talk, Aaron, don't get nowheres with me. Lose just so much as you like. I don't worry no more. That's how disgusted me and the ladies on this boat feel about how all you men lose your shirts off your backs to Mr. Danziger. Pull here my chair, Esther; that's how disgusted I feel. The shirt off your back you can lose."

"Mamma!"

Miss Lefkovitch lowered maiden eyes before the allusion, assisted her parent to the steamer chair and packed the rug close about her frankly distended ankles.

"Mamma, you—you mustn't say such things."

"Nice talk don't go no more with your papa, Esther I'm ashamed enough, too, that even in front of you I got to talk to him plain, like I feel."

"But such a feeling I got in my bones for winning tonight, Bertha, you should know."

"All the feelings what you got in your bones, Aaron is rheumatism for me to rub."

"Eh, Danziger, tonight right off your back I win your shirt. Eh, you Boogher, you!"

Mr. Danziger relaxed his straight figure against the jutting end of a lifeboat, blew away a wreath of cigarette smoke and gazed seaward. He was groomed, full of good points, nor lacking in the ready smile that wins. Gray were his eyes, with fine crow's feet of laughter about them. Polished, even a bit too highly his fingernails and manners, his black patent leather boots and black patent leather hair. The smile in all its undaunted amiability he turned full upon Mrs. Lefkovitch, his fine teeth flashing whitely.

"Come, now Mrs. Lefkovitch; I'll prove it by any of you. Is it me or the old gentleman out for a game tonight? I've got Miss Esther for proof; is it me or the old gentleman."

Miss Lefkovitch turned scorching eyes toward her father.

"Of course, it's papa, every time. Without fail, just as soon as me and Mr. Danziger or—or anybody get seated up on top deck after supper to enjoy the evening, up he comes and drags him right down to that old game—to that old game!"

"Hear, Mrs. Lefkovitch, how Miss Esther scolds the old gentleman, too."

"Truth is truth, Mr. Danziger. That my husband on a first pleasure trip he takes from his business in 25 years, a man that all his life has had to work from dark until dark to get up to where he is now, should lose $480 to a young man what everybody on the boat says is full of luck up to his teeth, ain't no little thing."

"But Mrs. Lefkovitch"——

"Ach, Bertha"——

"Mamma"——

"And on top of it all to tell his wife, until she hears it straight from the other ladies, that it is only $4.80 what he lost. I ask you, Mr. Danziger, is it right?"

"Ach, now, Bertha, I didn't"——

"You did, Aaron, right down in our stateroom when you came in that night and I asked you. 'Four dollars and eighty cents, Bertha,' you said, just like that. Right away, when you went to your bunk that night with your pants' pocket under the mattress, I ought to have suspected."

"But Bertha"——

"Is that so nice, Mr. Danziger? I tell you for a young man what pretends he likes so much to be with my daughter, that he should play cards every night with her papa and win away like that—it—it makes me feel bad enough, I can tell you."

"Mamma!"

"Ja, and you! Ain't you said yourself, Esther, how at night when it gets prettiest for the young girls and the young men to sit out under the moonshine, how always when card time comes you find yourself left by yourself? Tell mamma, Esther, ain't you said it?"

"Ach, now, Bertha, wait till we land at Naples to-

The girl who shows you the proofs and is awfully upset for fear you'll think she just showed them to you so you'd have to ask, etc., which is just what you are expected to do. But oh, what must you think of her, etc., etc., which is your cue to beg good and hard for her photograph.

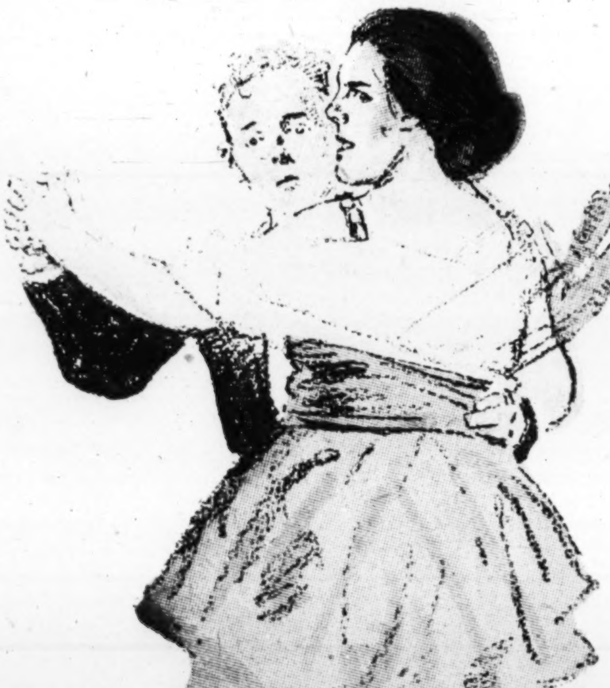
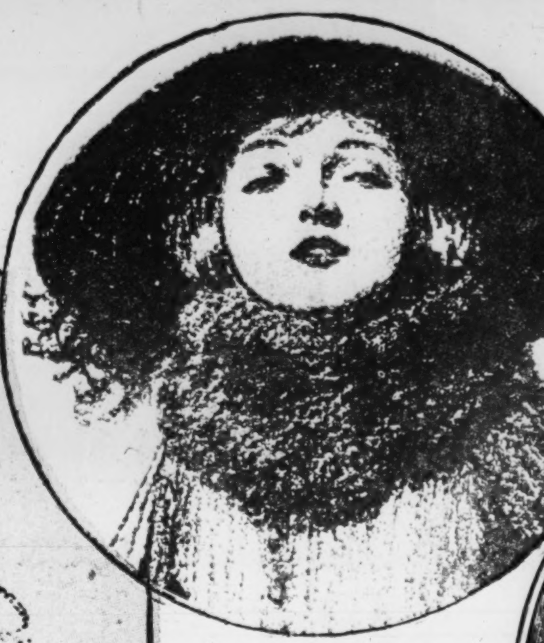
The self-conscious girl, who wants to know if you don't think she has a terrible nose, or chin, or eyes. If you don't agree you're not telling the truth, and if you do she will hate you evermore.



The athletic girl who wants to "lead" when you dance with her.



The girl who is always asking you if you think So-and-so is a pretty girl, "because I can't see the least thing attractive about her."

The flapper from the small town who wouldn't live in the city if you gave her a million dollars and is forever wishing she were back home in Cape Girardeau, where there is "so much going on, just at this time of year." According to her there is more social activity in Cape Girardeau in a week than St. Louis, Chicago or New York can boast of all winter long. And if you think Cape Girardeau girls (who are noted for their style) aren't up in all the latest fashions just gaze on Jessie with her permanent wave and her ostrich feather dress.

BOURJOIS' JAVA FACE POWDER

A Clear Complexion a Matter of Selecting a Pure Face Powder.

That is why Monsieur A. Napoleon Bourjois, French Chemist, created "Java" Face Powder to meet the Parisienne's demand for a face powder of tested purity.

While adhering unusually well, Bourjois' "Java" Face Powder contains no ingredient to mar the skin's texture. On the contrary, Bourjois' "Java" Face Powder owes its adherent quality to the concentrated refining of pure ingredients.

In keeping with its refreshing purity, Bourjois' "Java" Face Powder possesses a flower-like delicacy of fragrance most welcome to the woman to whom heavy perfumes are not agreeable.

To complete the effectiveness of "Java" Face Powder, Bourjois offers
"Ashes of Roses"

The Art of Keeping the Hands Beautiful

FOUR SIMPLE OPERATIONS EACH WEEK AND THE HANDS ARE ALWAYS PERFECTLY MANICURED

There is no beauty so easy to gain as lovely hands

LOVELY hands are more and more regarded as one of the chief charms of a beautiful woman. It is hard to get through a single day now, without being judged by one's hands. Badly groomed hands are more harshly criticised today than ever before. And no wonder. For really lovely nails are so easy to acquire.

Fifteen or twenty minutes a week will keep your nails in perfect condition.

File the nails the proper length and shape, preferably oval.

Smooth off irregularities and shape the corners of the nails with a flexible steel file.

The wrong care of the cuticle causes hangnails and rough places. Never trim it with scissors. This leaves a raw edge, which gives rise to hangnails and rough places.

Cutex was prepared to meet the need for a harmless cuticle remover.

The care of the cuticle

In the Cutex package you will find an orange stick and absorbent cotton. Wrap a little cotton around the end of the stick and dip it into the Cutex bottle. Then carefully work the stick around the base of the nail, gently pushing back the cuticle. Wipe off the dead surplus skin and wash the hands.

Now whiten the nail tips

Apply Cutex Nail White directly from the tube underneath the nails. Spread it under evenly and remove any surplus cream with an orange stick. Cutex Nail White will remove all discolorations from underneath the nails.

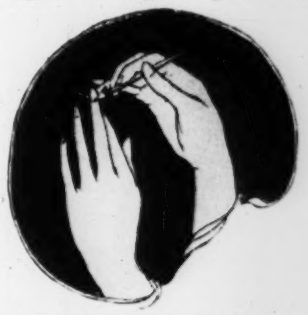
A jewel-like gloss

Cutex Cake Polish rubbed on the palm of the hand and passed over the nails gives them a quick, waterproof polish. If you wish an especially brilliant finish, apply Cutex Paste Polish first, then the Cutex Cake Polish.

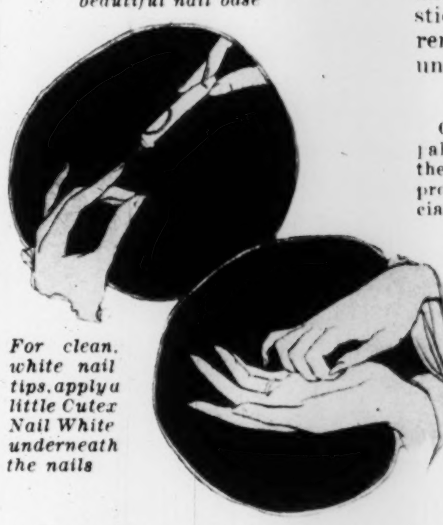
If your cuticle has the tendency to become dry and harsh, apply Cutex Cold Cream just before going to bed.

Give your nails this Cutex manicure regularly. Do not expect your hands to stay well-groomed with irregular care.

You can get Cutex in any drug or department store in the United States, Canada and England.



Soften and remove surplus cuticle with Cutex. It will leave a thin, beautiful nail base



For clean, white nail tips, apply a little Cutex Nail White underneath the nails

If you want a brilliant, lasting polish use Cutex Paste Polish first, then Cutex Cake Polish

Cutex Cuticle Remover, Nail White, Nail Polish and Cold Cream are each 35 cents. The Cuticle Remover comes also in 65-cent bottles.

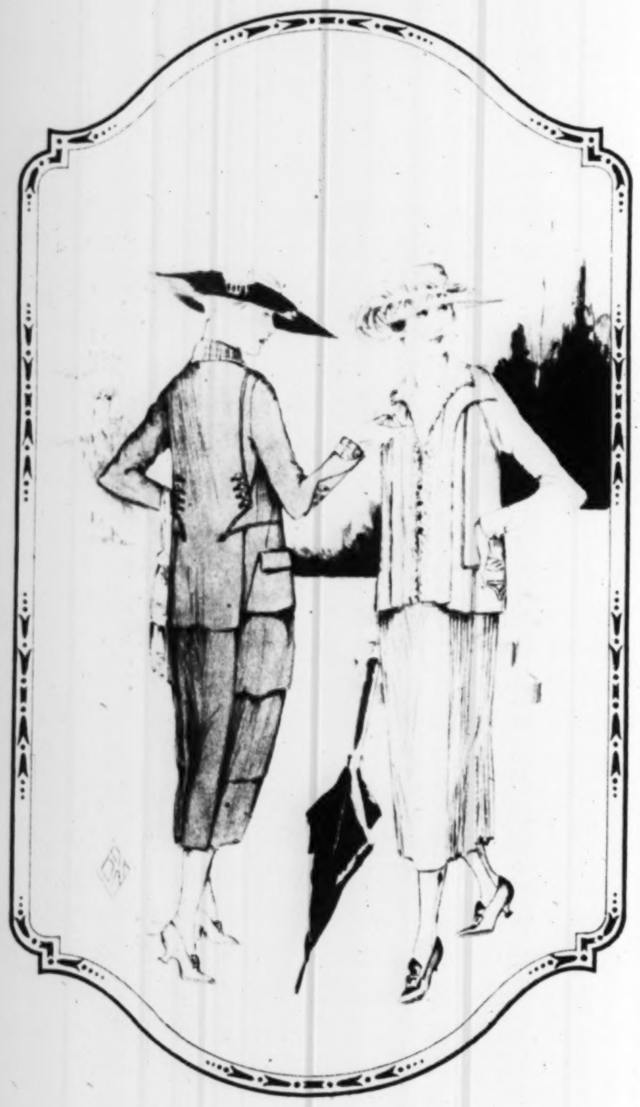
"THAT WELL-DRESSED LOOK"



Wooltex Tailor-mades

Wooltex Tailormades are priced at $45, $55, $65, $75 up to $125

The Rivoli:

You'd know Bernard was responsible for the inspiration of this little box suit, wouldn't you? You'd think the sleeve a real raglan, but it's actually set in to give that effect. The vest is of embroidered corded silk and so is the collar. The skirt is panel front and each hip boasts four clusters of plaits. Little metal buttons adorn the vest and self covered ones the jacket. In Twill Louise, Grotto-blue, Platinum, Filbert and Ormond.

At the right—

The Bretonne:

You can see for yourself how intriguing is this little Tailormade. The collar and turnover cuffs are trimmed with a bit of soft silk of good design. Metal rimmed buttons, self covered, trim the sleeves and back. The skirt, with tunic effect, tapers slightly and there's a panel in back which gives a smart, flat silhouette. The colors are Black, Navy, Tan, and Grotto-blue, and the fabric Men's Wear Serge.

WITH our lives and limbs and diamonds all insured, to say nothing of those exciting policies they're issuing nowadays against "strike, riot and civil commotion," it's high time someone did insure the most important of all, our personal appearance!

To attain a "well-dressed look" is like acquiring the coin of the realm, it's easy. But to hold it, that's where the trick comes in.

A spick-and-span new suit or coat can give anyone a smart and breezy air, but after Sol, most efficient of chemists, has beamed upon it, and rain and snow have done their part, that's the time you are glad if your tailormade is "covered for full value."

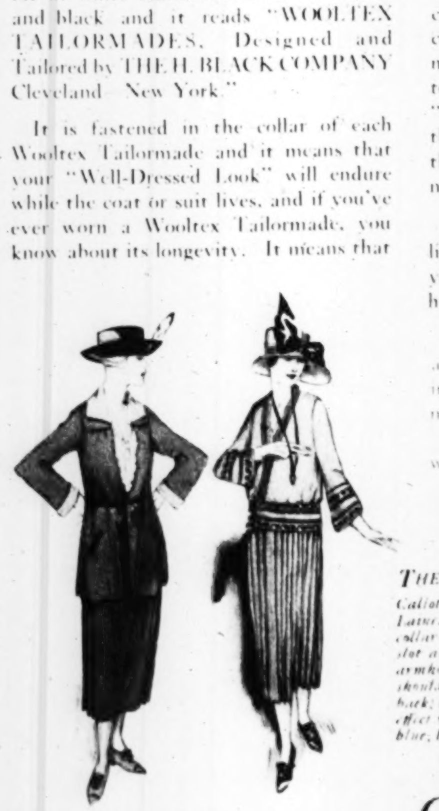
Did you know that there is an insurance policy issued with every Wooltex Tailormade? It isn't a bit involved or legal looking, we'll grant you that, and better still, you pay no premium, but it's a real insurance just the same! It's a bit of white stain, embroidered in gold and black and it reads "WOOLTEX TAILORMADES. Designed and Tailored by THE H. BLACK COMPANY Cleveland—New York."

It is fastened in the collar of each Wooltex Tailormade and it means that your "Well-Dressed Look" will endure while the coat or suit lives, and if you've ever worn a Wooltex Tailormade, you know about its longevity. It means that the collar sets well, not because the salesperson pats it into place as you stand before the mirror, but because a cutter who knows his art has cut that collar to lie flat against your neck. It means that the lining was cut separately to fit a given size, not "tacked here" and "caught there" to adapt it to the material; that the fabric is every thread wool, and the sleeves cut to fit the human arm and not the wire arm of the tailor's lay figure!

It takes but a second to look for that little white satin policy in the collar of your tailormade, but the satisfaction of having it there is long and lasting!

"The Tailored Woman," Fifth Avenue at Fiftieth Street, is the exclusive shop in New York showing Wooltex Tailormades.

For the shop nearest your home write us.



The Triomphe:

There's youth and a bit of defiance in every line of this little ingenue model! Of Tricotine with a daring little piping of red—braid trimmed in Wall-of-Troy design. This one is blue but you may have it in black if you prefer. The full skirt has a nice taper for all its plaits!

The Rigeur:

Callot inspired this little sport suit of Toile de Laine. The yoke is unusually smart and the rolling collar becomes all types. The pockets are slanting slot and the belt of narrow leather. The square armhole gives just the boyish touch a sport suit should have. The skirt is straight in front and back; but the sides are knife-plaited to give a slim effect yet comfort in walking. It comes in Grotto-blue, Platinum, Filbert and Ormond.

"We Must Fly Tonight!"

Out of a deep sleep he woke her. She thought she knew him so well. Yet now, at two in the morning, he burst on her with this terror—this mystery—this what?

It's the beginning of one of the best mysteries ever solved by the great detective.

CRAIG KENNEDY
The American Sherlock Holmes
ARTHUR B. REEVE
The American Conan Doyle

He is the detective genius of our age. He has taken science—science that stands for this age—and allied it to the mystery and romance of detective fiction. Even to the smallest detail, every bit of the plot is worked out scientifically. For nearly ten years America has been watching his Craig Kennedy—marveling at the strange, new startling things that detective hero would unfold. Such plots—such suspense—with real, vivid people moving through the maelstrom of life! Frenchmen have mastered the art of terror stories. English writers have thrilled whole nations by their artful heroes. Russian ingenuity has fashioned wild tales of mystery. But all these seem old-fashioned—out-of-date—beside the infinite variety, the weird excitement of Arthur B. Reeve's tales.

Col. Roosevelt said:—"I did a lot of reading. I particularly enjoyed half a dozen rattling good detective stories by Arthur B. Reeve—some of them were corkers."

FREE 10 Volumes POE

To those who send the coupon promptly we will give FREE a set of Edgar Allan Poe's works in 10 volumes.

When the police of New York failed to solve one of the most fearful murder mysteries of the time, Edgar Allan Poe—far off there in Paris—found the solution. The story is in these volumes.

He was a detective by instinct—he was a story teller by divine inspiration. Before or since—no one has ever had his power to make your hair stand on end—to send chills up your back—to hold you in terror—horror. To read breathlessly—to try to guess the ending—to enjoy the perfect, flawless style—to feel the power of the master—that is all you can do in each and all of Poe's undying stories.

Get yourself a thousand nights of pleasure and forgetfulness—of thrills and excitement—by reading ARTHUR B. REEVE.

This is a wonderful combination. Here are two of the greatest writers of mystery and scientific detective stories. You can get the Reeve in 12 volumes at a remarkably low price, and Poe, 10 volumes, over 200 stories, FREE.

PRESIDENT WILSON'S BLESSED INTERVALS.

President Wilson is quoted as saying:—"There are blessed intervals when I forget, by one means or another, that I am the President of the United States. One means by which I forget is to get a rattling good detective story, get after some imaginary offender and chase him all over."

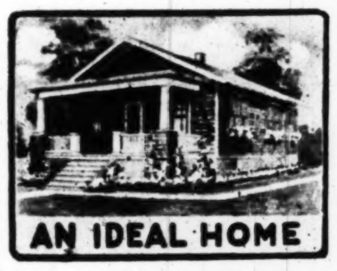
Save the Waste and Reduce the Cost

The Aladdin System scientifically prepares the materials and conserves the labor. You can save 18% on the cost of the lumber and 30% on the cost of the labor.

Certified records of thousands of Aladdin Hombuilders in every state prove these statements. You can prove these statements for yourself, for there is an Aladdin Home near you wherever you live. The pictures at the left tell the story of scientific preparation and handling of materials, and the efficient conservation and direction of the labor. Fourteen years success of the Aladdin System of construction have firmly established its many advantages. The Lumber that's Wasted Costs Just as Much as the Lumber that's Used.—The only possible way to reduce present high prices of lumber and labor is to save the usual waste. The Aladdin System prepares all the lumber in our mills ready to be nailed in place. Waste of lumber is reduced to less than 2%. Cost of labor is reduced 30%. One man will do in six days, with Aladdin Materials, what it requires ten days to accomplish without Aladdin's System. The book, "Aladdin Homes" sent free to prospective builders, explains this completely and thoroughly.

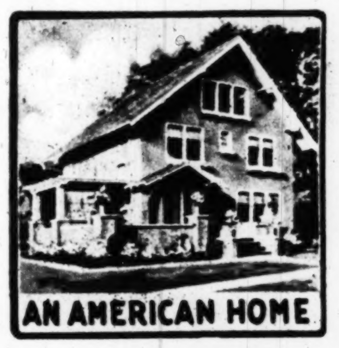


AN IDEAL HOME

Complete Material—Prompt Shipment

Aladdin taps the four greatest forests of the United States. Each one has sufficient standing timber to take care of the needs of the country for many years. The probable lumber famine predicted in all parts of the country will not affect The Aladdin Company.

Every Aladdin house ordered in 1920 will be shipped quickly and completely. This means that every item of the complete home will be shipped as ordered, sufficient lath and plaster for lining the interior of the home, nails in necessary sizes and quantities, beautiful grain, perfect quality interior trim, doors of high quality material and excellent workmanship. Every item of material of the complete home will be promptly shipped to every Aladdin purchaser in 1920 regardless of shortages of lumber and other building materials in the general markets.



AN AMERICAN HOME

National Home Building Service

Aladdin houses are manufactured and shipped direct from the Aladdin Company's own mills in Michigan, Mississippi, North Carolina, and Oregon. Wherever you live, Aladdin houses come to you in a straight line from the nearest timber region. Aladdin's National Homebuilding Service means shorter routes, quicker delivery and lower freight rates for builders in every part of the U. S. Three days to a week are saved in shipments reaching destination. Complete Sales and Business Offices are maintained in connection with each mill. Fully 24 hours time is saved in your mail reaching our offices.

20 ft. of Lumber From a 16 ft. Board

The Aladdin System of Homebuilding has been practicing for 14 years the principle the World has only learned during the war—the elimination of waste of lumber and labor. The Aladdin Book explains this system thoroughly, shows how 20 feet of lumber is cut from a 16 ft. board. The great Aladdin Organization composed of experts in every branch of homebuilding, stands ready to help you build your home at a saving. Put this group of experts to work on your problem. Cleans Easier and Better

Saves Many Hours of Hard Work

EVERY day you delay using a Bissell is just one more day of needless exhaustion and dust. Besides, it is a distinct saving to keep your carpets and rugs clean, and by a method that is not harsh or injurious, yet thorough.

The two Bissells—Carpet Sweeper and Vacuum Sweeper—will keep your house spick and span without electricity, and at a low cost. The carpet sweeper for daily use; the vacuum sweeper for frequent cleaning.

Dust does not fly over furniture, woodwork, draperies, etc. It is confined by the Bissell — not sent flying everywhere to cause dusting and washing fatigue.

Put your sweeping reliance on a Bissell appliance. Sweeper makers since 1875.

BISSELL'S
Carpet Sweeper and Vacuum Sweeper

There are Bissell Carpet Sweepers at all prices—"Cyco" Ball-Bearing grade from $4.50 to $7.75; Vacuum Sweepers, with greater suction than the average electric, $9.00 to $17.50—depending upon style and locality. At all good stores. Send for booklet, "The Care of Rugs and Carpets."

TUT! TUT! THEY WEREN'T AFTER WHAT'S IN THAT LITTLE MONEY-DRAWER — THEY SCATTERED YOUR OLD BLUEPRINTS FOR BIGGER GAME! WE MUST FIND OUT WHICH PLANS ARE MISSING!
HEY PETE, SLIP ME MY SATCHEL WITH THEM PLANS WOT I CRACKED THE ARCHITECT'S SAFE FER LAST NIGHT!
NOTHINK LIKE 'AVIN' A GOOD LAY-OUT TER GO BY, EH PROFESSOR?
- THE THINNEST WALL O' THE VAULTS IS NEXT TO THE VACANT BAKE-SHOP IN THE REAR STREET — IT'S A CINCH!!
DON'T YOUSE WANT SOME HELP, PROFESSOR?
NOPE! IT'S A ONE-MAN JOB - "BUT W'EN I RETOIN WE'LL HAVE MONEY TER BOIN!"
BAKERY
HERE'S THE BAKE-SHOP — AN' THE COAST IS CLEAR!
NUTHIN' BUT THIS WOOD PARTITION AN' THEN THE WALL O' THE VAULTS!
NOW THEN - ACCORDIN' TO THE PLAN THERE'S JEST THIS ONE THIN WALL BETWEEN ME AN' THE BOODLE IN THE VAULTS!
PLAN OF
I SOITINLY NEVER WOULD A' KNOWED HOW TER TACKLE THIS JOB WITHOUT THEM BLUE-PRINTS!
2-15
HOW DO YOU DO, PROFESSOR? YOU SEE I MADE ALL ARRANGEMENTS TO RECEIVE YOU HERE WHEN I DISCOVERED THAT YOU HAD STOLEN THE PLANS OF THIS, THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK!!
HAWKSHAW!
!?

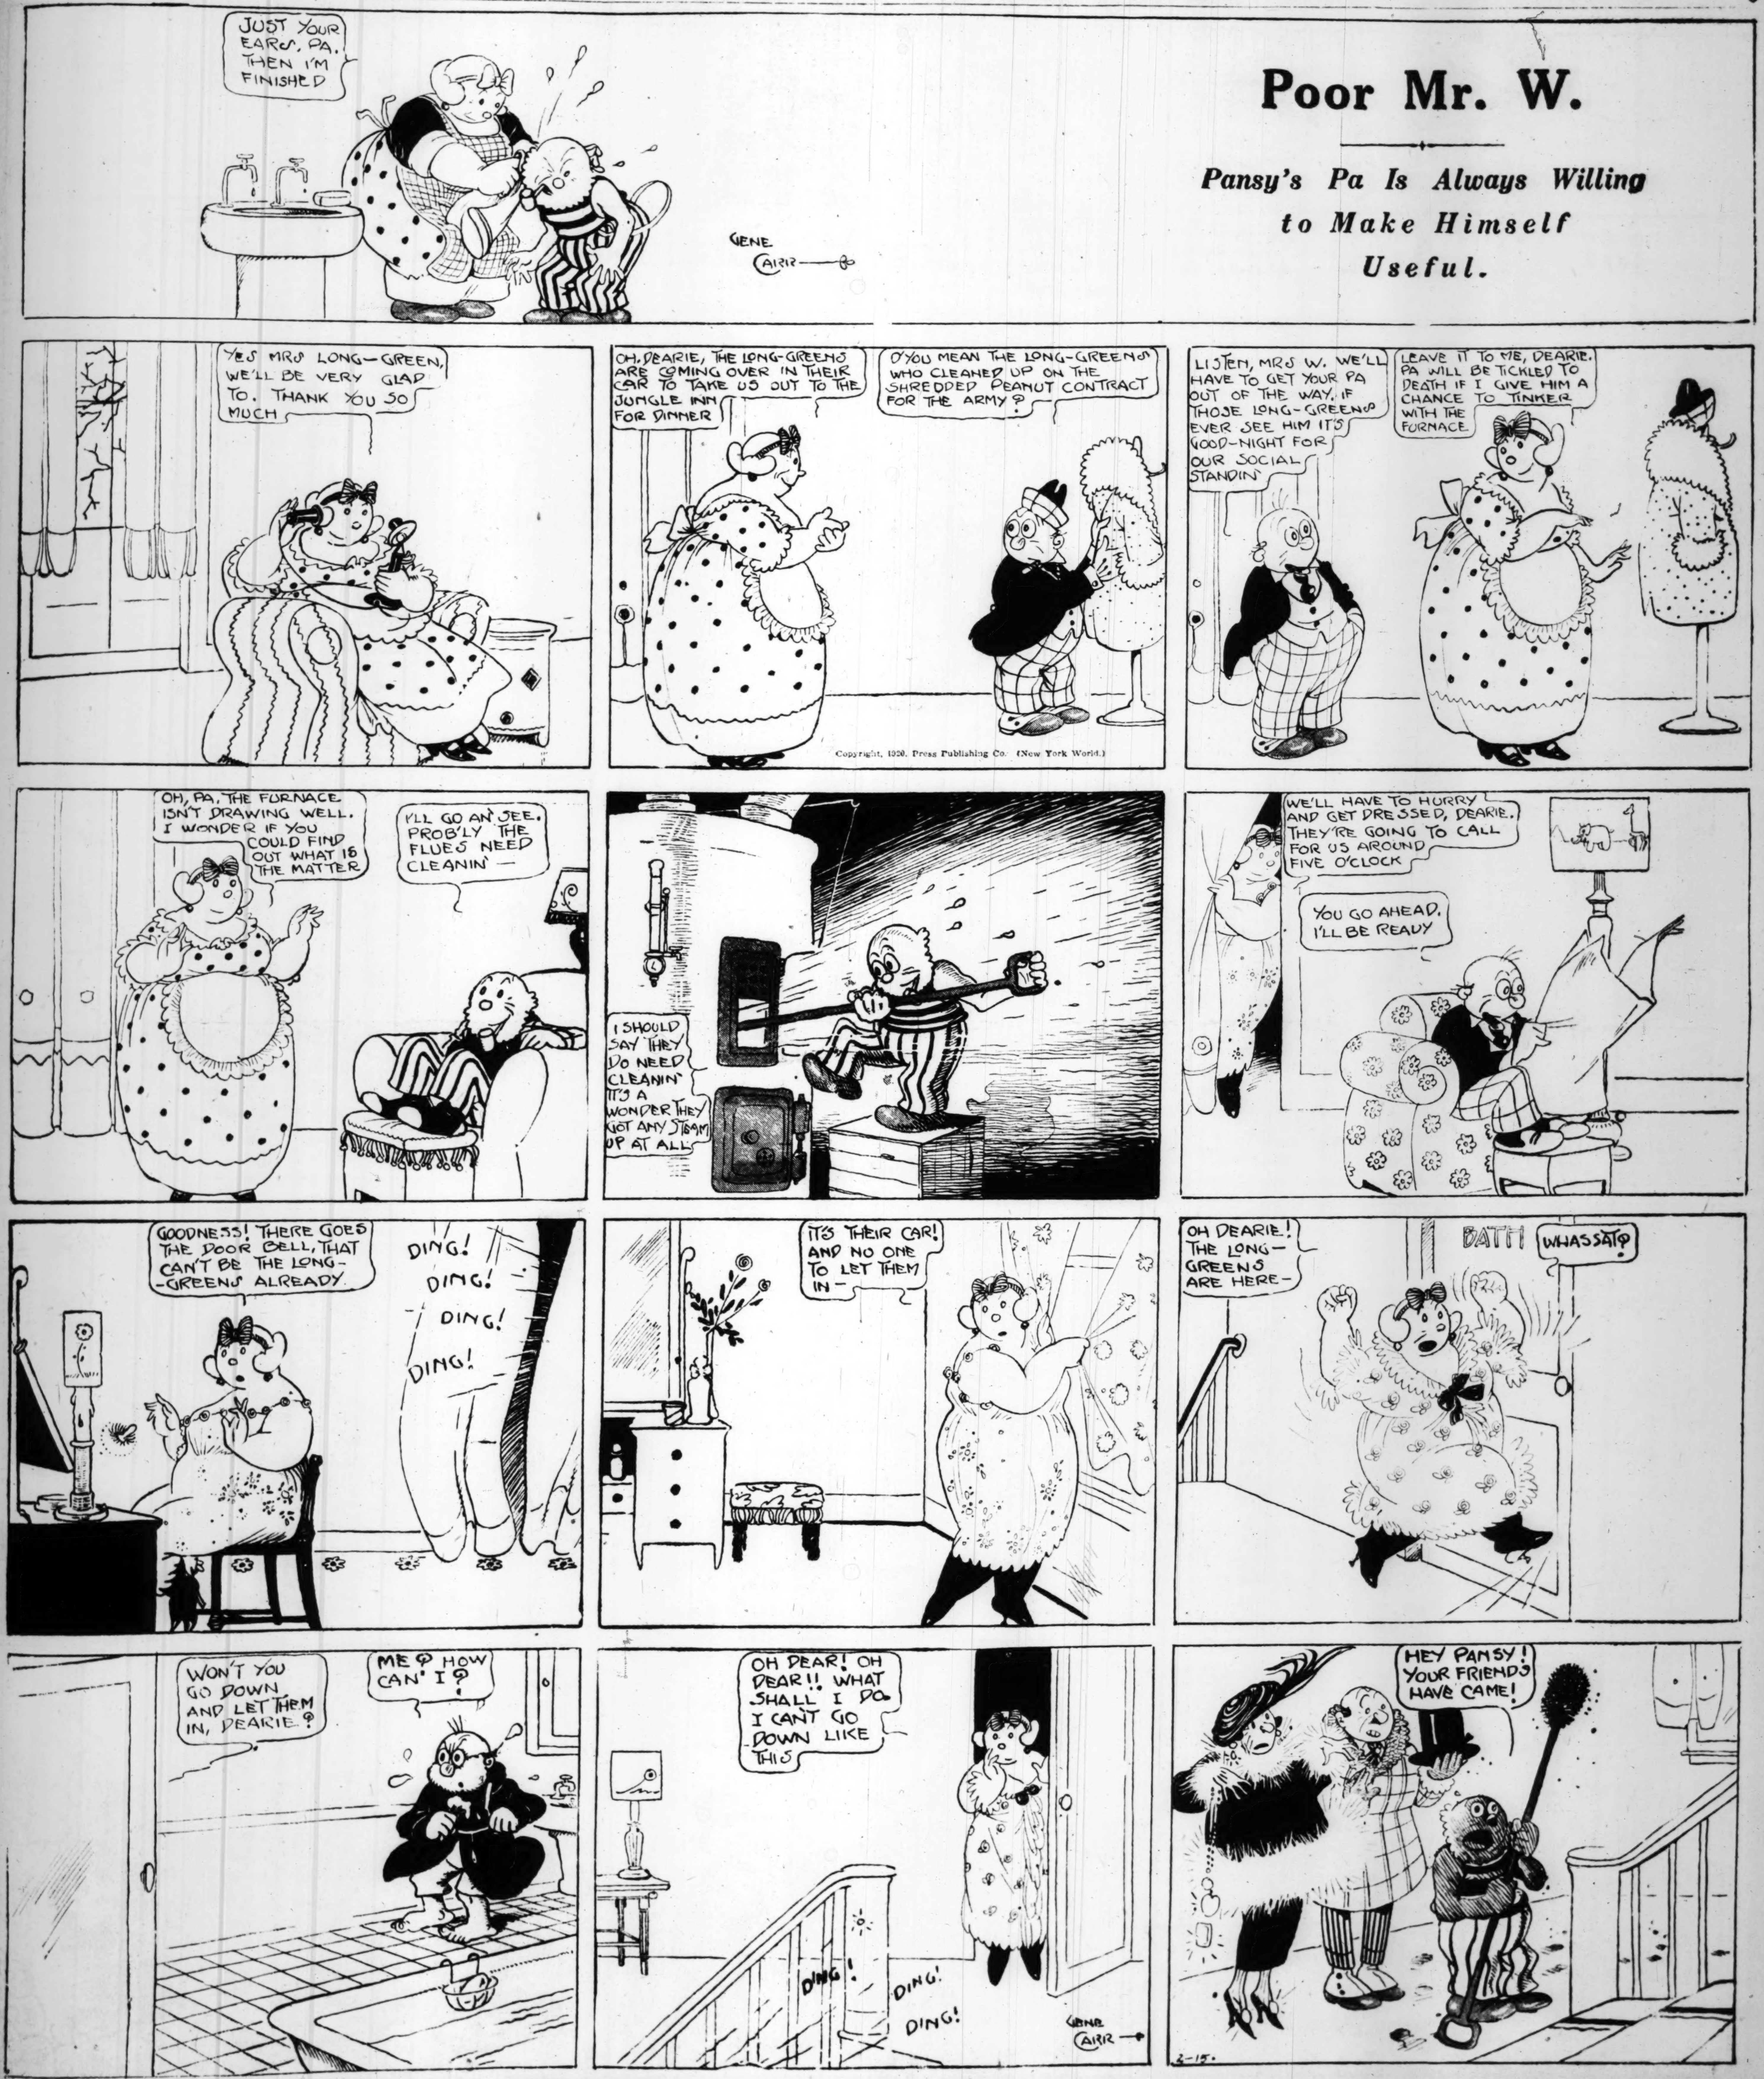
Poor Mr. W.

Pansy's Pa Is Always Willing to Make Himself Useful.



JUST YOUR EARS, PA. THEN I'M FINISHED
GENE CARR
YES MRS LONG-GREEN, WE'LL BE VERY GLAD TO. THANK YOU SO MUCH
OH, DEARIE, THE LONG-GREENS ARE COMING OVER IN THEIR CAR TO TAKE US OUT TO THE JUNGLE INN FOR DINNER
D'YOU MEAN THE LONG-GREENS WHO CLEANED UP ON THE SHREDDED PEANUT CONTRACT FOR THE ARMY?
LISTEN, MRS W. WE'LL HAVE TO GET YOUR PA OUT OF THE WAY, IF THOSE LONG-GREENS EVER SEE HIM IT'S GOOD-NIGHT FOR OUR SOCIAL STANDIN'
LEAVE IT TO ME, DEARIE. PA WILL BE TICKLED TO DEATH IF I GIVE HIM A CHANCE TO TINKER WITH THE FURNACE.
OH, PA, THE FURNACE ISN'T DRAWING WELL. I WONDER IF YOU COULD FIND OUT WHAT IS THE MATTER
I'LL GO AN' SEE. PROB'LY THE FLUES NEED CLEANIN' —
I SHOULD SAY THEY DO NEED CLEANIN' IT'S A WONDER THEY GOT ANY STEAM UP AT ALL
WE'LL HAVE TO HURRY AND GET DRESSED, DEARIE. THEY'RE GOING TO CALL FOR US AROUND FIVE O'CLOCK
YOU GO AHEAD, I'LL BE READY
GOODNESS! THERE GOES THE DOOR BELL, THAT CAN'T BE THE LONG-GREENS ALREADY DING! DING! DING! DING!
IT'S THEIR CAR! AND NO ONE TO LET THEM IN —
OH DEARIE! THE LONG-GREENS ARE HERE — BATH
WON'T YOU GO DOWN AND LET THEM IN, DEARIE?
ME? HOW CAN' I?
OH DEAR! OH DEAR!! WHAT SHALL I DO. I CAN'T GO DOWN LIKE THIS DING! DING! DING!
GENE CARR
HEY PANSY! YOUR FRIENDS HAVE CAME!

JEFF OLD DEAR, WHEN YOU PASS THE HOTEL WOULD MIND HANDING THIS TO LORD CHUMLY? IT'S AN ADMITTANCE TICKET TO THE BANQUET TO-NIGHT! THANKS AWFULLY.
WITH PLEASURE, SIR SIDNEY!
CLUB.
MISS SCHULTZ GAVE ME A NOTE FOR MUTT. I'LL DELIVER IT FIRST. JUST THINK! I'M GONNA MEET LORD CHUMLY!
OPTICAL GOODS.
NO! MUTT, YOU CAN'T LEAVE THIS HOUSE TODAY. UNDERSTAND?
YES, MY LOVE!
CHAWMED, MRS. MUTT. DO YOU FANCY I COULD SPEAK TO MUTT OLD DEAR FOR A MOMENT? THANKS AWFULLY.
NO! YOU INSECT!
SLAM!
THERE'S THE OLD DEAR. I SHALL JOLLY WELL SPEAK TO HIM IN SPITE OF MRS. MUTT!
YOU SAY YOU'VE GOT A NOTE FOR ME FROM MISS SCHULTZ? FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE, BE CAREFUL! QUICK! HAND IT TO ME!
FEB. 1920
OOF!!
MRS. MUTT, FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE, USE DISCRETION!
HAND ME THAT LETTER OF MUTT'S!
NIX! NIX!
WHY, THIS IS A TICKET TO THE SWELL BANQUET!
QUITE SO, QUITE SO! I WAS ONLY SPOOFING ABOUT HAVING A LETTER FROM MISS SCHULTZ
FORGIVE ME, DEAR. OF COURSE YOU CAN GO TO THE BANQUET AND MEET LORD CHUMLY.
I FORGIVE YOU! LIFE'S TOO SHORT TO HOLD A GRUDGE.
QUITE SO, QUITE SO! TEE HEE!
I DID SOME FAST THINKING AND SHIFTED LETTERS ON YOUR WIFE. HERE'S MISS SCHULTZ'S NOTE. THAT TICKET'S FOR LORD CHUMLY OLD DEAR.
FOR ONCE I GOTTA HAND IT TO YOU JEFF. NOW WE CAN PLAY PINOCHLE.
